

FOOTWEAR FOR LADY IN COLOR

Outfit Must be Correctly Matched to Afford Proper Outfit

For spring and summer there is no mistake about it—footwear for the well-dressed woman must harmonize with the other articles of fashionable apparel offered by modistes and milliners.

And no pains have been spared to produce new models in fabrics and leathers, shades and designs that will make it possible to carry out this fastidious note.

So many different patterns and materials are shown that we are at a loss to know which comes first in fashion's favor. But perhaps the most interesting are the crepe de chine and beautiful, colorful fabrics that are featured for evening wear during the coming season.

As the season approaches kid looms upon the horizon as of outstanding importance. Tones of beige and brown are perhaps in the limelight, although various other costume shades and black are represented. All brown shades are still popular, and Lido and the sand tones are also in this group.

Sport shoes also appear in black and white and then more striking combinations in lighter greens and sulphur shades which seem to be considered the correct accent for white, green and deeper yellow tones.

Among designs there is the greatest variety, the models ranging from high, one-strap types to instep straps, cut-outs, shank models and step-ins.

With the collection to choose from—and many more—it is predicted that the modern woman will have no trouble living up to the latest dictate of fashion which prescribes that she shall have not only beautiful shoes—but shoes in fine harmony with her costume.

M'LELLANS GIVEN BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

NORTH SANTIAM, March 20.—(Special)—Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McClellan were much surprised Sunday when a number of relatives came to spend the day, in honor of Mrs. McClellan's birthday, bringing beautiful gifts and good things to add to an impromptu dinner. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Hilbert Hanson of Portland, Mr. and Mrs. Lyn Nell and children, Robert and Pauline of Silverton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Martin of Aumsville, Mr. and Mrs. T. Y. McClellan, Mr. and Mrs. Paul McClellan and son, Gene, of West Stayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Fabrique have traded in their Ford touring car and a light Ford delivery car on a Ford sedan.

F. E. Bicknell of Washougal, Wash., agent for Wood Brothers Threshing company of the Salem and Portland branch, took dinner recently with Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Bond, Mr. Bicknell and Mr. Bond worked for some time on the same ranch at Astoria, Wash.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammer went to Salem Sunday to visit Mrs. Hammer's brother, Everett Condit, who is in the Salem hospital suffering the effects of an operation for the removal of a growth in his throat.

Mrs. Jessie Arehart, and children Jessie Marie, Doris and Ladona, went to Lebanon Saturday to visit Mrs. Arehart's son, Herman Reister, who has recently built a new house there.

M. R. Hammer is overseer of the construction of a new house on the Scofield ranch.

Mrs. Kester, and son Clare who is a college student at Eugene, visited Saturday and Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Browning.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Porter and Mrs. Ethel Gibbons visited Sunday at the McLaughlin home.

Chicken Pox on Wane, Reported

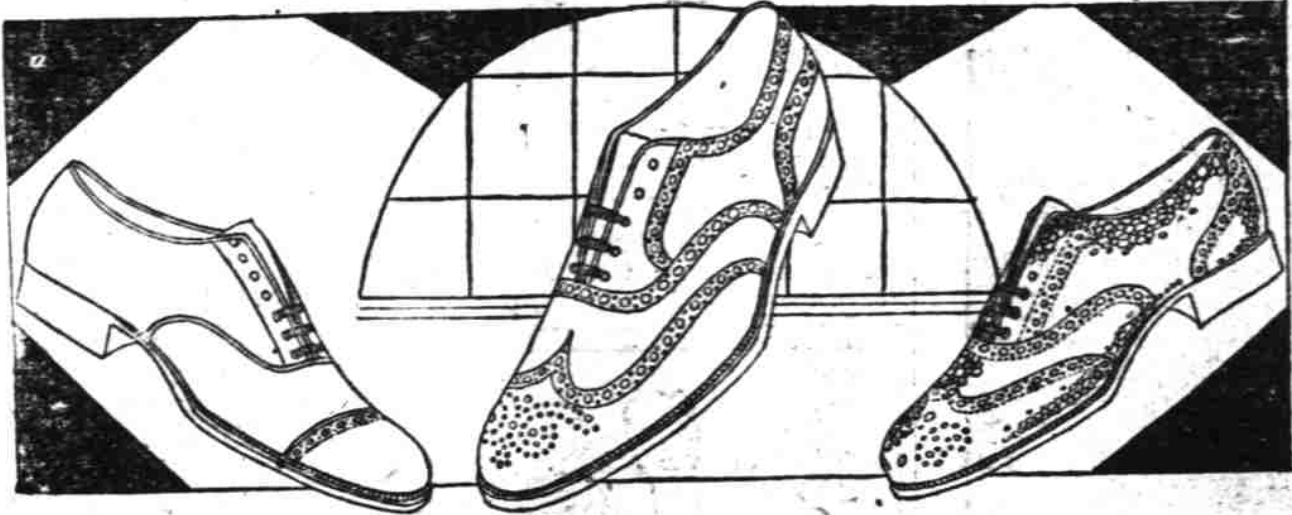

LAKE LABISH, March 20.—(Special)—The Perkins-Maplewood school, of which Miss Thelma Barnett is teacher, is recovering from a light attack of chicken pox. This week will see the return of all absent pupils, as the ten day limit on this childish malady will have expired.

COLOR IN THE KITCHEN
Hours in a colorful kitchen fly by on magic wings! So what is to prevent our turning dead-white cabinets into attractive shelves of ivory or dove-gray lined with a soft, rich orange shade or some other favorite color that harmonizes with the floor covering and woodwork?

Then the crockery. One by one, out should go the uninteresting specimens and in come odd-shaped pieces that are pretty with our orange linings—several moss green crocks; some in little brown jug colors; perhaps a piece or two in a deep orange red tone.

This transformation from the drab characterless kitchen to the vivid, cheerful one is such a simple little trick to perform, after all.

Two-Tone Footwear For Spring Is Shown

Light-Colored Tans Will Be Popular Oxfords This Spring for Wear of Men

Many fascinating new men's shoe models are seen on display in leading shops this spring. Sport models are gayer than ever before, and many new styles have been developed in unusual materials, such as lizard and water snake, certainly novel for men's shoes.

Lighter toned browns and tans will be seen most frequently this spring. It has been predicted that these colors will comprise almost half the fashion for clothing and street wear.

TWO-TONE COMING BACK
A popular model for spring and summer evening wear is the black-and-white combination sports oxford, with leather sole and heel.

Men are showing a tendency to wear two-tone sports footwear for street and business wear. With the advent of warmer weather, men will turn to sports shoes and tan shoes and combinations (mostly black and white, tan and white) and the lighter shades in the lighter weight fabrics, particularly the lighter wood tones.

There are smart new lasts and patterns this spring, including calfskin oxfords that are tip stitched and perforated, with fancy quarter stitchings and perforations.

COLOR CHANGES FOR SPRING HOSIERY

Fancy heel styles—an outstanding feature of the previous season have gradually assumed a place in the staples and their popularity promises to continue, and about the only style change to be noticed in the hosiery field is a change in color.

Sunburn, beige and light and medium brown shades predominate in the colors recommended. Light and dark gunmetal will have their place, but the pink tones such as pearl blush and flesh pink are omitted from spring's list—as is also the yellow shade that formerly appeared in champagne.

vogue this spring as well as moccasin sport shoes. Tan shoes with wing tips, swagger black brogues, and patent leather shoes with cloth tops are all in style.

Fashion experts declare that black shoes may be worn in the afternoon with blue and grays that will appear in men's suitings. With grays shot with blue and lighter blues (not powder blues) lighter-toned browns and tans are suitable for business and street wear. The black and white combination sports oxfords go well with white or light flannels. The fancy wing-tip one-color tan brogue is considered correct for wear with some reddish mixtures in tans and light browns that are being introduced from England as high style notes in spring and summer suitings for informal wear.

PAINTING IN STRAIGHT LINES

So much of the painted furniture is decorated with fine line stripings that it seems none but the steady hand of an expert can supply.

The home-painter can obtain the same even, true result by the use of adhesive tape applied to the furniture in even rows that allow a thin line of space between. Then paint over the tape; when dry, remove the strips, and you will find the lines are almost perfect.

TUCK-INS POPULAR

We do hope you are so formed that the tuck-in blouse is becoming! It is especially chic just now and is considered a definite part of many of the smartest ensembles and short jacket suits.

In the midst of so many sweetly feminine styles this boyish hint is a welcome accent.—Not that we are inclined to be mannish, however. We love the feminine frills. But again—being frankly human—we like change and variety.

WESTERN AUTO SOON TO HOLD BIRTHDAY

150 Stores Now in Chain Which Began in '16; Growth Rapid

The Western Auto Supply company, in making arrangements for a birthday party that celebrates the 13th anniversary of the founding of the concern in 1916, is reversing the usual custom of being the recipient of gifts on the occasion and is inaugurating a celebration sale at all of its more than 150 stores.

From the modest start with one store in 1916, the Western Auto Supply company grew to an organization of twenty stores in 1928 and the business increased to an annual worth of about $400,000. The business was then extended to all of the large cities and towns in the west and grew with such rapidity that the 167th store was recently opened.

Mr. Peperdine, president and founder of the company, had had some previous experience in the automobile accessory business in a middle western state and came to the coast with a thorough realization of the value of advertising and the friends that could be made by selling merchandise at as low a cost as possible consistent with quality and standing absolutely back of every sale that was made. This policy has continued throughout the entire growth of the company.

NOVEL COVERS FOR RADIATORS

Today it seems no self-respecting radiator shows itself without a becoming costume. The shield may take the form of a box-like cover with perforated panels, or a low screen placed before the radiator may serve the purpose.

In a bedroom where a small radiator is centered before double windows it may be camouflaged by a shallow draped dressing table which fits over the heating apparatus. A sheet of asbestos should be applied to the under side of the able to protect the top from excessive heat, and a sensible fabric such as glazed chintz, cretonne or sunfast cotton taffeta is best for the flouncing.

TIME TO EAT IS DEFINED

Appetite Not Always Safe Guide to Right Amounts

EXCESS TO BE SHUNNED

By STATE BOARD OF HEALTH
Eating is stimulated by the hunger instinct. Individuals tend to rely on it, and eat when hungry what they want at that time. One instinctively feels that this is right. Actually it is not for several reasons. Appetite may be a safe guide for a perfectly well person, but it is not always so. The sensation of hunger is caused by the contraction of an empty stomach. This is usually associated with the need of the body cells for nourishment. Unusual conditions may cause the stomach to contract and cause a feeling of hunger when the body cells are sufficiently nourished. The opposite of this may be the case. The stomach may be prevented from contracting as usual, and no sensation of hunger will appear, even though the body cells are much in need of food.

FADS NOT TO BE FOLLOWED

The reliability of appetite is in proportion to the good functioning of the body. An appetite that does not attract attention by being noticeably more exacting than usual may be allowed to choose a general mixed diet. It is safer to follow appetite than to adopt fads of any sort. However, an appetite that is in any way peculiar should be investigated. Lack of appetite, an inordinate appetite and a craving for certain articles of food to the omission of others may be due to numerous causes.

The needs of the diet should be understood in order to be able to satisfy both it and body demands at the same time. Since eating is a voluntary matter, although usually suggested by demands of appetite, it should be possible to provide the digestive tract with food which it can take care of successfully. If too much food is eaten the best that can be hoped for is that the alimentary tract will reject the excess before attempting to deal with it. The worst that can happen is a gradual impairment of health due to cumulative effects of the indigestion of an excess of food. It is thought that the degenerative diseases have some relation to total excess of food.

DIET LINKED WITH INDIGESTION

Indigestion may result from eating certain articles of food. Too much fats or sweets is more likely to cause symptoms than too much protein. The meal containing proper proportions of the food elements is not only desirable for nutrition, but for the satisfactory working of the digestive tract. Indigestion may result from eating the wrong kind of foods even though they contain adequate nutrition. The eating of too concentrated food with little bulk, is the commonest error of this sort. It leads to imperfect elimination and constipation which is a common cause of symptoms of indigestion. An equally serious dietary error is the eating of too much irritating food. A meal of bran, for example, is not safe, although bran is often desirable in the diet since it gives bulk.

Regularity with respect to meal time is quite important, for the rhythmic action of the intestinal tract, at certain hours every day, is a valuable adjunct to digestion. It is better to eat at one's regular hour, even if a little is taken, than to occasionally omit meals entirely.

NELSON ASKS THAT HIGH WATCH ACTIONS

Suspension From State Group Held Bitter Aftermath to Student Fracas

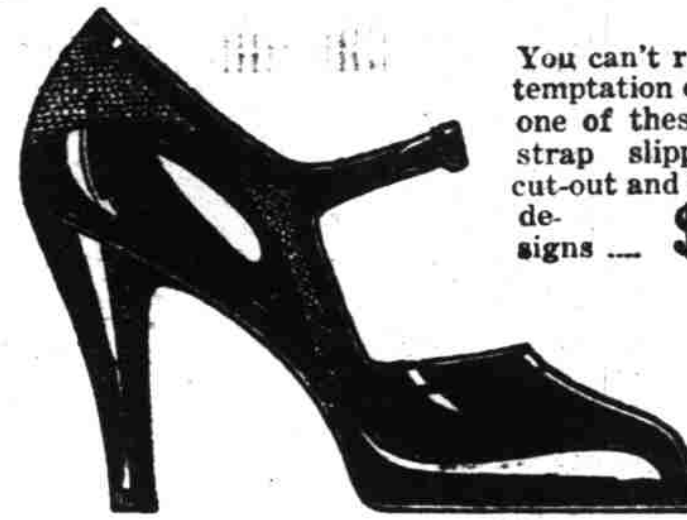

Pointing to the suspension of Salem high school from the state athletic association as a bitter aftermath, Principal J. C. Nelson impressed upon the students in assembly Tuesday morning the folly of appeal to force and asked that, instead of complaining and making further demonstration of violence, the students try to find why the rest of the state is prone to cast aspersions on the local high school and, so far as possible, to correct the prevailing opinion. Mr. Nelson reviewed briefly the history of the riot following the district championship finals last March 8 and told of receiving word by mail Tuesday morning that the local school was suspended from the state association for the remainder of the 1928-29 season as a result of the affair.

Students Not Defended
Mr. Nelson did not defend action of the 200 or fewer high school students who participated in the riot, however he did state that he felt he should have been told that he was standing trial when asked to appear before the board of control last Saturday afternoon. The meeting was called solely under color of restoring harmony, with R. R. Turner of Dallas and W. E. Kirk of Oregon City also appearing in that spirit. Mr. Nelson says he believes the students have learned a lesson and that despite dismal looks at first, they made a gallant effort to be good sports and ended the meeting with a good strong high school yell and song.
