DEADLINE LOOMS FOR INSURED VETS

The time is short in which disabled veterans can take advantage of a recent law which permits them to obtain the benefit of their government insurance provided they can show the disability was incurred prior to the time they let their insurance lapse. R. H. Bassett, adjutant of the local post of the American Legion states that the time for making the necessary filings will expire May 29.

There were many soldiers, Mr. Bassett explained, who let their government insurance lapse. Now they may be permanently disabled and thus get no benefit from the insurance that lapsed. If they can show that the disability occurred before the lapsing of their insurance, they can take steps prior to May 29 to obtain the insurance compensation.

Birthday of Espree Held Great Event

Very gratifying response was received by the local offices of the Southern Pacific on the occasion of the 60th anniversary of the company's completion of the first transcontinental railroad. Traffic out of Salem both by bus and railroad ran far beyond the normal mark.

One woman, reported a local agent, took herself and her 12-year old daughter for a ride to Portland, going one way by bus and return by train, saying that the ride was the first she had ever taken on a railroad.

CARS CRASH AS MAN TURNS ACROSS ROAD

DALLAS, May 11.—While driving south on the Monmouth-Corvallis highway Friday evening Ida Callison of Eugene, hit the auto driven by W. G. Goodman of Suver, throwing her off the road into a ditch and causing her to be injured before she came to a stop. Mr. Goodman put out his hand to turn into his home, but Mrs. Callison had started to pass him and was traveling at too great a speed to stop. She received a sprained ankle but Mr. Goodman escaped uninjured.

State Traffic Officer Williams was called to the scene of the accident to investigate the cause.

SPAULDING COMPANY OPENING NEW STORE

All Kinds of Materials for Home to be Offered for Salem by Company

A new department of the Spaulding Logging company will be inaugurated when the building materials store is opened Monday. The store will carry every kind of building material including sashes, doors, cement, tile, and built-ins. For a number of years Spaulding's have done a wholesale business in building materials. It is now their purpose to sell directly to the consumer the same line of goods.

The new store will carry lines of nationally known paints, tiles, roofings, etc., and will make to order anything in their line which may not be in the regular stock. The store-room is located at 189 S. Front street, next to the Spaulding Logging office and is very attractive with its displays of brightly enameled cabinets, closets and tiles.

FALL FROM HOME HARMS CUTSWORTH

GERVAIS, May 11.—Jarvis Cutsworth was seriously injured Monday afternoon when he lost his balance while doing some painting on his house, and fell several feet to the ground, breaking his left hip bone. The unfortunate man was immediately brought to office of Dr. Dowd in Gervais where an x-ray picture showed that the femur bone was broken and was shoved up considerably.

He was removed to a Salem hospital where the broken bones were set and the hip placed in a cast. Last reports were that he was getting along as well as could be expected. Mr. Cutsworth is small carrier on route three out from Gervais and Ted Nibler, is acting as substitute carrier during Mr. Cutsworth's enforced absence.

Hubby Takes Much Liquor Wifie States

Bessie J. Temple seeks a divorce from Harry F. Temple, her husband, in a complaint filed Saturday in circuit court. Mrs. Temple alleging that continuous and over use of intoxicating liquors by Mr. Temple has brought about a condition making life miserable for her and causing her to leave her husband's home two years ago. Since that time Temple has gone out with other women for the purpose of annoying her. Mrs. Temple avers. Despite the fact that they were married in 1899 plaintiff alleges she will be unable to continue with her share of the marriage contract.

ULRICH IS NAMED TO HEAD DISTRICT

Appointment of J. F. Ulrich as district supervisor for the American Fidelity Investment Co., was announced Friday by Elmo S. White, president of the company, who was in Salem transacting business. Ulrich will have charge of Marion and Polk counties and as one of his first moves he will inaugurate a policy of new sales to add names to the roll of the company.

Charles Elroy, until recently lawyer for the company here, has been removed to Portland to handle the legal affairs of the company there.

Mr. Ulrich said Friday that he would continue his real estate business as he has in the past, merely adding his loan duties to his other affairs.

Lay Sermons

"And he said, It is not the voice of them that cry for the mastery, neither is it the voice of them that cry for being overcome; but the noise of them that sing down the mountain side. Here is a verse we have frequently thought a preacher could use as a text to discourse on the problems of capital and labor. But it must be robbed of its setting, which is this: Moses is described as coming down from Mount Sinai bearing the two tablets of the testimony." The sixteenth verse says that "the tables were the work of God and the writing was the writing of God, graven upon the tables." As Moses and Joshua came down the mountain, Moses heard a great commotion in the camp. Joshua said it was war; Moses said it was not strife but singing. When they got back to camp they found that the faithless Hebrews had gotten tired of waiting for Moses, and got Aaron to make a golden calf for them to worship. Moses' anger waxed hot; he broke the stones and then the calf to powder, so it must have been only gold-plated.

Moses on the mountain-side, high above the valley. He could hear the sounds from the crowd of the Israelites whom he saw assembled in the open spaces of the camp. Instantly he thought of the clash of combat; Joshua, who became later a professional soldier declared it was warfare. The older man, Moses, could distinguish the sounds, however. "It is not the voice of them that cry for the mastery, neither is it the voice of them that cry for being overcome." Leaping the centuries one may look forward to that yet distant day when such a verdict may be passed on the relations of capital and labor, of employer and employe in the modern industrial world. The industrial struggle of this age carries the sounds of primitive conflict. Men "shout for the mastery"; others "cry for being overcome." In the strikes of the Colorado coal fields, in the textile mills at Passaic, in New Bedford and Elizabethtown, in the strikes on subways and railroads the sounds are of tumult of strife, of dissension, harsh, strident, dissonant, animal-like in their primitive snarling and yelping. Picture then that day, when one hears not the clash of industrial combat but the concordant "noise of them that sing."

What agency shall fuse the clamor of combat to the music of peace? The conventional answer will be the application of the religion of Christ. And, that is hard; because while we may agree on the beautiful ideals of brotherly love and neighborly kindness, we fail to agree on how to apply them. Capitalist and communist may quote from the scripture and from words attributed to Christ. Christ prescribed no wage scales save the penny-a-day to all workers in a vineyard, and that proved a controversy among his auditors. He wrote no labor contracts, no eight-hour provision, no script on "working conditions." Some earnest Christians like Arthur Nash apply the gospel one way, and turn the plant over to the employes; others confess no compunctions, like Kresge, in paying scant wages to working girls and handing out huge benefactions to churches and charities.

The trouble with Christ's teachings is that they are too indefinite, too hazy, so the industrialist of today finds no set rule to go by. Either that, or his teachings are too clear and specific and one dare not apply them in the business world. Which is true? A little of both we think. The result: we interpret the teaching as our individual advantage or conscience may determine.

"The noise of them that sing,"—if and when? We quote from William Vaughn Moody's "Gloucester Moors": "But thou, vast outbound ship of souls What harbor town for thee? What shapes, when thy arriving tolls, Shall crowd the banks to see? Or shall a haggard, ruthless few Warp her over, and bring her to, While the many broken souls of men Fester down in the slaver's pen. And nothing to say or do?"

Farnham Speaker Here On Tuesday

MILLER'S DAY HAS LARGE CROWD THERE

Sponsorship of Students in Selling Proves Great Success

A remarkably favorable response was received Saturday by Miller's in their first high school student's day when members of the student body of Salem high school student's day when members of the student body of Salem high school acted as clerks, ushers and general business assistants throughout the firm.

Crowds thronged the store through a great part of the day and sales were heavy according to the management. A percentage of the gross went to the student body for its share in putting on the day's work. Special offers were made by the store in celebration of the event.

Special Features Fixed
Special features were offered by the students included tea served by young ladies of the school on the second floor, the services of a public stenographer, a young man to shine shoes and several girls to sell flowers which were provided from the gardens of families of the student body members.

For school day Miller's claims the distinction of being the first firm to introduce the idea in the local business field.

FIVE CORDS WOOD VERY EXPENSIVE

Five cords of knotty, gnarled, second growth fir wood are proving to be worth nearly their weight in gold as a result of extensive litigation concerning them first in justice court and now moved up to the greater expansiveness of the circuit court. Although the plaintiff in the case, George J. Moore, asserted that the wood was worth only $40, to date litigation has cost Herman Fresia, defendant, a judgment of $10 and court costs of $51 while both men in addition have been required to pay their attorneys.

Additional expense is assured now that Fresia has appealed the case to the circuit court. Litigation arose over the fact that Fresia was alleged to have taken the five cords of wood from Moore who brought suit to recover $40. A justice court jury awarded Moore $10 but Fresia thinks that unjust and costs or no costs, is carrying the matter higher.

JAMES A. BROWN REQUESTS DIVORCE

Tired of the treatment received from his wife, Cora L. Brown, James A. Brown filed complaint in circuit court here Saturday asking that their marriage contract be annulled.

For years Mrs. Brown has treated the plaintiff in a sullen manner, he alleges, looking sullenly at him for days at a time but refusing absolutely to talk. During the past few years, Mrs. Brown has frequently gone out with other men, her husband alleges, and when he has complained to her about these actions she informed him that it was "none of his business."

MAY FETE GIVEN AT DALLAS CAMPUS

DALLAS, May 11.—The annual May fete was given by the children of this city Friday afternoon at the high school campus. Catherine Sibley reigned as queen for the occasion, and the story of Peter Pan was splendidly depicted by the children. Wendy Darling is the little girl who flies to the Never Never land and the part was played by Margaret Lindahl; Dorothy Howe was Peter Pan and the lost boys included Beverly Bales, Mary Staats, Myra Starbuck, Melva Robinson, Myrtle Spaugy and Margery Spaugy. The Tinker bells who led the fairies were Helen Elle and Virginia Goodlow. Lillian Kestler was Captain Hook and Alma Bennett was Chieftainess Tiger Lily. Because of the cool weather the fete was given at 5 o'clock this year instead of six which has been the custom before.
