

Fighting Demon Unearthed in Semi-Final on Armory Card

KENTWORTH IS NEW LUMINARY

Floors Hayes Five Times With Wicked Hooks; Main Event Stopped

Discovery of a real fighting demon who carries concentrated dynamite in either hand, in the person of Jack Kentworth of Salem who knocked out Red Hayes in the second round of a scheduled six round fight at the armory Wednesday night, served to overshadow the unsatisfactory main event and, with the help of three hair raising preliminaries, branded the card as a success.

This southpaw fighting under the name of Kentworth socked Hayes squarely between the eyes the first time he swung a glove, and dropped Red to his knees; before the first round had ended he floored Hayes three more times; one with a left to the jaw for a six count, once for the count of eight, and the third time the bell sounded at the count of six.

In the second round Kentworth swung his right with the same damnable hook motion, it landed just beneath Hayes' ear, and the Staton boy was through.

Main Event Halted There is no denying that the Warnke-Burnell main event was a dull affair, but when Referee Harry Levy called it "no contest" in the seventh round, he started an argument which probably will rage for weeks. A good many fans agreed with Levy that the boys were "dogging it," and said he did the proper thing; but probably a larger number thought Warnke and Burnell, although over pressured, were doing their best and should have been allowed to finish. Levy had warned them and it looked at the start of the seventh as though they were heading the wrong way, but their efforts didn't satisfy the referee.

Warnke had the best of it consistently, popping Burnell on the nose almost continuously but doing little damage. But if the main event was a "dog," the preliminaries were good enough to make up for it and then some. Swings Wicked One Cliff Wetzel of Jefferson landed the most terrific pile driver blow in the third round of his fight with Jack Lewis of Albany, that had ever been witnessed in the armory, and Lewis wilted completely when it landed. A second before Wetzel had catapulted Lewis over the ropes and almost to the floor with a right to the jaw; when Lewis straightened up again, Wetzel set himself and started one from the shoulder that lifted the Albany boy into the corner where he crumpled completely.

Early in the first round, Wetzel had left Lewis on the jaw with a blow that tossed him into the ropes and been uncoiled in the loaded with spectators, to collapse on that side of the ring; the two things happened simultaneously, anyway. Wastenberg Wins Lloyd Ambrose put up a better scrap against Jackie Wastenberg than he did the last time, but the two fisted little lad from independence floored Ambrose for the count of nine in the second round, and won the decision. Ambrose came back pluckily in the last round and kept on even terms, but Wastenberg had too much edge in the earlier cantos to make it a draw. After being almost annihilated in the first round by Billy Morgan's savage rushes and rocking

While legionnaires are not generally aware of the fact, each and every member of any post is automatically a Fidac, according to Victor McKenzie of the Salem legion post. To the uninitiated the Fidac is an international organization composed of 36 associations of ex-service men. Individual memberships are not accepted but each member of an affiliated association automatically becomes a member of Fidac. The 1929 international convention is to be held in Belgrade.
