 couple on the start of their honeymoon? Nobody knew.

Later a similar amphibian settled in the waters of Long Island Sound near the estate of Henry Guggenheim, head of Col. Lindbergh. The bridal couple seeking seclusion in the invariable privacy of the Guggenheim mansion? Nobody knew that.

Claes Indicate Pair May Be On Ocean Trip

This morning a yacht belonging to R. Guggenheim was gone from its mooring in the sound. The bridal pair, off on a marine honeymoon under cover of darkness? Nobody knew that either.

The marriage license was filed with Registrar John S. Mansion of Enlowwood this afternoon by G. W. Hulst, attorney for the Morrow family. It showed that the license was applied for at 8:30 p. m., on May 17 and was issued at 9 a. m., on the 20th, the second anniversary of the start of the flight in Paris that raised Lindbergh from an obscure air mail pilot to the prominence of a world figure.

Aeronautical Consultant Is Lindy's Occupation

Lindbergh described himself in applying for the license as an Aeronautical Consultant. He gave his age as 27 and Miss Morrow's as 22, his birthplace as St. Louis and hers as Englewood.

The marriage certificate on the back of the license showed that the wedding was at 6 p. m. yesterday and was signed as witnesses by Elizabeth Morrow, sister of the bride, and J. J. Morrow, a brother of the ambassador.

Later today the Lindbergh plane was taken up by Ronald Enlow, Curtis pilot and friend of the colonel's. Enlow eluded two newspaper planes that followed him into the clouds 7,000 feet above the ground. Enlow landed at Schenectady and left in another plane, leaving the Lindbergh plane there. There had been a rumor that he was taking the plane to the Morrow estate at North Haven, Maine.

June Vaillant, department service officer, reported that the three Salem men now in the Veterans hospital at Portland, are all recovering satisfactorily.

Carl D. Gabrielson and H. G. Malson of the convention commission supplemented previous reports on the work the commission is doing. Malson announced in the post bulletin will appear a blank for each member to fill out, indicating what service he proposes to perform at the time of the convention.

Entertainment at the post meeting included the showing of motion pictures in time to march with Lindbergh in connection with his trans-Atlantic flight and the more recent one to Mexico City. The film was shown through the courtesy of A. N. Bush.

 as far as Pratum, every high school student in that district is coming to the Salem high school.

The local district can give them nothing more than the $40 transportation fee per pupil set by the boundary board. Superintendent George W. Hug and Chairman E. H. Ollinger told the visitors, pointing out that they paid no taxes to this district except when their students attended school here.

The Salem board made the same reply to these districts that it made recently to Polk county groups; that while it was entirely willing to cooperate in the transportation problem, it does not intend to make further investigation.

The board further offered to allow $40 for each child's travel expense should the parents in the districts find any way to work a satisfactory solution. The matter was left with the rural group to make further investigation.

Rich L. Reitmann appeared before the board in behalf of Carl Abrams and Dr. C. W. Beecher to offer an acre of land near the junction of the Pacific and Silverton highways, should the board see fit to build a school house thereon and purchase an adjacent acre for $14,000. The board, after expressing the need of at least four or five acres for adequate grounds for a new school, referred the matter to the grounds committee. The site offered is north of the Silverton highway about 600 feet and some 300 feet off the Pacific route.

The board ordered purchased 18 new typewriters for the high school; renewed the contract of E. E. Bergman of the machine shop; and deferred until a future meeting action of Merritt Davis request for a 15-month basis at the present monthly salary. Davis is head of the high school commercial department and asserts his work handling student body finances and the employment bureau is too heavy to continue on the present wage schedule.

Some republican support was given his motion. Representative Beck, republican, Pennsylvania, a former solicitor general, who seeks the withdrawal of the power over rates now delegated to the president, voted for the motion and also against the bill.

Most of the democratic support came from Florida, Louisiana and Texas, products of which are given higher protection in dozens of instances, especially Louisiana cane sugar.

Five Minnesota republicans, regarded as a progressive group, joined a scattering of other majority members in opposition.

Republicans and democrats on the ways and means committee dominated the debate just before passage. Representative Racey of Illinois, a minority committeeman, while praising Chairman Hawley for his conduct of the public hearings, declared if the senate changed the bill without improving it, he would oppose it, "and if it fails to change it all, 'God help the republican party.'"

Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, a majority committeeman, thanked Rainey for his words of "commendation and condemnation," the latter, coming from Rainey, is looked upon as a compliment. He added that the bill represented practically the unanimous voice of the republican party.

JUVENILE STAR TO APPEAR SATURDAY

"Square Shoulders," which will open Saturday at the Elsinore theatre presents Junior Coghlan, Pathe's juvenile star, in the finest role of his career. The boy proves himself not only a dramatic actor of some talent, but a comedian as well. The picture is an audience through every phase of human emotions.

With the colorful, dashing background of a military school, "Square Shoulders" is the story of the devotion of a wayward father to his son. Although the father is a derelict, the boy believes him to have been a great man. The father accidentally meets his son, and, stirred by the kid's pride in his memory, decides to try to live up to it. In order to be near him, the father gets a job as stable man. The pathos, the drama and the humor that develops from this situation makes a story that tugs at one's heartstrings.

A percentage of Saturday's receipts will be turned over to the local Boy Scouts.

Haines Said Best Yet In Latest Film

William Haines in "The Duke Steps Out" is in the best picture he has made, if the comment of the crowds attending the first showing of the picture is believed. There is always life in a picture with a college setting and Haines in this one makes other pictures of this type fade into the background. On the same program is two talking acts packed full of breath taking comedy situations and an African scene.

L. Carlos Meier at the Wurlitzer completes the program with a novelty number that pleases every one.

The picture continues today and Thursday.
