

MUMMIFIED SLOTH IS FOUND COMPLETE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 2.—(AP)—A ground sloth, classified Nothrotherium, believed to have lived 500,000 to 1,000,000 years ago, has been obtained by the Peabody museum at Yale. It was announced today. The animal is described by Professor Richard S. Lull, director of the museum, as being in an amazing state of preservation. The entire skeleton is intact, the bones being held together by the original tendons and ligaments. Several patches of hide still remain. The hide bears patches of hair, which is dense, rather long and straight, and of a pale yellow.

FROG NOT TADPOLE IN YOUTH IS FOUND

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Frog which emerges directly from the egg as a froglet, omitting the tadpole stage, has been collected for the Field museum of natural history. The report, received from the Crane Pacific expedition was made public today by Stephen C. Simms, director of the museum. The report said the specimens probably are the world's most precocious type of frog. The specimens were collected in Bermuda. It is a tree frog and is believed to have originated in Jamaica. Unlike most creatures of its lowly estate in the animal world, said Karl P. Schmidt, leader of the scientific section of the expedition, the mother frog of the species shows great devotion in guarding the eggs until hatched. Another unusual type of frog was collected in the dungeons beneath the old palace and fortress of Christophe at Cape Haitien. Schmidt wrote. He also reported collecting some rare humming birds, including one so small that a safety-match box is an ample prison for it.

Germans Resent "Foreign Yoke" Says Hindenberg

BERLIN, Jan. 2.—(AP)—President Paul von Hindenberg and Chancellor Hermann Mueller made today's official New Year reception for telling the diplomatic representatives of two score nations that the German people feel entitled to a full measure of liberty. "I would let one girl make a mess of your life!" she said indignantly. He looked at her a little dumbfounded. In the twinkling of an eye, Byrd had changed from a quiet, sweet girl into a pert, mocking young miss. "Well, you did," he answered, soberly. "I did," she said, emphatically with a reckless note in her voice. "I broke my heart over a husband who treated me as a household chattel. I was just a liability hanging around his neck. The good old albatross had nothing on me!" She laughed flippantly. Then she leaned a little closer, as if they were engaged in the most intimate conversation. "I was a darn fool," she said. "Martin saw a young man start toward them from across the room. When he was within a few feet of their table, he wheeled about and shot out of the door. "Why that's the fellow that spoke to you this morning," he said, surprised. "Do you know him?" "My husband!" said Byrd quickly. "I was acting for his benefit!" Martin looked at her mischievously. "He's gaga about you, too," he added, as if he had made the remark to himself. "He would be," she said, scornfully. Martin drove Byrd to the Sem-enoff class.
