

YOUTHFUL PAIR LAND IN CELLS

Romance Between School Teacher and Pupil Comes to Quick End

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 30.—(AP)—A high school romance in which a 17-year old girl fell in love with her instructor, ended in city jail here today. Vern Ashley, 25, of Kalispell, Mont., was arrested and held for government officials, and Evelyn Young, 17, of Kalispell, was being held for her father, Ross Young, who was on his way to Portland.

While helping her instructor grade school papers after classes were over, the girl became infatuated with Ashley, she told police. Ashley was not happy with his wife, the girl was quoted as having said, and the pair decided "to run away from it all" and seek happiness by themselves. They came to Portland in an automobile, and Miss Young planned to enter high school here.

When they tried to sell their machine for a suspiciously low price, the automobile dealer became suspicious. He called at their hotel where he found the couple registered in adjoining rooms as Jim and Marie Reed of Butte, Mont., although the certificate on the car stated the driver's name was Ashley. Police investigated and the arrest followed.

Tom Young, department of justice agent, tonight ordered that both the girl and the teacher be held incommunicado. Police said Ashley may be charged with abduction, contributing to the delinquency of a minor, and Mann Act violation.

Both the girl and Ashley denied improper relations. Operatives of the women's protective division said, however, after they had questioned the girl that she had given them information which may lead to placing of criminal charges against Ashley.

FRANK DAVEY SAYS SOMEBODY HAS LIED

Somewhere, according to Frank Davey, secretary to the state market agent and one of Oregon's stalwart republicans, has been spreading false reports about him. Briefly, says Mr. Davey, a whispering campaign has as its message the report that he secretly is a supporter of Al Smith. Wherefore Mr. Davey is aggrieved and has written to Hal D. Patton, of Salem, a letter which clears up this tissue of falsehood. His letter follows:

"I am informed that some republican friends of mine in Salem have started the rumor that I have abandoned Hoover and am openly supporting Smith. If that story had started in any other part of the world except Salem, there might be some excuse for it, but there, and in republican circles, an excuse is entirely lacking. A record of 40 years, during which I was never charged with either cowardice or deceit and during all of which period my party loyalty was never questioned, ought to prevent the circulation of such a rumor.

"I would like to have you correct the report as widely as you can—publicly if possible and I think both papers would respond to your request.

"I am supporting Hoover to the best of my ability and with no struggle of mind or conscience whatever and am doing so in the same open and unequivocal manner that I have always observed."

Delzell, candidate for the state house of representatives on the democratic ticket. August Backstein of Salem, state democratic committeeman, presided. The Silverton band played.

New Fall Scarfs Satisfy Milady's Desire for Beauty As Well As Comfort

With the cooler weather milady dons a colorful scarf for comfort as well as beauty. And the new scarfs for fall will satisfy anyone's desire for beauty. The one pictured at the extreme left is from the house of Chanel, cut on the bias in modernistic, hand-painted design on crepe de chine. It is worn as a regulation long scarf. The next is also from right, can be worn by man or woman and may be properly worn folded in half squarely or in triangle. The Arizona scarf, designed by Lanvin, extreme right, is a hand-painted crepe de chine and can be worn as pictured, in a V in back, or loosely knotted in front.

dairy and food commission inspections as dirty in 1925, 30 per cent as fairly clean and none as clean. To the figures for 1928 which are a complete reversal. During this year none were in the class of dirty, 20 per cent are fairly clean and 80 per cent are clean. Sanitary inspections, improvement of plants and distribution are being brought to a high level.

Future Requirements Given in Detail
Tuberculosis sanitation, private medical practice and need of a public health laboratory are included in the future program of the demonstration. Of these things, it was stated:

The tuberculosis problem in Marion county needs much more intensive attention than has been given it. There are probably 189 active cases in this county based on the 21 deaths which occurred last year. During the year only nine active resident cases were reported. In other words the vast majority of those who should be reported for supervision for their own good and the protection of others were actually not so reported. This shows a very serious problem which is yet to be properly handled.

The sanitation of the county has barely been touched and lies ahead as one of the most important problems to be dealt with. With the splendid cooperation existing between the physicians in the county and the health department staff there is a rare opportunity for supplementing what the physicians are doing for families under their care by educational service to build up health rather than simply to treat disease. With all of the good work so far done only 25 per cent of the babies of the county have as yet received regular nursing supervision.

Laboratory Service Urgently Requested
One of the real needs of the county is the establishment of a public health laboratory service where prompt tests can be made for suspected cases of communicable disease, samples of milk can be analyzed and the other very essential laboratory work done.

Improvement of the county health activities in the last few years is noted in the scoring given by the American Public Health association. From a possible 1000 points, in 1927 the county made 702. In 1924, the score was but 702. In 1925, 424 and in 1926, 578.

In 1927, from all sources including the county, city, schools and miscellaneous, but 27 cents per capita was expended in Marion county for health activities. In 1928, per capita assistance is 33 cents. County appropriations for both years were just four cents per capita, as compared to 25 cents in Clackamas county, 41 cents in Coos, 75 cents in Jackson and 78 cents in Klamath.

Last year, a total of 4,034 visits for health supervision by nursing service were made in carrying out the child hygiene program. Enumeration of other work and results in this program for the 1932 school and 5,163 pre-school children included: health examinations, 6,288; dental examinations, 5, ferent towns when traveling by stage; but trying to get a stop-off ticket on a train is a bother and a nuisance. Besides, I think you meet more people traveling by stage, and people who are more inclined to be sociable.

WHAT THEY THINK

MARK POULSEN, city recorder, said: "Motor stages may be as pleasant to ride on as trains, but they are extremely difficult to walk over or around when they get in one's road downtown. Trains are bigger but they keep out of the way better. The trouble with stages is that in coming out of the alleys or driveways, they seem to vary to make the stop required by law, directly in the crosswalk, so that pedestrians either have to stop and wait until they move on, or go around."

WILLIAM YARNELL, 1705 South Cottage street, said: "There are two sides to the question. The convenience of the bus is better than that of the railroad as busses come and go from the downtown section and will pick you up most anywhere along their route. However, I am in favor of better protection for the railroad, as it maintains its own right of way and tracks and should have protection. At least that is the way I feel about it."

J. H. FARRAR, Salem postmaster, said: "The private conveyance cuts into the railroad's business more than the bus does, in my estimation. Most of our own cars these days, and don't use either the train or the stage when we want to make a trip. The train will still be used for a long time for long trips, though, and the bus will get a lot of business carrying people for shorter distances in cases where either from choice or necessity the passenger does not go in a car of his own."

HOWARD STEINGRUBE, Valley Motor employee, said: "I like the busses better than trains because the scenery seems to change faster. The time seems to pass faster when I am riding in a stage than when I am in a train."

LESTER STAPLES, Postal Telegraph employee, said: "The stages give a much more convenient schedule than the trains. You can get a bus from here to Portland every hour on the hour. You don't have to remember whether it is 10 or 15 minutes after some time that the bus leaves. The stages leave Portland much later at night to

TREATS ENJOYED AT KIWANIS LUNCHEON

Salem's Kiwanians enjoyed several special treats at their weekly luncheon Tuesday, among these being the eloquent inspirational talk on "Kiwanis" made by P. O. Riley, editor of the Hubbard Enterprise and chief speaker of the day.

Another exceptional feature was the singing of two numbers by Miss Eleanor Moore of Salem, who recently won second place in the state audition contest conducted by a national radio company. Miss Moore was accompanied by Miss Ruth Bedford.

Announcement was made by Douglas McKay, Kiwanis secretary and also commander of Salem's American Legion post, that the Kiwanians were invited to take an active part in the Armistice Day parade, in which all service clubs and civic bodies are expected to participate this year.

Dean Alden was appointed as chairman of the election committee which is to nominate a new president and other officers of the club. Members of his committee are: D. Roberts, Adolf Nelson, Willis Clark and Howard Hulsey.

A number of tables have been reserved for the benefit bridge tea this afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. L. Newman, 1950 Center street. The benefit is being sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

Miss Ruth Dishman of Portland is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Maison this week.

HOOVER WORKS HARD ON TALKS

Four Last Shots to be Fired at Democratic Opponents by Nominee

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—With the air filled with the clamor of the last week of the campaign, Herbert Hoover, in characteristic fashion, worked quietly today at his general headquarters and his "S" street home, waiting into shape four political shots which he will hurl into the enemy ranks as he travels westward to cast his vote on November 6 at Stanford university in California.

For all intents and purposes, Mr. Hoover's activities in Washington are almost ended so far as the 1932 campaign is concerned, although his personal headquarters will remain open until the night before election, with James Francis Burke, general counsel of the republican national committee, in charge.

Mr. Hoover is leaving for the West Thursday, confident that he will return here to be inaugurated as president on March 4. His friends and political associates for several days have constantly brought him messages of assurance of victory. Among the callers at headquarters today was James A. Garfield of Cleveland, son of the martyred president, who reported that sentiment in the middle western states is recently had visited was strongly favorable to the Hoover-Curtis ticket.

Garfield issued a statement in which he charged that the democratic standard bearer had misrepresented Hoover's attitude on several of the issues of the campaign.
