EGGS, BUTTER SHOW ADVANCE

Market in General, Unlike
Weather, Holds Steady
During Past Week

Unlike the weather, market conditions at least so far as fruits and vegetables go, have remained fairly stable the past week, with market excitement being furnished largely by a sudden but expected advance in eggs and butter. The advance in butterfat and eggs came the middle of the week, with two cents up on the later and a cent on butterfat and butter.

In the line of vegetables, supplies of which are holding out well despite the late season, beets have gone up a trifle to four bunches for 25 cents and turnips are also up to two bunches for 15 cents. Otherwise bunch and root vegetables remain steady.

Lettuce is good and up a little, two heads for 15 cents and 10 cents straight for the larger ones. Cauliflower runs 18 to 20 cents a head, with quality fair.

Brussels sprouts, the tiny cabbage head, are good and around two pounds for 35 cents. Cabbage continues to hold at 6 cents.

Tams are steady at four pounds for 25 cents, with demand fair. Enough tomatoes, imported from California and Mexico, are available to supply the demand. These range from 20 cents to 35 cents a pound.

Bananas are selling cheaper, at four pounds for 25 cents in several stores. In the main these prices prevail when the fruit is getting fairly ripe.

Orange quotations remain the same, as also do apples. Delicious apples are commanding some of the top prices, at around $1.60 a bushel. Spitzenbergs and Jonathans usually bear the same price tags, around 98 cents the box. Roman Beauties, another of the choicer grades, run about $1.25.
