READ THIS FIRST.

Poverty and failure shadowed the little Colonial house which Byrd Browning had just bought, hoping that it would revive Larry's love for her and his interest in a home and chilidren. For Byrd Browning, brought up in a small town, was trying to adapt herself to her fast-moving, magnetic young husband, but she soon discovered that Jack Duncan, his business associate, was plunging him into debt instead of making him rich as he promised. Larry's friends were lively and spendthrift, and Larry, too, was spending his entire income, even the large sums he was continually borrowing from Mr. Hamiltoh, Byrd's father, on useless extravagance and on India Campbell, a former sweetheart of Larry's.

of Larry's.
Pat, Byrd's young sister, who lived enjoy thinking she was.

Pat, Byrd's young sister, who lived with them, was going a rapid pace. Byrd became alienated from Margy Duncan, who was taking steps to divorce her husband, Jack gave a party at the Knickerbocker club, where he was living, and Pat attended it. Mrs. Hamilton, Byrd's mother, who was visiting her daughters, to her horror discovered Pat "under the influence of." (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)
