

HOME PLANNING IS LARGE NEED

Proper Furniture Grouping Requisite to Success of Entire Scheme

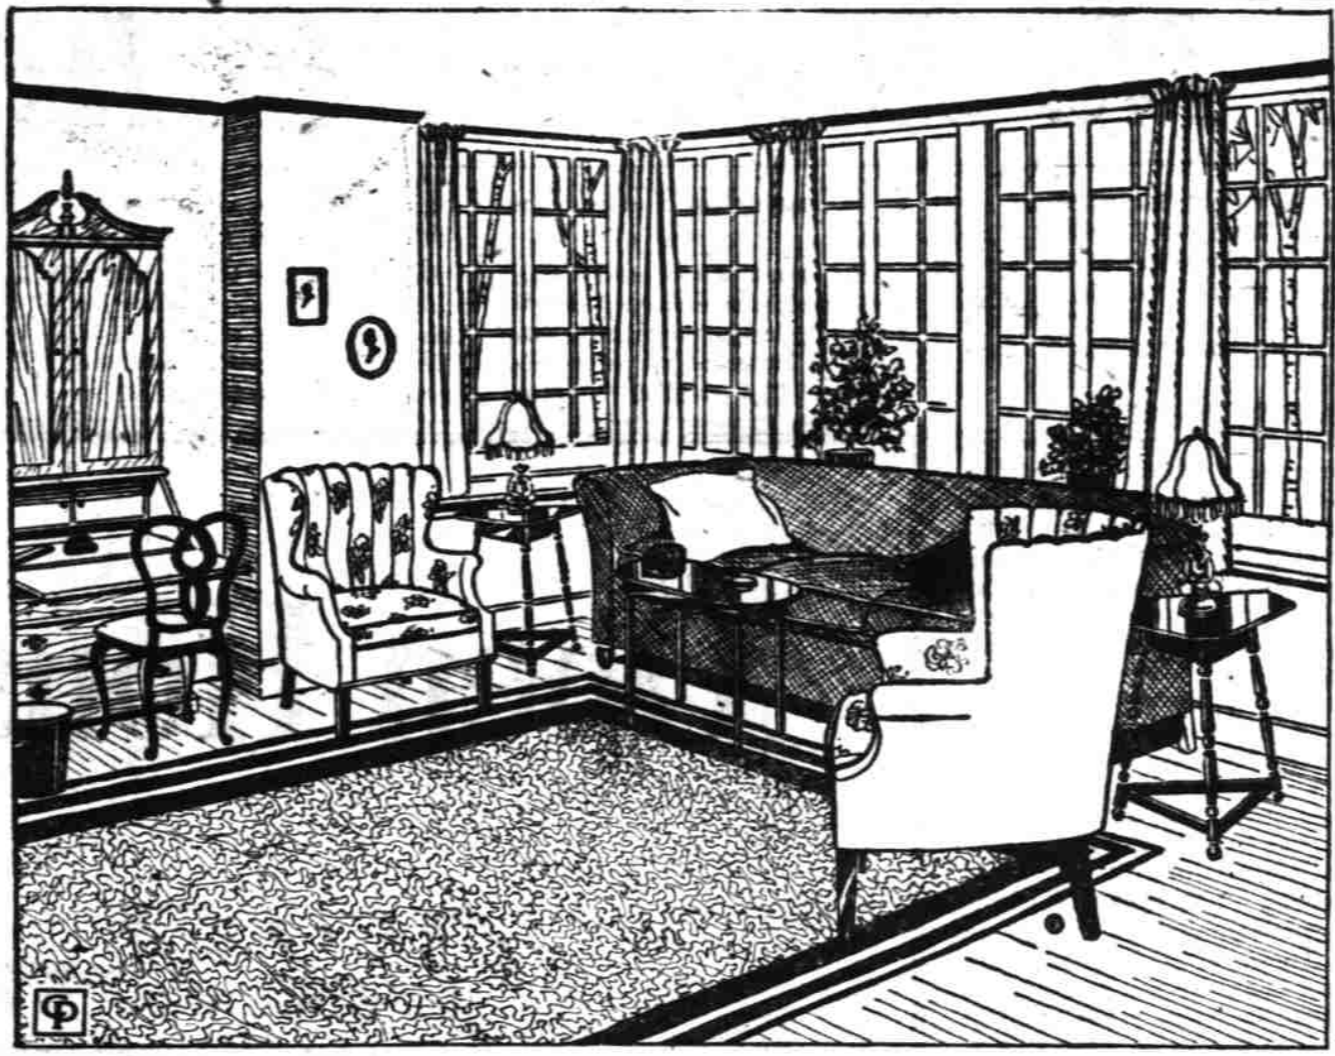

By HILDA HUNT
Almost all rooms of moderate size require at least two separate furniture groupings to preserve the balance. This is necessitated by the location of the windows and fireplace, as well as the dominating pieces of furniture. Where there are large windows in a group, as illustrated, there is a special need for a well-planned arrangement, or otherwise the gorgeous effect of such windows will be entirely lost, or worse yet, turned into a barn-like atmosphere.

Large window space like this is a decided addition to any room, whether it be in a city or the country. Not only does it provide a delightful outlook, but it is the means of furnishing adequate daylight, which is at a premium everywhere. The wise decorator hangs very transparent glass curtains directly against the windows so as not to shut out the light, but which, at the same time, discounts any glare that is equally as harmful as is too little light.

In this room we have the situation of grouping furniture around the French windows at one end of the room and staging a pleasant scene about the fireplace, which is directly opposite. Both of these two centers are equally important, and so dependent on each other. During the colder months of the year all eyes are necessarily centered in the fireplace. But the desire to be able to look outdoors, either at a storm or sunshine, is true of the city as well as the country.

Informality is the keynote of this room, with its spacious green denim covered sofa, that is flanked by two walnut end tables of interesting shape. Chinese lamps in duplicate are a charming decorative note, and their light is sufficient for illumination and reading. Matching chairs of the colonial barrel type are a delightful addition, not only because of their comfort, but because of their colorful tan and green chintz covers which, oddly enough, are not used for the outside of the chair. A woods brown glazed chintz covers the backs and sides of the chair, harmonizing with the inner fabric as well as the rest of the color scheme of the room.

A tall secretary in walnut adds an air of dignity, while at the same time acting as a nice point in balance between the fireplace at one end of the room and the other. The window of beige silk draperies, you will notice, are drawn well back, so as not to obstruct either the view or the light. At night they can be drawn across the windows to serve as shades.

NEW SATIN SHOWER CURTAINS

The moires and rubberized silks in luscious colors have been with us just long enough to pave the way for still newer and more luxurious fabrics. Bath curtains of waterproofed satin in the jewel colors are now the latest thing. And when you see the gleaming surface of this new fabric, with its high lights and soft shadows, if you can be loyal to the old equipment—then you are strong characters!

Teaching Staff Absences Many

Teachers in the Salem high school chalked up 43 days of absences for the month ending March 15, Principal J. C. Nelson's records show. Seventeen teachers, nearly a third of the faculty, were absent one or more days. Nine substitutes were employed. Most of the instructors were at home to attend to severe colds.

Pupil absences had not been checked late Friday afternoon but will run high this month also, Mr. Nelson says, with many out through the month with colds and with many attending the basketball tournament. At Parrish junior high 13 teachers were absent in the month.

HELPING TO MAKE YOURS A HOME TO BE PROUD OF

FURNITURE QUALITY IS OF PRE-EMINENT IMPORTANCE

Most important of all in the purchase of furniture—is its quality. Furniture is chosen not for a period of time—but for years of enjoyable use. That is the type of furniture we sell at this store.

REST. That is why we have bedrooms at all. If we did not need a peaceful, quiet haven where we could escape for relaxation we could turn the bedroom into a ballroom or a cardroom or use it for some other frivolous purpose!

But we must have rest, so the successful bedroom should then be planned with that thought uppermost.
