

News of the World Today Through the Camera's Eye

AT 14, STELLA ELKINS, above, is in a fair way to becoming an authority on race horses. Stella is joint owner, with her father, George W. Elkins, of a half-million-dollar race track which has been opened on the Elkins' country estate near Bethayres, Pa.

RUM RUNNERS CUDGEL THEIR BRAINS at international border bridges in an effort to outwit the customs officials. Here's one of the ingenious smuggling methods used by a motorist at Buffalo—but it didn't get by. It was a liquor tank installed within the gasoline tank, as shown above.

A JUMP THROUGH THE AIR featured the opening of Bellanca Field, new airport at Wilmington, Del. Photo shows the parachute which carried Robert B. Jones, of the United States army, safely back to terra firma after thrilling a crowd of spectators.

KING GEORGE'S TALLEST SOLDIER is the claim made by Captain Lindsay Hay, of the Black Watch, who measures seven feet, four inches from the ground. Hay was snapped while engrossed in watching the hunt races at Perth, England.

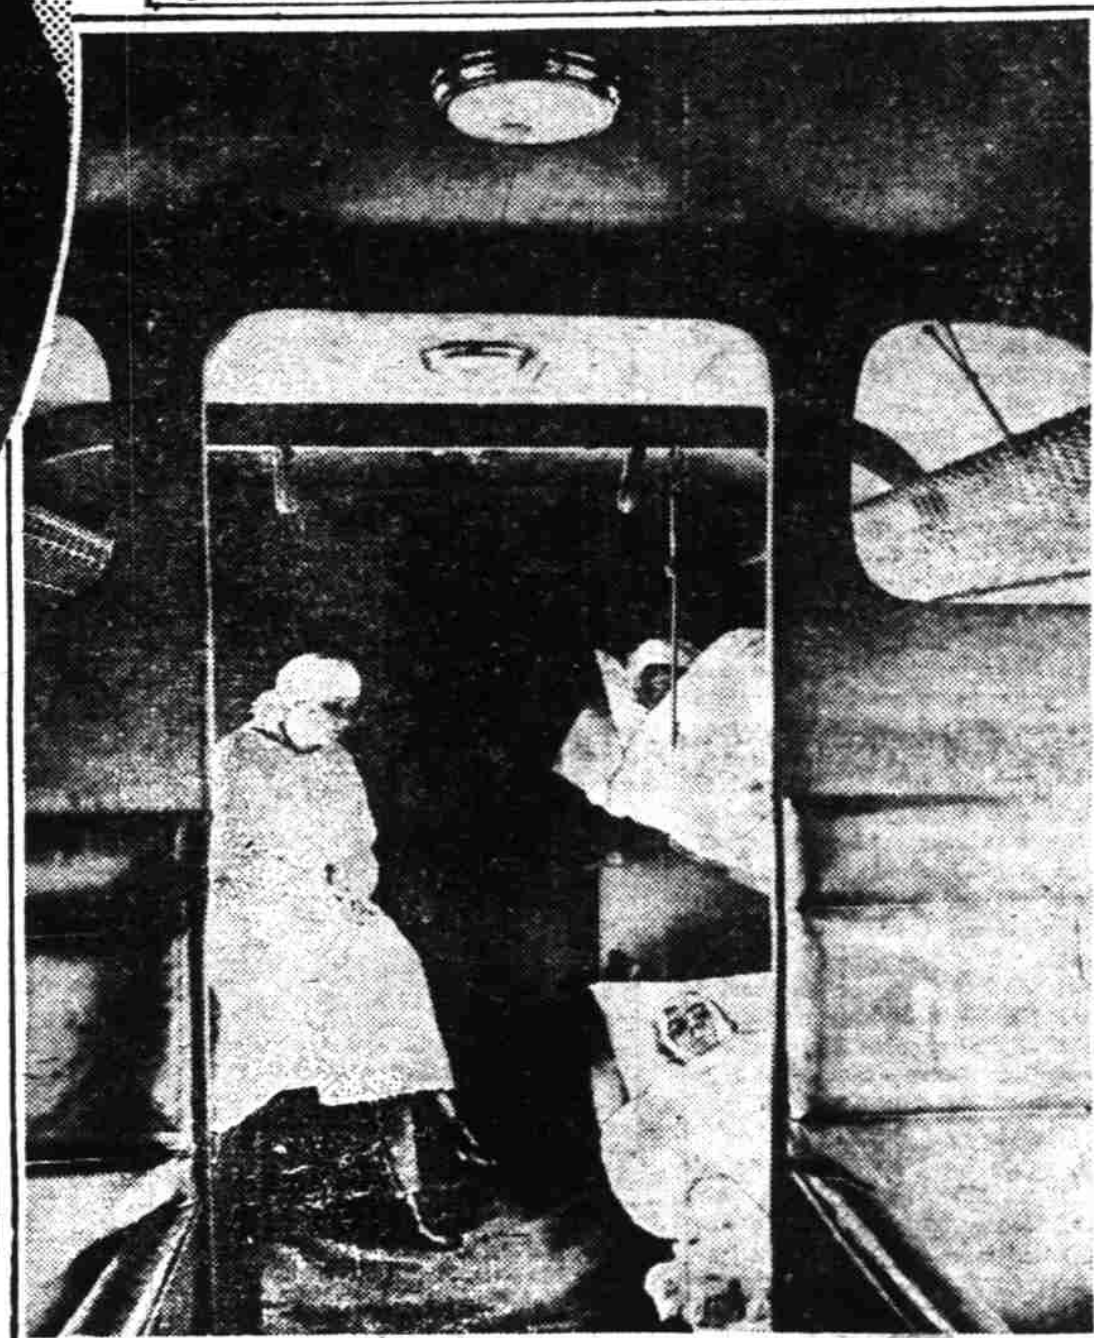

THE SPIRIT OF WAR, in itself, did not make a hit with Vienna when it was interpreted by a group of ballet artists. However, the beauty, charm and grace of the interpreters, above, were sufficient to cause something of a furor when the dance was given in the Austrian capital.

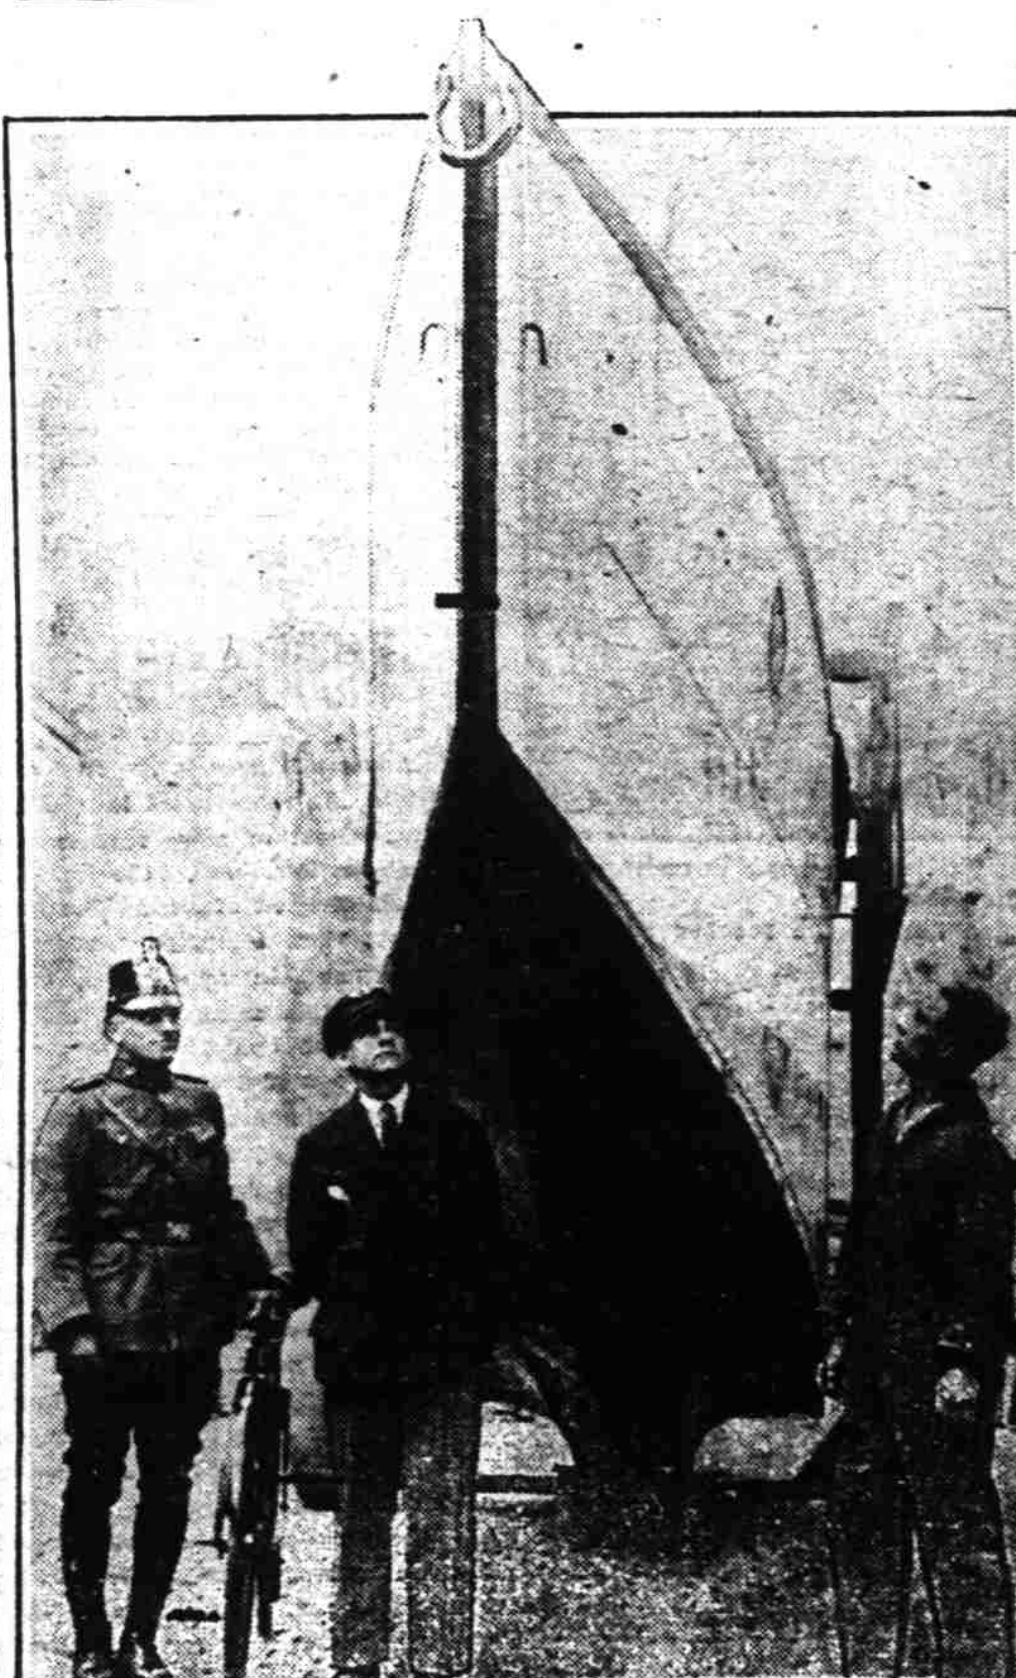

HEREDITARY BEAUTY might well account for the facial charm of Miss Cynthia Burns, above, of England. A second cousin of J. P. Morgan, she is the daughter of Mrs. Walter Burns, a famous English beauty herself, and the twin of another, the late Mrs. Ogden Mills.

ONE OF JOUKOV'S JOKES is the work of sculpture above, done by the Russian artist Joukov. It is entitled "The Animals Listen to the Radio" and is a type of the Russian's work which has been creating quite a sensation in Moscow.

AN AMBULANCE OF THE AIR is this new Junkers plane, an interior view of which is shown above. The plane, for use in case of air accidents and other emergencies involving employees of the Junkers company in Germany, is capable of carrying 12 patients besides its crew.

SWOOPING DOWN UPON BERLIN, the new giant plane, Romar, is transported through the streets of the German capital on its way to an air traffic exposition. Compare the body of the great plane, above, with the men watching it.

ADDING A THRILLING TOUCH to the exhibition of the miniature aircraft contest at Atlantic City, N. J., Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, wife of the noted inventor, poses for the camera, as shown above, with the youthful entrants from Boston, Mass.

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION—The crew of a five-inch gun on the U. S. S. California shown drilling with gas masks to attain proficiency in the art of avoiding fumes from gas attacks even while keeping their battery in action.

Copyright, 1928, by Central Press Association, Inc.

The Foremost Comics by America's Leading Cartoonists in the STATESMAN Every Day

"Polly and Her Pals," Cliff Sterrett's delightfully laughable comic strip of life as it is lived by the Perkins family. This is one of the choicest of all newspaper comic strips. Follow it in the New Statesman.
Les Forgrave draws for the New Statesman every day "Big Sister," a humorous comic strip that forms a daily glimpse of little folk and their contacts with their elders. It is full of good wisdom.

A grippingly novel serial is presented in "Goofy Movies" every day by Nehr. You'll find it clever and the youngsters especially will enjoy it. But it contains good, clean fun for all Statesman readers.
No comic artist has ever had a greater following than Stanley, who draws "The Old Home Town" for the New Statesman every day. You'll get a big laugh every time you read it—for it is humorous and human.