OREGON BANKS FOUND SOUND

Superintendent Makes His Statement Showing Financial Details

Resources of Oregon banks at the close of business October 31, 1928, reached a record total of $357,417,269.76, according to a statement issued here Thursday by A. A. Schramm, state superintendent of banks. There are 244 banks operating in the state. On October 10, 1927, the resources of the 252 banks operating at that time aggregated $352,828,878.87, as against $300,447,538.81 on September 6, 1927. There were 286 banks operating in Oregon in the year 1921, according to the report.

"It will be noted," read the statement, "that while total resources have increased $5,000,000 during the past year, and about $7,000,000 since 1921, the number of banks in operation has decreased. There were 286 banks in Oregon in 1921. In 1927 there were 252 banks and at this time 244 banks. There are now fewer banks operating in Oregon than at any time since 1910.

"The reduction in the number of banks during the past year has been brought about by the consolidation of five institutions, three voluntary liquidations and four closed and placed in receivership for liquidation of their assets. Four new banks were chartered during the year. On the average, a much greater volume of business is being handled per unit bank.

"Several trends of development are clearly shown in the summary. First is the change in character of investments, then the change in the ratio of the two classes of deposits and, lastly, the reduction of borrowed money owed by the banks. These trends are analyzed fully.

STATE PRISON SHOW ON AGAIN TONIGHT

Popular demand for seats at the Oregon state penitentiary vaudeville show has made it necessary to hold the entertainment over Saturday night. The two-act farce comedy and the song and dance review have played to capacity audiences both nights. Two groups of selections by the orchestra and a comedy act are other numbers on the program. Fred Taylor and Edmond Romine are featured in the review.

THEATRE BOWLERS BREAK 4 RECORDS

All of the Banker's league records in sight were broken by the Capitol theatre team on the Winter Garden alleys Friday night when it won three games from Ladd & Bush. Bassett set a new high game record, 201, and a high series mark, 548; and the theatre quartet broke the high game record for teams three times, setting new marks successively of 781, 772 and 849. They also set a new team series record, 2282, which would be a creditable score in any of the leagues.

The headquarters battery team won two games out of three from the Western Paper Converting company outfit. Scores were:

WHAT THEY THINK

thing that any newspaper needs most is a lot of local news. No matter how much of it a paper has, more of it is bound to be an improvement. Some a month or two ago I stopped my subscription to the Statesman because there wasn't enough in it. I think it is much better now.

L. H. McMAHAN, circuit judge, said: "A strong editorial page is the thing I admire most about a newspaper. I do not say the New Statesman is particularly lacking in this respect, especially in comparison with the general run of papers these days, but I do say that it will make no mistake by speaking its opinions fearlessly and consistently. By that, however, I don't mean a continuous harping on two or three pet ideas."

MRS. G. W. LAFAR, 1199 South Liberty street, said: "I don't know what you could do to improve The New Oregon Statesman. Mr. Laflar and I think it is twice as good as it was before the new management took it over. It is really miraculous the changes for the better that have been made. Of course, I suppose you professional people can see faults with it, but I can't. I simply can't tell you how much we think of the New Statesman and how delighted we are with it."

MRS. BERTHA JUNK DARB-Y, prominent music teacher and old-time resident of Salem, said: "I think the New Oregon Statesman is all right just as it is. There isn't much to be improved upon, for it has been improved so radically since September. However, I like the news—world-wide and local—best of all. I never read the syndicated articles; I think they waste just that much space. And the comic strips are very inferior to those run a couple of months ago. I read the papers more than I ever used to, for I read it to my mother so much. We both like the paper very much. Now, if you had asked me about what I thought of the 'Think' column the other night, I would have been glad to tell you I read them every day and enjoy them very much. They are a fine feature of your paper."

trained. Then he calls attention to the advantage to the community of having the fines collected under the state laws and kept at home instead of being collected under federal action and sent to the United States Treasury.

Hazeltine, while a newspaper man and one of the owners of the South Bend, Wash., Journal, is also one of the trustees of Kimball School of Theology of this city and was for 16 years regent of the state university of Washington and one of the founders of the school of journalism of that institution. He was also president of the state press association of the state and formerly divisional chief of prohibition agents for the northwest and later of Florida and Pennsylvania.
