DEMURRER IS RUSHED OVER

Circuit Judge McMahan Upholds Measure to Speed Injunction Suit

Judge L. H. McMahan of the Marion county circuit court Monday sustained the state's demurrer to the complaint of L. E. Smith, to test the constitutionality of the 1929 legislative act creating the state board of higher education.

The law under attack abolished the various boards of regents and placed the university of Oregon, state college and three state normal schools under the control of the board of higher education.

The pro forma decree signed by Judge McMahan was announced following a conference with Fred Packwood, attorney for Mr. Smith, and Willis Moore, assistant attorney general. The legal term of a pro forma decree is one given without the formality of argument or briefs.

Decree Made to Speed Proceedings

Judge McMahan urged the attorneys to accept such a decree for the reason that he desired to expedite the proceeding and that it would be appealed to the supreme court regardless of any opinion that was handed down in the lower court. He also told the attorneys that he had been assigned to hold court for Judge Walker of Yamhill county, who is ill, and was overwhelmed with his work; if compelled to hear the arguments, Judge McMahan said it would be July 1 before he would be able to prepare his decree. This is the date on which the law becomes effective.

Procedure Is Proper

Mr. Packwood readily consented to the informal decree. Mr. Moore, while not offering any protest, declared that he was doubtful of its propriety from the point of view of the supreme court. Upon communicating with Chief Justice Coshaw of the supreme court, Judge McMahan was advised that the procedure was proper. Packwood filed notice of appeal to the supreme court immediately upon receiving the decree of the circuit court. The case will be argued in the supreme court June 11.

Smith is asking for a declaratory decree which is a new procedure in the Oregon courts.

The law creating the state board of higher education is being attacked principally on the ground that its operations will violate the six per cent constitutional amendment. The new board is composed of nine members, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the state senate during the 1929 legislative session.

Tammany hall, its glories and its defeats, is interestingly pictured in a 600-page book received by the Atlas Book store. With M. R. Werner, author of "Barnum," its writer, the reader was assured of a historical treatise of the country's reputation for fairness in his treatment of long controverted subjects.

"Tammany Hall" is not written from the standpoint of either commending this long-time political organization or of scorning it severely. The viewpoint is rather to expose the true case about the hall which for years has dominated the politics of New York.

Starting with the earliest leaders of Tammany, and continuing through the reign of Tweed and Croker and the late lamented "Boss" Murphy, Werner builds up an interesting story, replete with the factual material resulting from frequent long and arduous city-wide investigations of the "hall." Croker stands exposed as one of the types of political boss who ruled with an iron hand while Tweed, Tammany's most malignant leader, comes in for fairly sympathetic dealing on the part of Werner who rates the captain of the hall as a man of moral sense but kind and generous to his friends.

Postmen On Vacation—Guy O. Boyce and John W. Bolin, carriers for the Salem postoffice, are taking vacations from duty. Boyce will be off three days and Bolin will return to work June 1.

Manufacturing in Oregon Quite Feasible, Portland Man Tells Chamber Here

Oregon can develop its manufacturing and do it successfully, said C. Sammons, vice president of the Iron Fireman company of Portland, told chamber of commerce members Monday noon. Sketching the development of numerous Portland industries which have made outstanding successes in the last few years, Sammons concluded his talk by showing the remarkable gains which have been made by his company in recent years.

"The Iron Fireman company is less than seven years old," Sammons said. "Last year it made profits of $158,000 and conducted a nation-wide business. Strangely enough we do very little of our business in Oregon, but we have found that Oregon labor is 15 per cent more efficient than the labor in any other state and that raw materials such as lumber for crating can be secured more reasonably here. In fact our experience is that the total manufacturing difference in cost between the coast and the east on a product used in the east, is only two per cent."

Mr. Sammons recently resigned a position as vice president of the United States National bank to go with the Iron Fireman company. One of the notable features of the bank was the extensive use of national advertising. No less than $250,000 will be expended this year by the company in advertising its product, said Sammons.

The Jantzen Knitting mill company has a record of achievement almost as glowing as that of the Iron Fireman company. Sammons recalled how its founders 20 years ago were granted a credit of $100 with trepidation. Last year 1,200,000 suits were manufactured by the company, $9,000,000 was expended monthly in payroll, $1,350,000 was spent for the wool going into the Jantzen suits.

Mr. Sammons cited several other examples of Portland manufacturing concerns whose output has been distributed nationally and internationally. He scouted the idea that manufacturing could not be successfully carried on in Oregon.

LIEUTENANT WILSON AND WIFE ARE HERE

Lieutenant and Mrs. Ralph E. Wilson and two-year old son, Ralph Jr., arrived in Salem Monday from Honolulu, where the lieutenant has been stationed the past two years. They are visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wilson, and will be here for a week. From Salem they will leave to spend two years in the east, where Lieutenant Wilson will study a year each at Annapolis and Columbia, doing advanced work.

Lieutenant Wilson is a graduate of the Salem high school with the class of '20, receiving an appointment to the naval academy immediately following high school. Mrs. Wilson is also a Salem girl and will be remembered as Martha Powell.

Mack's Landing Is Favored Spot For Fishermen Group

Mack's Landing, 20 miles north of Tolmie, is being considered as a retreat according to a group of Salem people who motored there for a week-end junket in search of elusive salmon and trout. Good results were reported by the men in the party. After spending Saturday night at the landing, the party went on to Newport and up the coast to Nestor and Hobo. The return to Salem was made by way of Buell, the party turning off the customary route at the Salt Creek bridge above Willamina.

In the party were Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Talmadge, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Clark, a family of Mr. and Mrs. George Tate and family of Sublimity, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bondel and family of Salem.

Rosebraugh Puts In Lowest Bid In New Fire Escape

W. W. Rosebraugh was easily the low bidder for the construction of a fire escape at the county courthouse when the court opened the propositions of various contractors Monday. Rosebraugh's offer to build and install the three-story fire escape on the east side of the courthouse was $70.

The next bidder was Fred A. Erickson whose price was $665.

Prices offered by the Portland Wire and Iron works were $222 and by the City Iron Works, $350. A Young & Sons Iron Works of Portland put in a price of $1000.

ILLNESS FATAL TO MR. DORCAS

Prominent Hop Man Succumbs After Sickness of 2 and Half Years

George E. Dorcas, known the length of the coast where hop men gather, died in Salem Sunday after an illness of two and a half years, the past several months of which he had been confined to his bed continuously. He was 53 years old.

Mr. Dorcas had been engaged in buying hops on the coast for 30 years, making his first as a buyer when he was but 20 years old. In a few years he became associated with his brother, Ralph Dorcas, as a Portland broker. About 15 years ago he entered the same field in California, returning four years ago to make Salem his headquarters.

George Dorcas was a native of Scranton, Iowa, where he was born April 18, 1876, moving eight years later with his parents to Washington. The family resided in Washington but four years, spending the remaining years in Salem and other valley towns.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Helen Lightner Dorcas, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. F. Small of Helena, Mont., and Mrs. N. W. Belanger, of Portland; also one brother, Charles of Sacramento, and Mrs. A. H. Amberg of San Francisco, and his father, John Dorcas, also of San Francisco.

The remains will be shipped to Portland for private funeral services at the crematorium Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. At Mr. Dorcas' request, no flowers will be received.

Mr. Dorcas was a long and patient sufferer, from a malady that was known to be incurable, yet he hoped against hope and held a stout spirit to the last. In his long months of suffering, he had the help and sympathy of the members of his immediate family and may loyal Salem friends. Hundreds of readers would be glad to join in a word of sympathy to the members of the stricken family.

Construction Of Elevator Shaft Pushed Steadily

Day by day the work of completing the elevator shaft at the courthouse is being pushed to permit early installation of the shaft elevator which the county court decided to purchase some months ago. Plastering of the interior and exterior of the shaft was started several days ago and will be done by the middle of this week. The new elevator will be entered from the west entrance of the courthouse building.

Legal Tangle Is Developed in Suit Here

A legal tangle was formed in circuit court Monday when Nadine T. Hall was granted a divorce by default, from James T. Hall, her husband but in the same day Hall entered an answer to his wife's complaint. Difference in the stories of the attorneys for both parties was noticeable, one attorney maintaining that he had served proper papers on the defendant, counsel for Hall in his answer contends that his wife was not faithful to him and that she is not the proper party to have custody of the three-year old girl. Hall says he is willing to pay $15 a month to provide the support of the child provided she is cared for by her grandmother, Mrs. Mae Layton.
