SCOUT LEADER TO PUSH PLANS

Development of Polk County Field First Objective of O. P. West

Organization of a stronger Boy Scout interest in Polk county will be one of the first objectives of O. P. West, recently appointed scoutmaster for Cascade area of the Boy Scouts of America, Mr. West said Monday. Although Mr. West spent a part of last week making a preliminary survey of his new field, he has just assumed full work here.

Salem and Marion county Scout work is getting along fairly well, the new director feels, while work in the Polk towns has of necessity been somewhat neglected. Polk county with Marion county comprises Cascade Area, with headquarters in Salem. Mr. West plans to devote the major portion of his time until the first of June to the Polk county troops. At the present time there are 585 scouts in the entire county, 263 of whom belong to the Salem troops.

Scouting Needs—The great need of the scout movement in the outside towns, in both counties, seems to be leadership, and especially trained leadership, and with this in mind, Mr. West is already making plans to hold a scoutmaster's training school to teach leaders just those things and in that way in which the boys themselves should be taught. Such a school will be open to leaders in both counties and will last for 12 evening sessions. At least 16 men will be needed to make the school a success. Whether the school will be held in Marion or Polk county has not yet been determined.

Lions Club Great Help—Mr. West has already met with the leaders in Dallas, Independence and Monmouth and expressed himself as particularly pleased with the backing the Independent Lions club has voted to scout-dom there.

A moment's now on foot under the direction of Rex Sanford of the camp committee, to secure a local site for the Boy Scout summer camp ground. One site has been found which meets the needs and should this be secured, it is probable the council will acquire it as a permanent camp.

The new scout leader has been in scout work for the past eight years, first at Portland and for the last two years at Corvallis.

Howard Clarifies Boundary Board Laws in Statement Sent Throughout Oregon

House bills 387 and 389 referring to district boundary boards were called to the attention of these groups Monday in a communication prepared by C. A. Howard, state superintendent. Both bills were approved at a recent legislative session.

The state superintendent of schools said he issued the communication because of conflicting statements printed in the press recently with relation to the operation of the new laws.

"An important feature of these measures," read the communication, "is the placing of transportation of high school students from territory outside of high school districts under the supervision of the district boundary board."

Howard bill 387 provides that "no route which extends beyond the limits of the district in competition with the route of another like district shall be established for the transportation of high school pupils until it has been approved by the district boundary board of the county or counties in which it is to be established."

"House bill 389 eliminates transportation from the list of items on which per capita cost of high school operation is based. High schools that transport non-residents will include a statement covering the expense in the report on which allotment of the county high school tuition fund is based. Such statement shall be reviewed by the district boundary board of the county in which the pupil resides and such amount shall be allowed for transportation as in its opinion is reasonable."

Board Clothed With Power—"Taken together, these two measures clothe the district boundary board with authority to completely control the transportation of high school students who live outside of high school districts at the expense of county high school tuition fund. The district boundary board is expected to exercise control in the interest of those who are most deeply concerned. These include the high school students who are to be transported and the taxpayers of non high school territory whose money will pay the bill."

"It is these students and these taxpayers that the district boundary board represents in transportation negotiations. The responsibility is placed upon this board of seeing to it that transportation lines from two or more high schools do not cover the same territory, that expensive bus lines are not operated into territory where there is no actual need of transportation, and that transportation costs are reasonable."

Community Wishes Urged—"Within reasonable limits, the wishes of the people of any particular community should be taken into consideration in deciding which of two or more proposed transportation routes may run into that community. For example of the people of the community wish to send their boys and girls to a well organized and well equipped high school in preference to one that is not so well organized and equipped, a transportation line from the stronger school should be admitted, if available, unless the expense is unreasonable."

"Let me point out that it was the legislature which passed this bill that the district boundary board should be placed in a position to protect the interests of those who live outside of high school districts, both students and taxpayers."

Construction of an $18,000 automobile building to be leased to the Salem Automobile Co. was announced Monday afternoon by T. M. Hicks who said work would start at once on the new structure to be located at 435 North Commercial street on a lot purchased by Mr. Hicks a year ago.

Pugh of Salem, and Edward H. of Portland; by the following grandchildren, Mrs. Inez Cable, Allen Pugh, Lora Locke, Kenneth and Virginia Pugh; and by four great grandchildren. CROWD OUT TO HEAR PASTOR RAP LINDSEY

A large crowd appeared at the Calvary Baptist church Sunday night to hear Rev. W. Earl Cochran give his views on "Was Judge Lindsey Interests?" in the Homes of Our City or in His Share of the Gate Receipts?" Mr. Cochran told his audience that Judge Lindsey's "companionate marriage ideas belittle the sacredness of the home and the books the judge has written on the subject tend to poison the minds of youth with loose conceptions of the marriage vows."

Remarks on the former juvenile judge's recent appearance in Salem preceded the main sermon, "Anchored," in which Mr. Cochran spoke of the many "anchors" a Christian has to keep from drifting with the tide of the world.

Music for the service included a duet by W. T. Jerks and Mrs. Dale Taylor; a solo by Mr. King, a prison reform worker; and a trumpet solo by Eldon Foster.

The second week of the revival campaign being conducted at the church by Mr. Cochran will open tonight, with the subject to be "Why Jones Went to Hell from Salem." Meetings will be held every night this week except Saturday. Special music features each service.
