Unusual Costumes At Masquerade Thursday

SCORES of novel and spectacular costumes were seen Thursday night in the Woman's clubhouse on North Cottage street, when more than 60 members of the Salem Business and Professional Women's club and their guests were entertained with a masquerade Halloween party.

Mrs. Mary Hill, garbed as an old man, was awarded the prize for the best costume, and the prize for the "funniest costume" went to Miss Hetta Field.

The big clubrooms were unusually attractive with bright autumn foliage and fall blooms combined with jack-o-lanterns and other Halloween novelties. Mrs. Hester Adams and Miss Ruth Moore were in charge of the decorations.

The program for the evening included the reading of "Tam O' Shanter" by Mrs. LaMoine R. Clark; a burlesque melodrama coached by Mrs. Susan Varty with Grace Hendrickson, Emma Haley, Mary Hill, Jessie Martin, Esther L. Hagedorn, Mrs. Hector Adams, Amy Martin and Phebe McAdams in the cast; and a number of stunts and games. Fortunes were told by two witches, Edith Bagley and Ina Koon.

Richmond Children Have School Party

The primary grades of the Richmond school were entertained by their teachers, Mrs. E. E. Burch and Miss Mary Lee Scott, with a reading party in their classrooms Wednesday. The affair was arranged by the small students, who gave program numbers including songs, recitations, dramatizations and readings of a number of stories. Halloween refreshments, provided by the mothers of the pupils, were served by the teachers at the close of the program.

The small children are planning a second affair to be given in the near future, with their mothers as special guests.

With the Women of Today

THE modern heroine of romance dominates the book, whereas, the old-time heroine was beautiful and virtuous, but seldom alive, according to Mrs. Adelaide Evans Harris, member of the faculty of Western Reserve university, Cleveland. Mrs. Harris has just published the result of a study of heroines in English romances.

Today's heroine is usually an unusual type and is described minutely, her looks, what she thinks, what she does and why. In the middle ages heroines were all alike, and their only job was to find a hero and inspire him to do noble deeds, while they watched from the castle walls. Love alone sufficed for the lady; the action belonged to the men.

Buenos Aires Women Chic

The young women of Buenos Aires, Argentina, are the most smartly dressed and best groomed in the world, according to Miss Ruth Sheldon of Omaha, Neb., who has spent several years in South America as head of the Young Women's Christian association health education work.

Dependable Values Tell a Story

SOME say that business holds little romance. But they are unimaginative people. Just think of the monuments to commerce that the offerings each day of straightforward values can achieve.

Take this store for instance. On what is it built? VALUES - VALUES - VALUES—AND DEPENDABLE GOODS. People of Salem come to this store because they are sure of getting what they want—without paying high prices—they know that whatever they buy can be depended upon. It is the basis of our success. We are proud of the fact.
