

Sayings of a President-elect, Taken From Campaign Talks, Form Collection of Hooverism

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Statesman

PALM SPRINGS, Nov. 17.—Of the millions of words already written about Herbert Hoover, and the countless numbers that are now being spun, the finest summation of the man comes in the president elect's own lines: "I don't waste my energies running around in circles—I go fishing."

For in these twelve words, lie to the outstanding marks of his success—directness, and a keen sense of proportion, sparkled with delightful humor. This element of levity doesn't mark often his utterances on the subjects usually termed "weighty." His formal conversations do not show much signs of the humorist. For directness prompts that there be no confusion as to meaning. Yet his views, when expressed informally—talking to friends, before small groups of intimates, or even before societies of specific interest—cover the range of every-day-every-man affairs, with expression light and cryptic. Look at these slants, culled from quotations made by Mr. Hoover at divers times since he entered the world spotlight:

PUBLIC OFFICE: "Generally—I may almost say generally—those in public office, city, state and national, are damned if they do and damned if they don't."

SMALL TOWNS: "It is in time of common emergency that the spirit of the small town ascends to superlative heights. If this be Babity then let us have more of it."

CHILD WELFARE: "I believe that the attitude of a nation toward child welfare soon will become the test of civilization."

HUMAN MISERY: "We may count food in calories, but we have no way to measure human misery."

CHARACTER: "National character cannot be built by law. It is the sum of the moral fiber of its individuals."

INTEREST: "I know how to make money and it no longer interests me. I don't fully know how governments may best serve human beings. That does interest me."

FISHING: "There are lots of people who committed crimes during the year who would not do so if they had been fishing."

STATISTICS: "Solemn statistics are the best antidote to the poison of speculation and profiteering."

CONVICTION: "The time has gone by when conviction can be carried by noisy phrases, quips and demagogic half-truths butted with emotion. Emotion has its proper place in public speaking, but today the spread of education and the critical character of the radio audience demand solid preparation and sound reasoning if it shall appeal."

CAREER: "Deliberately planning and shaping a career? No, my friend. The career might come, but it's a result, not a goal."

TEACHING: "I am less interested in the facts that you put in to young folks' heads than in what you put into their spirits. The best teaching is not done out of a book, but out of a life."

WORK: "The first duty is work. This is not a cheerless outlook. It presupposes congenial effort."

YOUTH: "We have heard much about jazziness, the frivolity, the irresponsibility of the modern youth. Youth today is pulling at the traces as never before, it is true, but it is also willing to pull a load. Its eagerness contains more eager desire than ever before to be of service."

AMERICA: "America must remain American—youthful, eager, unfettered."

VISION: "We no longer have the right to think in terms of our own generation."

C. E. SOCIETY HAS ENJOYABLE PARTY

CLEAR LAKE, Ore., Nov. 17.—(Special)—The Clear Lake Christian Endeavor society held an enjoyable party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Harold. Miss Marie Harold was hostess for the occasion. Following a series of lively games, refreshments were served. Guests and members present were the Rev. Scheurman, pastor of the Clear Lake church, and his two nieces, the Misses Scheurman who are attending high school in Portland; Cecil Scheurman, Mabel Clement, Hazel Clement, Nellie Massey, Alice Massey, Robert Massey, Claire Colvard, Ralph Dutoit, Harold Dutoit, Mr. and Mrs. Alec Harold and the hostess.

Miss Dorothea Muscott has been ill at the Chapin home with a bad cold for the past week. Miss Muscott is a student at Salem high school.

Little Estelline Smith, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith, has been quite ill for several days.

Marvin Larkins, nine year old school boy, climbed to the top of the interior of the play shed on the Mission Bottom school grounds, Wednesday and fell to the ground. The boy was badly bruised and sprained his ankle.

The business in small seeds in Oregon may easily treble in a few years. The value of the crop will probably reach between one and a half million and two million dollars this year. Red clover is at present the leading item. Other grasses and legumes will swell the total to about $2,000,000.—O. A. C.

CITY'S SERVANT PROBLEM SOLVED IN ITS INCEPTION

Part Time Continuation School In Salem Has Housemaid's Course Included in Its Curriculum of Service

BY GENEVIEVE MORGAN

HAS Salem a servant problem? Do housewives have trouble keeping "hired girls"? And do "hired girls" though there is really no such thing as a free lunch, have trouble with the mistress? It's an old, old story in the big cities, the constant come and go of domestic servants. Few Norahs and Bridgetas but who move from place to place, or at least wish they could. But, Salem a servant problem? Why, Salem's just an overgrown country town, with comparatively few protentious homes, though plenty of prosperous ones. And yet, there is apparently the beginning of a servant problem in this city; the problem is small yet, and already there are signs that it may be stopped before it is lusty enough to make a real noise. That is the opinion of Mrs. Lillian S. Van Loan, who probably comes in contact with both ends of the servant problem more than any other individual in the city.

Training Solution
The solution, or at least part of it, then, lies in training the girls, to better things. What matters how Mrs. Grundy's work is done, so long as the pay check is forthcoming? Something better is just over the hill. Neither can housemaids be made to realize that one must look backward to see that "the distant fields that lend enchantment."

What Causes It
What makes a servant problem? In the first place some housemaids do not know how to set a table correctly. And that makes the housewife employer disgruntled. And other housewives don't know that a salad can be made a work of art and that attractive arrangement is almost as important as having the lettuce leaves thoroughly washed. Such is one phase of the situation.

Another reason, and probably the fundamental one, is that girls who work at housemaids' duties make no effort to train themselves or be trained for the position; they simply use the job as a stepping stone to other fields, to better things. What matters how Mrs. Grundy's work is done, so long as the pay check is forthcoming? Something better is just over the hill. Neither can housemaids be made to realize that one must look backward to see that "the distant fields that lend enchantment."

Goetz Is Buyer Of C. H. Reeves Lots, Jefferson

JEFFERSON, Ore., Nov. 17.—(Special)—John Goetz, of Scrawell Hill has purchased the C. H. Reeves property on South Main street.

Mrs. James Fidler and her daughter, Mrs. James Blackwell, have moved from Santiam Camp to town and have rooms in Mrs. William Bilyen's residence.

Mrs. Chas. McKee was a business visitor in Salem Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Warner and baby, accompanied by their mother, Mrs. Katie Karner, made a trip to Newport recently.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Reeves, and Miss Anna Klampe were dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Reeves at Salem Thursday.

It is worth while, if only a means to an end with some.

It is a well known fact that training stabilizes labor turnover; for where there is satisfactory service, there is little desire to change help. And so it applies to the new course for the housemaid. Of course, the class, which is actually taught by Mrs. Gladys Jensen, head of the home economics department of the Salem high school, does not include all the housemaids in Salem. There are some, both mistress and maid, who do not care to "partake." It is the girls who wish to advance further that are enrolled, trying, unconsciously, to help eradicate the first symptoms of a social "disease" that is usually thought of only in connection with metropolitan areas.

And incidentally, the housemaid's training offered here is the only course of its kind in Oregon, and probably on the coast.

TRAPS QUEEN WILL DEMONSTRATE SKILL

SILVERTON, Ore., Nov. 17.—(Special)—Miss Gladys Reed, holder of a world's trapshooting championship, will be at the Silvertown airport Sunday when the first of a series of Thanksgiving turkey shoots opens. Miss Reed will not compete in the matches but has been brought here by Delbert Reeves post of the American Legion, which is sponsoring the turkey shoots, for the purpose of demonstrating her skill only. If the weather permits Miss Reed plans to fly to Silvertown in her own plane.

Arrangements have been made to shoot from the hangars in case of rain so that bad weather will not have the usual results. Card tables will also be placed in the hangars for those who desire to play. The committee in charge of the shoot will have the turkeys weighed and crated so that everyone will know for what they are shooting.

Annual Bazaar Held On Friday
AUMSVILLE, Ore., Nov. 17.—(Special)—Aumsville's annual Parent-Teacher association bazaar was held today. Chicken dinners were served at noon and at 7 o'clock p. m. The Parent-Teacher association provides hot lunches for the pupils from December 1 to March 1, and the proceeds from this bazaar will help to defray the expense of this program.
