

BRIDGE UNIT IS PARTIALLY DONE

Liberty Street Opening to Await Completion of Big Fill

One more unit of the city's extensive bridge program will be completed today or Saturday when the pouring of concrete for the culvert over South Mill creek which is part of the Liberty street bridge project, will be ended.

The bridge which comprises the south end of this, the most extensive project of the entire bridge program, is completed with the exception of the hand rails.

However, it will yet be a long time before the bridge connecting the divided sections of Liberty street can be used, for there is much work yet to be done on the fill which extends south from Trade street to the end of the bridge just north of the Oregon Electric crossing.

Rope Drive to Go

A part of this fill had been made before construction of the bridge and culvert started, but it must be extended over the culvert and up to the level of Trade street. Arrangements were made several weeks ago for the removal of the rope drive of the Oregon-Washington Water Service company at this point, but this has not yet been done.

The Liberty street project is to cost the city $77,875. The contract was let to the Holdener Construction company and work has progressed throughout the winter as steadily as weather conditions permitted.

A contract for the Church street project, the next one on the list, will probably be let at the city council meeting March 18, the council having called for bids on this job last week.

ELSINORE SHOW READY

Phonophone Process Marvel of Scientific Developments SOUND PLACED ON FILM

Saturday marks an epochal day in the history of the Elsinore theatre for it is then that this outstanding showhouse will add to its modern equipment of features to its equipment—a phonophone, newest of the new in the realm of motion picture equipment.

What is a phonophone? How does it operate? Two years ago the answer to these pertinent inquiries would have stamped the most astute theatre manager but today phonophone, a product of an age of marvelous mechanical improvement, is an established product having won its way to the front ranks of the devices used to bring sound to the theatre audience.

The principle of phonophone is rooted in the fact that any sound sets up vibrations in the air. Device an instrument which will record these vibrations on a width of film accompanying the picture reproduction of scenes coming before the camera's eye and thus the basic mechanism for the showing of a phonophone movie.

ADMINISTRATION OF TARIFF IS PROBED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP)—A series of changes designed to improve the administration of the tariff law, including a broadening of sections applying to the basis of valuation for assessment of ad valorem duties, were submitted to the house ways and means committee today by Ogden Mills, under-secretary of the treasury.

Mr. Mills confined his recommendations to "an improvement of the present basis of foreign valuation rather than the general substitution of American values or some other alternative as has been proposed to the committee."

The weakness of the present system, he said, appeared to be not in sections 492, of the act which directs appraisal on United States value where foreign value cannot be satisfactorily ascertained, but in the reappraisal proceedings which may result in determination of a value which cannot be properly verified by treasury officials.

Under present procedure with regard to reappraisal, Mills declared, a customs court, in an appealed case, might decide that a foreign value did exist even though the appraiser could not determine such value "to his satisfaction." As a result, he added, the duties finally determined and paid would be based on a foreign value "proved to the court the submission of affidavits which treasury agents were unable to verify."

HOUSE CLEARS OWN CALENDAR

Steelheads and Vice-Governor Share Honors in Debate Thursday

Although a run of steelheads coming unexpectedly into the house, combined with a more or less unneeded waste of time on the lieutenant-governorship proposal gummed things up considerably, rapid action on a number of measures saw the calendar cleared in time for adjournment at dinner time Thursday. The long awaited night session failed to transpire, although such a meeting is expected for tonight, and legislative action on the calendar items for this evening.

Winnalows Fight Bill

Before going back on the table again, however, the bill was amended to read "January 1 to March 1" instead of December 1 to April 15. Representative Winnalows, Tillamook county commercial fish supporter, then declared that the measure as amended would accomplish nothing. He has consistently fought this type of legislation all during the session. Winnalows was backed by Robison and Metzker.

NOW PLAYING TODAY & SAT. RIN-TIN-TIN. In his new Talkie "Million Dollar Collar"

There are approximately 2000 dogs in Marion county. This estimate is based on statistics obtained from the county clerk's office here Thursday afternoon at the close of the annual "registration period" for dogs. Three hundred and fifty-six dog licenses were issued Thursday and approximately 100 letters were received inclosing money and asking for licenses.

During the period from February 16 to 27, inclusive, a total of 1116 licenses were issued. With Thursday's totals this brings the figure up to 1672 for the last half of February. It is estimated that there are enough other dogs scattered here and there throughout the county to bring the grand total up to at least 2000. This is an average of one dog for every 25 persons in the county.
