seemed imminent his radio operator dispatched a summons to all coast guard vessels in the vicinity to rush to the scene.

An axe beside him in the cockpit with which to cut through the Yellow Bird's fuselage, the coast guard pilot prepared to drop to the rescue. The radio operator dropped his clothing and made ready to go over the side. Then Lott opened the dump valves of his large tank and the peril was passed. Lieutenant Melka resigned his call for assistance and the two planes returned to the beach.

A rapidly falling gasoline gauge warned him. Lott said, of a leaking tank and decided him to turn back. As soon as the Yellow Bird alighted, Lott and his two companions, Rune Le Fevre, navigator, and an assistant pilot, began repairs to the tank, which was believed to have been sprung by vibration of the engine.

WISCONSIN DROPS PROHIBITION LAWS

leaves the enforcement of prohibition to federal agents, a number of whom are working in the state.

The referendum mentioned by the governor was held April 2 at which time the voters, by a majority of nearly 150,000, signified their desire for the abolition of the state dry law. Throughout the fight in the state legislature, on passage of the bill, Governor Kohler refused to express an opinion on the wet side.

During his campaign last fall, he was a strong supporter of President Hoover and received the support of both wet and dry factions.

The repeal bill was sponsored by John W. Grobschmidt, Milwaukee, a progressive republican. It repeals the state dry law but leaves to municipalities the regulation of soft drink parlors and drinking on buses and trains.

Modern Type of Cemetery Found Great Improvement Over Former Graveyards

With Memorial day at hand and special attention being given to the cemeteries of the city, it is timely to take cognizance of the work being done for the city of Salem at Belcrest Memorial park—a 50-acre memorial to the dead, and more than that, a community enterprise.

While hundreds of Salem people have visited the site since development was begun last October, Belcrest is still somewhat of a curiosity to many local folk. Belcrest, incidentally, is the only modern memorial park in the state of Oregon. The park, carefully laid out, landscaped and with trees, shrubs and flowers displacing the usual competitive display of tombstones and monuments, offers a decided scenic addition to the city.

Situated as it is, with a country road forming the southern boundary, the skyline boulevard on the east and isolated and protected by steep canyons on the north and west, the memorial park will stand as a permanent by acclamation on nomination day and in Rugby, Warwickshire, election formalities will have to start all over again by the death of Henry Yates, the labor candidate.

In the other 607 districts, rival candidates tonight awaited the day of judgment in this complicated and mystifying election.

The conservatives, numerically the strongest party at dissolution of parliament, admit there are no signs of a landslide their way in any part of the country, but allowing for the reaction against a retiring ministry which is encountered at every election, they are confident they will secure a majority of 50 seats over the other parties.

The liberals declare that the conservatives will lose 200 of their 415 seats, most of which they expect to go liberal.

They hope to attract moderates from both the conservatives and the labor groups.

Labor leaders are in the most confident of all. They regard their chances as usually strong in all industrial centers, but admit weakness in rural districts, where conservatism is traditional.

Tiny Leading Lady Breaks Many Hearts

Hollywood once more is agog, as they say. It is all over a feminine affair. She's blonde, of course, and the fact that she is but ten years old does not lessen the seriousness of the affair.

The thing started when Anita Louise, charming and rather flirtatious, was cast as "Leading Lady" in "Square Shoulders," a picture produced by "Square Shoulders," in which Junior Coghlan is featured with Louis Wolheim, and which will be the feature attraction at the Elsinore theatre on Saturday next.

Since his ascendancy to the province of player, Junior has been quiet; quite a swath among the feminine hearts of the younger generation. He had things pretty much to himself until this recent picture, "Square Shoulders," which is set in a military school and which required several score boys his own age.

One of these playing a principal role, was Philippe de Lacy—and Philippe is competition for any lady's man.

Philippe came to be quite a horseman before the picture was far into production and Anita, being somewhat of a hero worshipper, fell for him hard. Junior displayed his bag of tricks from marbles to magic but without effect. It was not until Louis Wolheim taught him to blow the bugle that he got any sort of a tumble from the leading lady. The bugle, however, did the trick and momentarily he gained the upper hand in the quest of milady's favor.

When production was finished on "Square Shoulders," this newest Hollywood triangle was in status quo. It is rumored that the ten-year-old Miss Louise has become interested in another of Hollywood's attractive juvenile swains. Regardless of the outcome, a fight scene between Junior Coghlan and Philippe de Lacy in "Square Shoulders" will be realistic to audiences. There was a reason.

JURY GIVES GIBBS DAMAGES OF $550

Damages of $550 were awarded C. W. Gibbs and Mrs. Lillian Gibbs by a jury which was out only two hours in circuit court late Wednesday. A. A. Post, defendant in the suit, was driving a truck on the Donald-Champoeg road last June when the Gibbs car went into the ditch as it attempted to pass his truck. Gibbs himself asked damages of $1940 and Mrs. Gibbs asked damages of $5068.

There is no circuit court today due to the fact that Memorial Day is a legal holiday. Friday suit will be begun on the case of Parrish, Kottorf in which the plaintiff seeks to recover damages for rye seed said to have been sold him by the defendant. The claim of Parrish, a sheep man, is that the seed was supposed to be rye-seed which was not the case after it was tested. He claims Kottorf thereby damaged him. In a previous suit the decision went to the defendant but the supreme court reversed the lower court and held for Parrish. An agreement out of court is said to have been made by the attorneys.

Heavy Rains Cause Setback Of Travel to Valsetz; One Car Turns Over; Is Unhurt

VALSETZ, May 29.—On account of the heavy rains the later part of the week the road is in a bad condition again. Several cars fought the mud and ruts for hours Sunday. One young man from Portland had a thrilling experience. He had driven 14 miles over the mountain road when he decided to turn back.

About halfway up the mountain in some manner he lost control of the coupe he was driving and went off from a ten foot embankment side up with the driver inside. The door was opened and Joe Smith gave the young fellow a lift to Falls City, where they got a wrecking car. The coupe was placed back upon the road in perfect condition except one slightly dented fender and a ruined battery.

Nearly four weeks ago William Marquis found a foreign substance in his left eye which caused infection and intense suffering. For several days it was feared the eyesight had been destroyed. For the past three weeks he has been in Portland receiving treatment and is improved enough so that the doctor has allowed him to return home with orders for no work for several days. Mrs. Marquis and children were in Portland and have returned also.

While working at his job as set-up man on the flooring matcher machine in the planer Friday, Pete Fawcett caught his left hand between two heavy rolls, mashing four fingers quite badly. He is not yet able to work.

Another big smoker was staged in the community hall Saturday night. There were at least 300 persons who enjoyed the evening. The proceeds were turned into the baseball and community funds.

Mrs. Winard Bullis and son, Coleman, have returned from Independence where they had been visiting Mr. Bullis' parents.

Mrs. Levi Green spent a week visiting friends in Oregon City and Portland.
