

'MA' KENNEDY WON'T TESTIFY

Aimee's Mother Discovered in Portland After Long and Frantic Hunt

Portland, said they "trusted" Mrs. Kennedy would see them.
"If she doesn't want to testify, I don't care," Hornblower said.
The California assemblyman made a special trip to the Pacific Northwest to take Mrs. Kennedy's deposition. They had expected to meet her yesterday morning in Seattle, but she learned that Sheriff Dill, Cowlitz county, Washington, had a subpoena for her and checked out of her hotel in the Puget Sound metropolis before he arrived.
Woman's Whereabouts Hard To Determine
Her movements since leaving Seattle are not known. She passed through Portland early Saturday morning driving east on the Columbia river highway. Near The Dalles she burned out the brakes of her big blue sedan and was forced to put it in for repairs. Hornblower was in Kelso, Wash., and Little in Seattle, looking for her.
Mrs. Kennedy's game of hide and seek with the two Californians took a more serious turn today with the arrival of Rex Hardy in Portland from California. He is a son of Judge Hardy.
Judge Says He Has No Objection
"I have no objection to her giving the deposition," Hardy said today. "As a matter of fact I hope she does make the deposition and gets it out of the way, now that I am up here."
There is another serious phase to the game, too, Hornblower said. Mrs. Kennedy is "flirting with contempt of court."
"Down in California the witness flirts with contempt of court jail is just around the corner," Hornblower said.
Attorney Ahl has given the angeliest a written opinion that there is no statute in either Oregon or Washington which can compel her to appear and give the deposition.
Hornblower said he does not "entertain Mrs. Kennedy's high opinion of the advice given by Mrs. Ahl."
"Perhaps they do not know that this case is before the highest tribunal in California," he said.
Attorney Ahl told Mrs. Kennedy that she could be compelled to appear and submit to questioning in a case before superior court but not in an impeachment trial which is being heard before the bar in a state senate.
Mrs. Kennedy said she would remain in Portland over Sunday, "Maybe I'll change my mind," she said.

SHIP'S CREW IS IN REVOLT, INDICATION

the craft in a message sent to Marshallfield.
It was a note of acute homesickness and taut nerves.
Fights develop daily among members of the crew. The radio operator is in bed after attempting to choke the mess steward. Fresh water is supplied by being pumped aboard the vessel from a seep hole in the sand hills. Officers fail to answer each other with civility. Sanitary conditions are at a low ebb.
All of this was contained in the letter received today by a Marshallfield firm, which since March 1, when the Sultameco went aground in a dense fog, has been endeavoring to pull it off.
Today the vessel's decks are 50 feet above the water, the six-degree list has developed. Instead of moving into deeper water, the ship has shifted several hundred yards inshore.
Members of the crew said they had signed aboard the Sultameco for six months and had everything gone well, they would have been on shore leave at home on the Atlantic coast. The craft sailed from New York January 31.
They ask to be paid off and transportation furnished to the Atlantic coast.
When they were asked why they did not demand to be paid off, members of the crew and officers said they would not receive transportation back to New York if they quit the ship.

Uncertainty has brought life aboard the vessel to a crisis.

TRAFFIC CONTROL TO COME UP AT COUNCIL

clude Charles E. Miller and Charles Parmenter.
Another matter which may come before the council is the awarding of a contract for manholes, on which a report has been held up for a number of weeks.
The street committee will report favorably on the placing of more signs on street corners to direct tourists to the highway routes out of the city, and also giving directions as to how near-by cities may be reached. This was called to the council's attention by Dr. G. A. Olson recently.
F. L. Wilkinson, recently elected by the council to fill the vacancy created by the departure of Alderman Wenderoth from the city, has signed the oath of office and will take his seat Monday night.

HOOVER OBSERVES EASTER WITH QUIET

WASHINGTON, Mar. 30.—(AP)—Quietly and with all regard for the Quaker's avoidance of display and ostentation, President Hoover tomorrow will observe the first Easter Sunday of his stay in the White House.
Like the Sabbaths that have preceded it, the day will be one of rest and relaxation. During the week, Mr. Hoover is at work early and usually it is well after nightfall before he leaves his desk. But when Sunday comes, he lays aside the cares of his official position and devotes the day to church attendance, rest, sometimes hunting and fishing, and if the weather is good a short automobile ride.
So it will be tomorrow. With Mrs. Hoover he will motor in the morning to the little Friends' meeting house to participate in the simple worship of the church. The service will contrast sharply with those of other churches of the national capital with their Easter decorations, vested choirs and reverberating organ music. It will consist of prayer, a sermon of Mr. Hoover's old friend, Augustus Murray of Palo Alto, and a few hymns accompanied only by a piano.
After services, the president will return to the White House for Sunday dinner and the afternoon will be spent in relaxation and possibly a motor trip into adjacent Maryland or Virginia. Frequently Mr. Hoover has some of his old friends from S street in his Sunday night supper, but nothing of this sort is planned for tomorrow. In fact, almost for the first time since inauguration day, no guests are staying at the executive mansion and Mr. Hoover will be free to spend the day he pleases, undisturbed by the duties of hospitality, duties that cannot be disregarded even when the host is president of the United States.
Mr. Hoover was disappointed today in plans for his first holiday since he became chief executive. Arrangements had been made for an old-fashioned picnic in the hills of Virginia, 90 miles away, at the president's fishing preserve on the Rapidan river. Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur have been invited to go along as had Lawrence Richey, the president's secretary.
But on arising this morning, the chief executive found the weather so unfavorable that the trip was out of the question. A dismal drizzle was falling which chilled intermittently to hail and sleet and Mr. Hoover at once called off the picnic and spent the day at his desk.
Following an old White House tradition, the south grounds of the executive mansion will be opened Monday to the children of the city for the annual Easter egg rolling.

of opposition to making tax returns public and of protecting taxpayers from "subjecting their business affairs to the scrutiny of their competitors, the idly curious, the collectors of contributions, and unscrupulous practitioners seeking out possible future clients."
He credited the machinery of the federal reserve system with enabling the government to handle refunding transactions and short time borrowing in 1928 without creating disturbances to the money market. He pointed to the contrast between the vast sums now needed in managing the public debt and its floating short loans and those needed during the civil and Spanish wars but declared that less disturbance to business and banking had been created in recent years by the great shifts of the huge modern debt than in previous periods of the country's history. He added that considerable embarrassment in the past had been created by the manipulation of much smaller totals without a federal reserve system to guide procedure.

Federal Advance
On Coast Delayed
On the west coast, the situation was perhaps not completely in hand as in Chihuahua because in Sinaloa the federal drive had been delayed by torn up railroad tracks. Government forces finally succeeded in reaching Mazatlan and hoped to drive on at once toward Culiacan where the rebels were reported concentrated.
Another report that "El Catorce," the nickname of Victoriano Ramirez who for some years has carried on bandit operations in the state of Jalisco had been killed reached the capital today. Ramirez has surprising ability in the past to come alive after being "killed" as reported to the newspapers. His present "death" was said to have resulted from internal disputes between bandits.
Chihuahua Seen For First Time
For the first time since the revolution broke out on March 3, federal eyes rested today on Chihuahua City, the immediate objective of the column commanded by General Juan A. Almazan. Federal Aviator Pterro flew over the city and dropped three bombs on the government palace. The result was not made known here.
A federal air squadron under Lieutenant-Colonel Sidar hopped off from Torreon this morning for Mazatlan to aid the campaign in Sinaloa. These planes had been used to harass the retreating rebels in the north but now were deemed more important to the success of the western campaign.
