

MORE SOLDIERS PATROL BORDER

Reinforcements Ordered
South to Protect U. S.
Lives and Property

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—Apprehension of American residents along the international border over the safety of themselves and their property as a result of revolutionary activities in Mexico today prompted the movement of additional troops to the border.

The detachment, composed of a company of infantry and a troop of cavalry were ordered to Naco, Arizona, and to guard the water supply of Bisbee, a city about eight miles north of the border.

No other troop movement at present is contemplated, American government officials said.

The northward progress of former President Calles, who is in command of the federal troops advancing to meet rebel forces in the state of Durango, is being watched closely by officials here. The rebels appear to be withdrawing from the south and concentrating in Durango and in the adjoining state of Chihuahua. There are extensive American mining and ranching properties in the states now controlled by the rebels, but thus far no damage has been reported to American property.

Some Americans have left mines and ranches in those states and have sought safety in the United States.

A decisive battle in Durango or Chihuahua is believed in Washington to be impending and it is the opinion here that such an encounter would disclose the strength of the revolutionists.

PLANE PROPELLER BROKEN BY HAWK

CHICO, Cal., Mar. 12.—(AP)—Victim of an unusual airplane accident, flying Cadet R. G. Hamilton, R. F. C., was forced down in a plowed field near Cuna, 6 miles north of here today, with the propeller of his pursuit plane shattered, the result of an aerial encounter with a hawk.

Cadet Hamilton, attached to the British airplane carrier H. M. S. Hermes, now at San Diego, was flying from that city to Vancouver, B. C., when the freak accident occurred. The plane had passed over Chico, he told questioners, when a large bird, apparently a hawk, flew into the whirling propeller. There was a crash, he said, and the bird and propeller were no more.

The British aviator succeeded in landing his plane without serious damage although he suffered a broken thumb in the attempt. A new propeller has been ordered from San Francisco and he expects to continue his flight tomorrow.

William Lafferty Dies in Corvallis

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Corvallis for William Patterson Lafferty, former business man of that city and for 30 years a resident there. Mr. Lafferty died suddenly Sunday morning from heart trouble.

Mr. Lafferty came to Corvallis in 1899 opening a general merchandise store. In 1915, 1917 and 1921 he represented Benton county in the state legislature. Prior to the consolidation of the Gazette and Times he was editor of the first-named paper for a short time. Mr. Lafferty was active in the Presbyterian church, serving as a clerk of the session for more than 20 years. On two occasions he was sent as representative to the General Assembly of the denomination.

No More Politics Former Vice President Returns Home With His Famous Pipe—To Resume Bank Chairmanship

Charles Gates Dawes and Mrs. Dawes on their arrival in Chicago.

By ROY J. GIBBONS
CHICAGO, Mar. 12.—Charles Gates Dawes, private citizen, is home.

He stepped off a Washington, D. C., train with Mrs. Dawes, blew a cloud of smoke from his underslung pipe at a group of waiting reporters, and spoke: "Now don't think I'm hard," he said, and a grim smile twisted around his pipe stem, "but I don't want to say a word about politics."

The ex-vice president and his wife were obviously glad to get back to Chicago. General Dawes was eager to tell that he was going straight to the Central Trust company and assume again his old job as chairman of the board of directors.

Back to Desk
"I'm going right back to my desk in the bank now and preside over a board meeting for the first time in four years," the former vice president said, as he left the station.

Again the smile, this time not grim.
"Are you going to run for the United States senate?"

"Never."
The Dawes eyes grew cold blue. "I'm leaving Chicago March 28 for Santo Domingo, where, at the request of the president of that country, I am heading a commission of my own choosing to advise them on finances," Dawes vouchsafed.

Although he did not say so, out and out, the former vice president conveyed the impression to his reportorial listeners that he is not through as a factor in national politics.

There was no time out for social palaver for General Dawes. He went directly to the bank, where the office of chairman of the board has been vacant since he resigned to assume his vice presidential duties. There the board of directors went through the formality of Mike, the general's yaller dog, yowling with joy one minute, whimpering with affection the next.

Charles Gates Dawes, private citizen, was home. And the very gladdest one to see him, if appearances are any criterion, was Mike.

And the general knocked out his underslung pipe in honor of the occasion and tweaked Mike's ears.

From the entrance door appeared Adam Bickley, a large negro retainer.

"Welcome back sir; welcome back general," he chuckled.

Getting there ahead of the trouble

DURING the afternoon of March 17, 1928, an alarm bell rang in a telephone test station. This meant that a puncture had been made in the air-tight sheath of a busy inter-city cable. The men on duty knew that the injury was somewhere within 50 miles.

Highly developed locating devices were instantly applied and in sixty-five minutes the trouble spot was located. By 7:15 in the evening, before the break in the sheath had affected service on any of the 248 pairs of wires in the cable, the repairs had been made without one conversation being interrupted. This special alarm system is one of the many mechanical and electrical wonders developed by Bell System engineers to guard telephone conversations.

Automatic warning signals, electrical locating devices, constant testing of all switchboard apparatus and circuits—these are some of the ceaseless efforts that so effectively reduced interruptions to service on Bell lines in 1928. There is no standing still in the Bell System.

Honeymoon Is Resumed After Halt

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., March 12.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. George Gillespie resumed here today their honeymoon which was interrupted two weeks ago when Robert J. Thorne, the bride's father and former president of Montgomery Ward and company, suggested that they separate for a time to find if they were really in love. Mr. and Mrs. Thorne were returning to Chicago.

The former Miss Thorne met Gillespie, described as an "atmosphere" cowboy, while she was on vacation at an Arizona dude ranch. Two weeks ago Sunday they eloped and were married in Phoenix. Her parents sought a warrant for Gillespie's arrest on a charge of kidnaping but officers declined to serve it when they found Mrs. Gillespie had given her age as 21. The bride returned a ring to a Chicago business man to whom she had been engaged up to the time of her elopement.

But the girl's parents were not satisfied, believing it might be western romance but not love and asked Gillespie through a mutual friend to separate from his bride for a time to see if he could find a job. He obtained one as a motion picture cowboy here a few days later. Today Mrs. Gillespie joined him here and they began keeping house in a small apartment without servants.
