Salem High Ball Club Has Sked Minus Association Teams

Oregon State Rooks Will be Met on Olinger Field Here Next Week

The Salem high school baseball team will open its season Wednesday of next week, with a game against the Oregon State Rooks at Olinger field here. Another early season game will be against St. Mary's high school, situated east of Portland, April 23. Coach Luke Gill of the Salem high tossers is pleased with the progress made by his players in fielding, but hasn't been able to give then enough batting practice to develop much prowess along that line, and the showing made in two practice games last wek, against Oregon Normal school and Willamette, was weak in the hitting department on that ac-

RACE STILL HOTTER FOR CITY LEAGUERS

The City league bowling race waxed warmer still Monday night when the Man's Shop and Flying Clouds each lost two games, thus remaining in a tie for first place, while the Schei quintet, winning from the Man's Shop, advanced to within one game of the leaders. The Flying Clouds lost to the Elks. The Capital City Bedding company team won three straight from O'Leary's Legionnaires. In a practice series for the Northwest tournament at Vancouver, B. C., the Man's Shop won first place, O'Leary's Legionnaires were second, Flying Clouds third and Army & Navy Store fourth. League scores were: C. C. Bedding Co. 174 166 159 167 169 179

Absence of Albany from the league roster would be regretted in Salem, where in past seasons the fans have been accustomed to drawing their biggest "kick" from watching the Sentiors and the Alcos in their bitterly fought sames!
However, if Albany is definitely out, there is no dearth of other clubs that will take its place in the league.
