Accident Board Salaries Raised To $4800 a Year

Members of the industrial accident commission are entitled to an increase in salary of $1200 per year, raising them from $3600 to $4800 per year. It was contended Wednesday on the floor of the house, and to back up this contention Representative Bronaugh of Multnomah insisted that his house bill 246 be passed.

After a spirited oration during which it was pointed out that the increase was to come from the commission's funds and would cost taxpayers nothing, that the work has increased many fold since the establishment of the commission, and that in the opinion of everyone concerned the men were worthy of the increased pay, the measure passed the house.

Work is now eight times what it was in 1913, it was stated. The increase in pay amounts to but twelve one-hundredths of one per cent of the receipts from employers.

BILLS SLAUGHTERED RAPIDLY IN HOUSE

A "sympathy league" was formally organized in the house Wednesday, and membership was declared open to all representatives whose bills have been killed by the "indefinite postponement" route.

The membership was considerably swollen Wednesday day, when some 10 bills were accepted into the "do not pass" classification as assigned them by committees.

Some members made last minute efforts to save their "babies," as bills have been dubbed by Robinson of Clatsop, but all efforts were futile when the thumb of the committees were turned downward.

The bills indefinitely postponed are as follows:

H. B. 162 by Mr. Metesker—To amend section 3671, Oregon Laws, increasing juror's fee in courts of record.

H. B. 180, by Mr. Swope—Relating to county prisoners working on county roads.
