Mothers, who take one simple precaution, are seldom worried. ## Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Too Old to Reduce? "Dear Doctor Lulu: I want to tell you how happy I am. I am 60 years old, 5 feet 1 1/2 inches tall, and eight months ago weighed 225 pounds, but I have lost 35 pounds. I used to be so tired and weak and I lost my breath so easily but, thanks to you I have never felt better in my life than I do now.

"I go on one liquid diet day a week which I find helps greatly. I don't exercise outside of my housework and a little gardening. I do wish the lady who wrote that she was 54 and thought she was too old to reduce, could know my experience. I am going to continue, for I have a lot to lose yet.

"MRS. A."

One is never too old to reduce, if it is necessary. Only good can result if it is done scientifically.

Yes, you do have a good deal to lose yet, Mrs. A.—about 70 pounds—but even at one pound a week, the slow rate at which you are going, you will be normal in less than a year and one-half.

Your one low-calorie day a week is a good plan. A still better plan is to always have a low-calorie day follow a too-high calorie day.

Thanks ever so much for your encouraging letter. (The instructions Mrs. A. is following are contained in a pamphlet on the subject, which you may have by following column rules).

Inflammation of the Finger Nails Mrs. F.—You have some sort of infection around your finger nails and you should treat them two or three times a day. It might be a type of ringworm (which is a fungus growth), or an infection from some pus germs. If you cannot see a specialist, try washing them morning and night in as hot water as you can bear, to which one tablespoonful of Lysol to the quart of water has been added. Then you must keep them bandaged.

noon in the Hotel Osburn. Miss Samuel is a former pupil of Mrs. Moses.

Mrs. John Shipp will entertain the members of the Ever-Ready Birthday club in her home at 1630 Saginaw street. Mrs. Florence Shipp and Mrs. Ernestine Loveland will be the honor guests of the afternoon.

$12,370,000 FOR NAVY IS APPROVED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Without passing final judgment the senate today accepted a recommendation of its appropriations committee to include $12,370,000 in the navy department supply bill for beginning the new cruiser construction program. The amendment offered by the committee to begin work on the warships was approved by the senate without a record vote but adjournment was taken before a final vote on the measure in which the amendment was included.

Of the total amount approved, $200,000 would be available at once to begin five of the 15 cruisers authorized earlier this month. The rest of the money would be available July 1, 1929, to begin another set of five cruisers and one airplane carrier and to carry on the work of the five to be started immediately.

After the navy bill is passed the house must act upon the additions for beginning the cruiser program. Representative Brantley of Illinois, chairman of the house naval affairs committee, had indicated that he will make an attempt to have the house increase the amount recommended by the senate.

The navy department has estimated that about $21,000,000 would be needed for the first and second years work but the amount approved by the senate is considered sufficient to meet the construction program as laid down by the time clause of the cruiser bill.

The senate today also adopted an amendment to the naval measure to provide for the withdrawal of American marines from Nicaragua by July 1. Another vote may be taken on this provision tomorrow.

LULL IN GAS WAR IS NOTED FRIDAY

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 23.—(AP)—While price slashing competition between filling station operators raged up and down the coast yesterday, Portland was one of the few localities where peace prevailed, all dealers holding to the agreement of the Portland retail gasoline dealers' protective association to pump gasoline at 1 1/2 cents a gallon. Because of the holiday, many autos were on the road and the local gasoline dealers reported marked increase in volume of business over the past few days.

Seattle's 500 filling stations entered the 18th day of the warfare that has forced dealer quotations to the lowest levels in 20 years and is said to have forced more than 100 stations to close owing to the low margin of profit. Many of these places are expected to reopen when the price is again stabilized. Prices yesterday ranged from 10 to 15 1/2 cents a gallon, with a few stations reported selling at nine cents. Neither wholesale or retail prices had dropped since early Thursday. The usual tank wagon price was 12 1/2 cents with a rebate of three cents a gallon.

Other minimum prices quoted in coast cities were: Vancouver, Wash., 11 cents; Stockton, Cal., 10 to 15 1/2 cents; San Mateo county, Cal., 12, 15 and 17 cents; Woodland, Cal., 15 cents.

Peter's Adventures

THE MYSTERIOUS CALL The cry came from not far behind him and the boy whirled around so suddenly that with his arm he hit Miss Parrot's beak.

For a moment Miss Parrot was so angry that she could not speak. Then she flew at Peter with uplifted claw screeching as hard as she could.

"Aaaaarrr! What did you do that for? You made me bite my tongue. I'll teach you to go about bumping folks like that. I do believe you are just like all the rest of the Two-Legs, after all—thinking of nobody but yourself."

Thornton Washington, 83, in a hospital here.

He was a great-great grandson of Samuel Washington, younger brother of the first president.

John T. Washington came to California in 1862 and since has resided in this state and Nevada. For 25 years he was in the newspaper business and spent the last six years delving into his ancestry. His only surviving relative is Mrs. Daniel Delahanty, a sister of New York.

Before she could strike, however, Peter had backed away, holding one arm before his face to protect it from the angry parrot's blows.

"For goodness sake, don't be such a crosspatch, Miss Parrot," cried he. "I didn't mean to hit you. That voice calling my name startled me, so that I didn't know what I was doing. Do you know who that was calling me? It was my mother. Why in the world should she be back there in the woods, and what does she want me for?"

"Ask me something easy!" declared Miss Parrot, tossing her head, but slowly putting down her claw. "Being a Two-Legs there is no telling what she will do, nor why."

"Listen! She is calling again. And yes, as sure as I am born, she is coming toward us. Here is where I take myself off. She might try to put a chain around my leg."

"Nonsense," said the boy. Then as the voice once more cried his name, he answered: "Coming, mother, coming; but where are you?"

"Right here, Peter!" came the answer, and then there stepped out from behind a great tree not his mother at all, but a green and yellow parrot. Both the boy and Miss Parrot gave a cry of surprise and clutched at each other for support.

"Geewillikens! Was it you who called me?" stammered Peter, and "How did you learn to talk like a Two-Legs?" demanded Miss Parrot, when she had a little recovered from the shock of seeing the fellow who was evidently no stranger to her as he was to Peter.

"I have known you all these many months, and that is the first time I knew you could ever understand the language of the Human-much less speak it."
