Peter's Adventures

EVERY KICK A BOOST "Cluck," cried one of the older turkeys, and at this signal the oldest and fattest turkeys rose into the air and took flight for the opposite shore. "Cluck," cried the leader of the younger turkeys, and then they, too, took to their wings, but as the boy watched he saw one after another drop into the water. "Oh, they will be drowned!" cried he. Gobbler chuckled. "Not they, my boy. Every one of them will reach the other side in safety."

But when these reached the water's edge they seemed in no hurry to go a bit further. Up and down the bank they strutted, stretching their long necks over the water and twenty times Peter was sure they were going to make a start and twenty times he was disappointed. Gobbler was just as silly as his friends of the Wilds. First he would cock his head upon one side and take a long look at the water. Then jerk! jerk! jerk! Up and down would he bob his head so many times and so fast that Peter thought he must have lost his senses. Just as he began to fear Gobbler was never going to stop bobbing, the fellow would cock his head upon the other side and stare again at the water and once more his head bobbed up and down as if it had been fastened on to a string that some one was pulling. All the while that he was acting so queerly, Gobbler kept muttering to himself, and the boy, bending down to listen, discovered that he was saying in an undecided voice: "I think I'll cross. I don't believe I will! I must follow the others! What if I should stay right here! I think I'll fly! I believe I'll kick! I think I'll go over right now!" But the silly Gobbler didn't make a move. Noticing that all the other turkeys on his side of the stream were acting in the same manner at last the boy's curiosity got the better of him. He could stand it no longer. He poked Gobbler in the ribs, and with no gentle finger.

Diet and Health

Answers to Correspondents
NOTICES that most of my talks on reducing seem to be addressed to the ladies, and he wonders if there would be any difference in the advice if it were given to men? He is overweight and his doctor has advised him that he must get some of the fat off because his heart is beginning to be affected by it.

As it is the same thing that puts the excess poundsage on both men and women, G. there is no difference at all in the reducing instructions. In each case there has to be a lowering of the intake of the high energy food; the concentrated starches, sugars and fats. The degree of the lowering will depend upon how much has been over-eaten before. One who is tall and heavy-framed will have to limit his calories so much as one who is short. And one gets a lot of exercise is similarly favored. It isn't your excess fat alone that is bothering your heart (G. it is your unbalanced diet, and it will affect you elsewhere, sooner or later.

Have you our instructions on reducing? We have a pamphlet on the subject from which we are continually having wonderful reports.

Mrs. A.—A scanty, too concentrated acid urine case may cause the burning and irritation and the frequent necessity for voiding which your husband suffers from. You say he is overweight, but he eats very little meat. He needs to eat less of the other acid-forming foods, too, especially the starches, sugars and fats, Mrs. A. In general, he needs to go on a reduction diet. He should drink a large amount of water and take very little salt. (Water is not fattening.) He should also have an examination to see if there is some other reason for his symptoms.

Mrs. E.—Have you had your feet examined? Oftentimes pains in the legs are due to fallen arches; or they may be due to a focus of infection somewhere in your body, such as diseased tonsils, bad teeth, chronic constipation, etc., that is causing toxemia (poison in the blood).

The physiotherapy (baking, diathermy—electric heat—hot compresses, etc.) for the knee will no doubt help it, and you may have to keep it quiet for a while. It might be a good idea to wear a flannel bandage around it. There is virtue in the good old red flannel, or any other kind of flannel.

VIGOROUS BODIES NEED VEGETABLES

Sugar Works Wonders in Flavoring Them

"What do these canned tomatoes need to make them taste better? Sugar added to the tomatoes while they are being heated will wonders in making them enjoyable. Sometimes as much sugar as two tablespoonsful to a quart is needed.

"What's wrong with these peas? They taste flat." Add a teaspoonful of sugar to a can of peas while you are warming them and notice the difference.

"What's the matter with these carrots? They don't taste like carrots." Add a teaspoonful of sugar to the carrots while they are cooking and notice the difference.

"This corn is almost tasteless." Add a teaspoonful of sugar to a can of stewed corn when warming it and notice the improvement. Everyone improves the flavor of canned corn by adding butter, salt and pepper. Up to a teaspoonful of sugar per can will give an even greater improvement.

Add a dash of sugar to the cooking of string beans. It isn't strange that sugar improves all these vegetables. Nature developed sweetness as the perfect flavor and the result is the proper amount of sugar changes flat, unpalatable foods into dishes that can be enjoyed.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

In celebration of the ninth anniversary of prohibition, the members of the North Salem W. C. T. U. met at the home of Mrs. Mason Thursday afternoon. Miss Plemell conducted the devotions and discussed "Giving the Law and some penalties for breaking the law given to 'Jones'."

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without gripping and harm to the system.

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation. If you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 985 C. Marcellus Ave., Manassas, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and prevent the worry and danger of an operation.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by and to break up fevers and colds.
