MARKET AGAIN RISES SLOWLY

Credit Crisis Now Definitely
Past With Result That
Bulls Go Wrong

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP)—With convincing evidence that the credit crisis incident to the turn of the quarter is definitely past, operations for the advance were resumed on the stock market today, rather cautiously, but along a broad front. Scores of issues, in which steels and rails were prominent, were big up to nearly 12 points.

Call money dropped at 10 percent, but renewed at 8 soon after midday, and in the last hour to 6. By today the quarterly interest and dividend checks had been cleared at the banks, and the month-end shifting of balances completed, funds came into the market in considerable volume, and calling of loans was negligible.

Credit Curtailment Satisfies Officials
Reserve authorities were understood to be satisfied with the results of curtailing speculative credit through pressure upon member banks.

The federal reserve brokers' loan compilation for the week ended yesterday showed a decline of $87,000,000, of which $50,000,000 was withdrawn by New York banks, $25,000,000 by out-of-town banks, and $12,000,000 by others. The total as of April 3 stood at $5,562,000,000 in contrast to the record of $5,793,000,000 reported two weeks ago. The New York Reserve bank reported the release of $13,533,000 in gold from Earmark presumably for the bank of France, but Wall Street saw no prospect that the bank would permit this to be used to ease credit.

With the continued uncertainties of the credit situation, "bulls" were unable to get a public following despite Secretary Mellon's reassuring statement at the reserve meeting, and total sales fell off to 3,330,060 shares, the smallest turnover since March 13. In the steels, which were bought on continued reports of currency operations, Superior jumped 9 points to a new high at 71. Bethlehem sold up 6 points to within a fraction of its peak, U. S. Steel mounted more than 5, and Youngstown sheet and tube moved up to 136, duplicating its previous record.

HAY PRICE SOARS AS FEED SCARCE

The Cherry City Milling company is shipping a car of clover hay to Tillamook county today, and according to reports to the mill offices, the Tillamook dairymen report this car the only one they can get anywhere right now. Hay of any description has been pretty well cleaned up, until anything offered commands a good price. Rye grass and cheat is bringing $20 a ton to the buyer. The local company found the car of hay which is being shipped only after considerable scouring of the valley.

Rapid Changes Are Shown In Salem Market Prices; Roseburg Broccoli Here

Salem market conditions have showed little change this week over last, with no new additions to the commodities offered and not a greatly increased selling. Prices, however, show considerable change.

Following is a line-up on the situation as seen from the wholesale market:
Orange quotations are down 75 cents on the 12 1/2 sizes and up 25 cents on the three small sizes, with a range from $3.00 to $6.25. While the California crop is unusually good this year and also extra large, the low price for which they are selling is attributed in some degree to the fact that orchards in the far south were affected by frosts. More small oranges than usual are finding their way north, so many of these being attributed to the abundance of fruit prohibiting full growth.

California Cauliflower Is Being Supplanted
Roseburg broccoli is supplanting cauliflower from California and is coming in rapidly at $1.75 and $2.00.

Both Texas cabbage and the California Winningsstad are offered, the former at $4.50 and the southern at 50 cents less. Both are good quality.

New potatoes are down to nine cents a pound, the lowest price at which they have been quoted so early in the season for some years. New peas are also lower, at 18 cents, these coming from California. Few green beans have been received from the south, following the first shipments several weeks ago.

Rhubarb Shipped In For Local Markets

Local rhubarb is not yet ready for the market, with that from Washington and California supplying the trade, both at lower prices. That from the north is $2.40 and $3.10 per crate, while the California bar is quoted at $3.50, 50 cents less than asked last week.

Local spinach growers are supplying the demand with some greens of excellent quality, these going to the retailer at $1.25 for the orange box.

Onion Price Drops When Crops Held

With onion prices the lowest they have been for several months

some growers are finding themselves in the position of the man "holding the bag." During the cold weather, when it was impossible to get at the crop, prices shot up and all the onions which could be obtained would have brought 4 1/2 and 5 cents. Other growers held on, thinking prices would climb still higher. But now quotations are down to $3.00 a hundred on the No. 1's and $2.50 on the No. 2's, and the growers will do well to get 2 1/2 cents a pound for their product, wholesalers report.

Celery is $1.35 on the dozen bunches.

Bunch vegetables are plentiful, with radishes at 60 cents; carrots at 80 cents; beets and turnips at 90 cents. Root vegetables in the sack lots sell wholesale at: carrots and turnips, $2.50; beets and rutabagas, $3.00; and parsnips, $4.00. Parsnips are quite scarce.

WHEAT QUOTATIONS REPORTED UNEASY

While wheat prices have been down, comparatively speaking, the past week or ten days, the situation generally is a trifle uneasy, following estimates that the new crop will be short. Local buyers call attention to the fact, however, that the same alarm went out about this time a year ago and that the last crop was one of the largest crops in history. Quotations Thursday were $1.40 on the white and acent less on red.

Oat quotations are due for a drop shortly, it is reported. The demand is good for winter oats, and in the face of the high market, large holdings have been uncovered.
