EUGENE MAN TO INVITE SALEM

Frank Jenkins Bringing Invitation to Attend "Sunset Trail"

Exceeding in magnitude and interest even the great Trail-to-Rail celebration held at Eugene three years ago, the "Sunset Trail," a pioneer pageant, is to be presented at the Lane county seat on July 25, 26 and 27 as a "trail to rail triennial."

The people of Eugene are joined to make the pageant a success as a community enterprise, but because of the wide interest in pioneer traditions and recent progress, have decided to ask the whole state to cooperate in this great historical presentation and celebration. This is the reason a group of Eugene people will attend the Salem chamber luncheon next Monday noon at which time Frank Jenkins, editor of the Eugene Register and president of the Eugene Chamber of Commerce, will speak, inviting Salem to attend and participate in the pageant.

Dana Pioneer in Pageant Three days are to be devoted to the pageant and celebration. Marshall Dana, associate editor of the Oregon Journal, and well known newspaper man and public worker, has been selected as the pioneer in the pageant, and around him will be built the impressive story of the Oregon country, before, during and after the coming of the covered wagon. The episodes will be enacted in a beautiful scenery setting, and the "Sunset Trail" will be a leading feature.

A chorus of more than 400 voices, 300 dancers, and a large orchestra will have parts in the presentation. Doris Smith, Portland, director of the pageant Rararia, is to direct the Eugene pageant, written by W. F. G. Thacher.

A pioneer parade, in which pioneer relics gathered throughout the Oregon country will be featured, is planned, and Salem people will be asked to contribute to this as well as the industrial parade. Another attendant feature of the pageant will be a great air circus.

Eugene people, determined to give a pioneer atmosphere for the event, will dress throughout July in pioneer costumes. Not a mile in the city will lay hand on a razor from June 20 until the pageant is over, and visitors at Eugene during the pageant should see a strange spectacle of bearded men, miners' costumes, sunbonnets and flowing cotton dresses.

IDAHO GOVERNOR FAVORS NEW LINE

Governor Baldrige of Idaho is not in sympathy with the petition of the Oregon public service commission which has requested permission to intervene and oppose construction of the proposed Idaho-Pacific railroad from Nysa, Oregon, to Winnemucca, Nevada.

"We are for the proposed railroad extension," said Governor Baldrige, "for the reason that it will open up the markets of California to our products by a shorter and more direct route. Virtually all of the dairy products of southern Idaho are sold in California, and it is now necessary to ship them by a round-about route. I cannot see why the construction of this railroad would interfere with the construction of the proposed Crane-Crescent Lake line."

GRANGE MEMBERS GO TO CONVENTION

Makes Housekeeping Easy

Housekeeping should be easy in such a house as this. It is an inspiration to orderliness. Special care has been used in handling the floor plan to provide every necessary convenience and assure step and labor savings. The dining room has been eliminated and in its place is a comfortable-sized dinette. Both bedrooms have cross ventilation. Further information about this plan may be had from C. S. Hamilton Furniture store, or by application to The Statesman.

MRS. IDA MAY DAUE IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. Ida May Dause, for the past 40 years a resident of Salem, died at the family home at 1095 Saginaw street Friday, following an illness which has extended from early in the year when she contracted influenza. She had been seriously ill less than a month.

Mrs. Dause was 64 years old and the widow of Alexander Dause, who died here January 22, 1929.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Clough-Houston chapel, Rev. S. Darlow Johnson of the Leslie Memorial church officiating. Burial will be made in Belcrest Memorial park.

Mrs. Dause is survived by five sons and one daughter: Hubert Dause of Marion, Elmer, Desmond, Clifford and Earl Dause all of Seattle; also one brother, H. H. Turner of Los Angeles, and a number of grandchildren.

Backward Season Does Not Harm Forage Crops; Crown Borer Doing Little Harm

That crop conditions in the Salem district are particularly good was revealed in a Statesman survey, conducted during the week, in various communities throughout the valley. Although the season has been backward and everything is a bit later than usual the general quality and quantity of both fruit and forage crops is above the average.

Late rains are prolonging the strawberry crop and only a few districts are suffering loss from the crown borer. A light cherry crop is reported from most districts but the quality of fruit is exceptionally good. Prunes, pears and peaches also look well for this time of year.

Hay, grain and flax crops will be unusually heavy, owing to copious rainfall and lack of extreme heat.

McCoy Outlook Good
McCoy, June 8.—The crops around the McCoy vicinity are doing exceptionally well this spring, according to Waldo Finn, McCoy farmer. The spring sowing is all done with gardens and root crops in. The spring rains are proving very beneficial to the crops but not so the strawberries and hay which is down. The prune crop will probably be a bit spotted this year but is above the average and is developing well. All crops are in good condition.

Flax Growers Happy
MONMOUTH, June 8.—Due to the copious recent rainfall, local flaxgrowers are optimistic over the crop prospects. Except for a few farmers, William Riddell, Jr., E. T. Evans, and William Riddell and sons, flax growing in this section is largely of an experimental nature. H. N. Mattison has about 30 acres this year and J. B. Horne about 25 acres.

Uncertainty over the availability of flax pullers was a retarding feature of this year's acreage. Strawberry Yield Good
SALEM HEIGHTS, June 8.—R. D. Hulse, a fruit grower of Salem Heights, reports that the strawberry yield is better this year than it was last year, however, about one fourth of the strawberries have been destroyed by the crown borer. Mr. Hulse also reports that the loganberry crop is going to be very light. There will be about a 20 per cent crop of cherries. There are very few prunes raised in Salem Heights proper, but the outlook on prunes are towards a bumper crop.

Jefferson Situation Backward
JEFFERSON, June 8.—Crop conditions around Jefferson are rather backward for some kinds of grain, owing to the cool weather and cold rains. There are some fields which look fine, Mr. Vail has a field of vetch which would be hard to beat. Strawberries are ripening and picking has commenced. The berries are a good quality, but there won't be a full crop. The peach and cherry trees were hit by the frost so there will be a short crop around here.

The outlook for prunes is quite good. Mr. V. D. Looney has a fairly good crop, he estimates that he will have a two thirds crop, while Ed Spellinger, living close by, will have a bumper crop of prunes.

Mr. R. C. Thomas' orchard joining the city limits, consists of a 200 acre prune orchard of which 100 acres are bearing now and expects about half a crop. Mr. Thomas also has a fine ten acre walnut orchard and the outlook is for a full crop.

Hay Stand Good
HOPEWELL, June 8.—The farmers of this community say they have a good stand of hay

'THE PIPER' GIVEN AGAIN AT THEATRE

An appreciative audience which responded with hearty applause to the work of the principals in "The Piper" as well as to the captivating talks and antics of the kiddies, witnessed the final performance of the production Friday night at the Grand theatre. Half of the proceeds went to the Salem General hospital for maintenance work.

Harold Mero as in the previous performances, presented a truly remarkable exhibition as "The Piper." His sympathetic interpretation of the role was enhanced by fitting grace of manner and a fine tone of voice.

Mrs. Otto K. Paulus, director of the production, came in for special comment from the theatergoers who remarked on the finish which marked the many scenes in the performance.

WARD McREYNOLDS NEW SALES HEAD

Manager for Vick Bros. Comes From Corvallis to Salem

Accepting the position of sales manager for Vick Bros., Salem dealers in Oakland-Pontiac sales Ward McReynolds is now on the road for sales with the aid of a rustling group of salesmen. McReynolds has been in the auto game since 1916, when he broke into it in Spokane. Then after four years in Seattle, he went to the Dalles where he resided for six years, being sales manager for the Willis-Overland dealer for four years.

In 1927 "Mac" went to Corvallis as sales manager for A. Wilhelm & Sons, a veteran automobile firm of the "heart-of-the-valley" city. On Mr. Wilhelm's death he served as manager of the firm for about a year. He has been in Salem since February.

"We are looking forward to an active buying season," said McReynolds in discussing his new connection. "Vick Brothers have held third place in new car deliveries in the five counties of their district for several years past and we propose to maintain this high sales record. It is a pleasure to be connected with an organization which has the standing and success of Vick Bros. The new Oakland-Pontiac line is proving a real winner."
