MAY DAY PLANS FINISHED SOON
Annual Festivities Will Be Held On University Campus; Programs Out

Plans for the annual May Day festivities at Willamette university are practically complete, announced Edward Wells on Thursday. The programs and invitations were distributed to students Thursday to be sent to alumni, friends and prospective students. The coronation of the queen and the May dances, which have been held on the grounds of the Supreme court building the past three years, will be held on the university campus this year. This plan has given much pleasure to the members of the senior class, who were beginning to fear that they might not see a May Day celebration on the campus during their four years at the university. The grand class play "The Romantic Age" will be presented at the Grand theatre on Friday night, May 3, it was announced by Paul Geddes, manager. The cast is having intensive practice daily, and although most of the players have had no experience in university productions, there is promise that the Milne comedy will be presented in good form. Homer Roberts has been appointed stage manager; Newton Sanders, property manager; and Elizabeth Atkinson, Marie Messersmith and Leslie Manker, wardrobe keepers. A university orchestra is preparing numbers to be presented between acts.
