cently divorced wife and Oliver you're at.' Sewell, sportsman and Don Juan. the divorcee are to be married. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER DI.

patience and paced up and down ed behind a curtain. the too-thick rug. Finally, weary, he slumped into a gilt armchair Sewell to be ushered in through home. the bronze door. A half hour passed. Then an hour.

Suddenly the telephone operator raced into the lounge. You wanted to see Mr. Sewell, sir?" He was obviously laboring under considerable excitement, and he did not wait for a reply. "Mr Sewell's been murdered! "Murdered!"

"Yes-sir!" The operator swallowed. "I've just telephoned the police. Are you a friend of his?" Edison paused.

"Why-yes," he replied finally.

THE MURDER of officer who, in mystery plays, story. is made the butt of ridicule. His grammar was primitive, his conthe showman. In short, his general equipment fitted him for the construction. police station rather than the stage, which, upon due reflection, is not as incongruous as it may

Ten minutes after the news of in the East Nineties.

"Robbery?" demanded the Inraway, who was telephoning from Sewell's flat. "No. Not a sign of it. Looks like straight murder." "All right. I'll be up."

Marx put down the telephone, with displeasure. "What's up, precious?" and fat and housewifely

"Killing." "Who?" Mrs. Marx displayed from the streets below. usual interest of a spouse in her husband's labor.

collar (size seventeen) discarded The bedroom had four separate ner, and then swore at a recal- minded Marx as wasteful luxury, citrant stud. "Fellow named Sewell . . . Bridge player . . . muckymucky-muck . . .

"Oh, it'll go big in the papers." big in the papers. They'll be yelling for my scalp! "Oh, I don't know, honey. You may get a good break on it." A good break on a society to headquarters on suspicion. You He was struck by the unusual tressing than the high cost of illness.

DR COPELAND.

The New York City Department of Health has undertaken to collect "data from about 400 New York families who can supply a month-by-month record of all illnesses among their members," giving "all expenses for physician's fees, pre-scriptions, household remedies, drug-of this research the facts will be brought home more vividly than

Answers to Health Queries

"IN DOUBT." Q.—What shou

p girl aged tifteen, four feet clove suches tall, weigh?

2.—How can I grow taller?

to realize what a burden sickness supplies, hospital expenses and We do not need an official report

RIGHT LIVING BRINGS

FINANCIAL DIVIDENDS

Many of Those Illnesses Which are a Drag on the Family Income Can Be Prevented by Practicing Simple Hygiene, Says Dr. Copeland

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D. United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City. AVE you thought about the high cost of being sick? We know about the high cost of living. We know about the high cost of dying. But in many ways there are few things more dis-

York, are crowded all the time.

system are crowded with sufferers.

Of course we hear of more sickness in the But where is there a household in the whole of North America there is not sickness almost every week? Illness is the cause of

A National Committee on Cost of Medical Care has been organ-

Not alone does it take a lot of money but also the disturbance of the routine of the home and the anxiety of heart and mind cannot matter of self-control as regards the brought home more vividity than ever before. I pray that ways and means can be found to deal with the immediate problems of sickness. But after all it comes back to this, foes it not? The most sensible plan that can be devised is to impress on every single individual the importance of health. The rules of right living and simple hygiene are, in the last analysis, the surest remedy. When we can get every person in the civilized world to live so sanely that he will avoid the causes of preventable disease, then much of the aconomic distress will disappear.

Answers to Health Querice

pounds.

which to grow.

great economic distress. It saps the savings of many a family.

by all other sick combined.

It is amazing what percentage of the population is spending its time in the sick bed. The hospitals of a great city, for instance of New

It is not only physical sickness with which we have to deal. More hospital beds in the United States are occupied by mental cases than

I have observed with great interest that a memorial is being planned to the late Dr. Thomas

William Salmon, who was distinguished in the field of mental hygiene. As part of the campaign it is being pointed out how prevalent the mental diseases really are. Every clinic and hospital devoted to the diseases of the brain and nervous

A .- She should weigh about 106

2.-You have five years more in

2.-How can I lose weight?

J. A. B. Q.-I have recently ha

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE | gotta treat 'em with kid gloves. | calm of the still face. It was as Phillip Edison is host at a It ain't like a regular killing, if the man had been murdered in night-club party to his just re- where you don't know where his sleep.

Marx no wtugged at his coat. Carraway, Edison presumes that Sewell and He believed that crime was the Marx. exclusive business of the underworld, and was always annoyed when amateurs forced themselves ively. "Who found him?" on the attention of the police. Edison repaired to the lounge, In the underworld there were decorated excessively in the Louis known criminals and stool pig-XV period as conceived by a real eons. Every crime had its guide estate entrepreneur from the posts. But in these amateur af-Bronx. He lit a cigarette in his im- fairs of the emotions a man work-

In the street, Marx plunged inand tried to relax, but he to the subway and was deposited couldn't. He kept his head turned a few doors from the skyscraper to the entrance, watching for apartment where Sewell made his

A uniformed policeman greeted him "Sergeant Carraway and some detectives are upstairs. The Assistant Medical Examiner is coming soon, sir.' Marx nodded. "Keep the reporters out," he commanded. Marx distrusted reporters. "And keep all the guys that work in the building here. Nobody's to leave."

The officer saluted. Marx stepped into the elevator cage. A sallow youth of twenty-four was his pilot, and under his nervous hands the cage literally leaped to Inspector Marx was that type the twenty-sixth and top-most

There was, Marx found, only one apartment on the floor, and versation was inelegant, he had that was Sewell's. It was an exno scintillating powers of deduc- traordinary apartment, designed tion to present with the flare of by an extraordinary man, for Sewell had personally supervised its Marx entered from the elevator through a stout green door, and down a long corridor, passing a kitchen, a butler's pantry, and a butler's bedroom and bath. Then Sewell's violent end was telephon- Marx found himself in the huge ed to headquarters, it was relay- living room of a duplex aparted to Marx's unpretentious flat ment, with a miniature minstrel gallery gracing one side of it Sewell had covered the four walls spector of Detective Sergeant Car- of this giant room with clear mirrors that flashed into Marx's bewildered eyes, and made him blink.

From this room of mirrors through a narrow door, you came upon a terraced garden, wide and his big red face seemed sour enough to hold several chairs, a table and a garden lounge. Here one could look out upon a city of manded Mrs. Marx, who was big lights and stone, and a sky that was not quite so black and smudged and mottled as it appeared

Returning to the mirrored room, you mounted the walnut "One of those damn society stairway to the gallery, and found murders." Marx reached for his there a master bedroom and bath. during an informal but stout din- closets, which struck the practical It was in the room of mirrors that Sewell was found. He was seated in a low blue and white chair, his head bent, hands fold-"Yea," grunted Marx. "It'll go ed, facing the mirror of the left wall. He was dressed for dinner, and the blood on his shirt bosom told Marx he had been shot through the heart. As Marx surveyed him, he had an uneasy murder? Show me one of them feeling that other dead men were where we did anything with it. in the room-for the mirrors ech-Why, we're helpless. Those socie- oed the murder from each wall. ty people can't be dragged down | Marx moved nearer to Sewell

the night off?" "Yes."

"I do not know." "How long have you been with

"Russia." ain't it?" breathed "Pretty, who stood behind "Yea," drawled Mark. "Nowlet's see . . . " He paused reflect-

"His butler, valet or whatcha dier. call him. Russian, or something." "Where is he?" "Jim!" Carraway bawled to one waved his hands. The detectives brought Sewell's sole servant from the corridor into the room. He was a little over any?" snapped Marx. forty, with high cheekbones, and rather small, black eyes. He carried himself well; not so much chair?" with the faintly subservient man-man who had known wealth. What's your name?" growled Marx.

"Ivan Stanupin." "Good." One of the detectives grinned.

"I know nothing-nothing at all," the butler protested. "You found him, didn't you?" "Yes."

"At two o'clock. I have already told the gentlemen. He gave me the evening off. He was going to a party. And I went to Elizabethtown where I have my friends, and I did not come home until two o'clock. Then I opened the door and put on the light, and I am thinking of nothing, and I go on him, did they?" into this room when---

The butler turned to look at the seated corpse, and paused. 'You found him in this chair?' "Yes. So I go to the elevator to trip the butler. and make excitement, and that is all I know."

"Mmm. . . . Was this your night off?" "No, sir, Mr. Sewell asked me te take the night off." "Did he often ask you to take STORIES

"Why?"

"Six months." "Where were you before?"

"Mmm. . . . What did you do in Russia?" "I was an officer in the Guards before the revolution." The man seemed a little more certain of himself then. Marx looking at him could believe he had been a sol-

"Now, listen," began Marx, tak ing out a cheap cigar and lighting it, "was there anything taken that you know of?" of the detectives, "Bring in the "I do not know," the butlet

> "Was the place out of order "No. Just like always." "You found him sitting in his

"Yes." "Dead?" ner of the good domestic as a

"No. sir."

"Yes." "When did you leave the house?"

"At six o'clock." "And you came back at two? "Yes, sir." "So he was murdered between six and two, ha?" "I do Lot know." "No. You don't seem to know helluva lot." Marx glared at him. The butler puzzled him. shine and where we can go to

"You know who his friends are, don't you?" "No, sir. He never told me." "Oh-he didn't!" Marx sneer-ed. 'I suppose nobody ever called Hanid. "Yes sir. They did." "And when they called they never gave you their names-did "No, sir. They didn't."

"They didn't? Say-who were his visitors-all women?" "Yes, sir. All women." (To be continued temorrow) GOOD-NIGHT By Max Trell = with designs.

"-and look around," conclud-

They walked in on the ground

"Isn't the wallpaper pretty!"

"Isn't the Wallpaper Pretty?"

windows," remarked Hanid.

get in. It's dim all the time."

"I'll take this corner,"

our new home," said Yam.

very minute," he added.

Yam.

Hanid.

the middle.

ferent-colored hearts."

Flor.

ed Mij.

cozy room.

The Shadow- Children, Dodging the Sun, Move Into a House of Cards

"I wish," said Yam, "that we din't have so much sunshine." Mij, Flor, Hanid and Yam, the other little shadow children, with the backward names - nodded their heads.

"Yes," the agreed, "that would be pleasant."

"Shadows, you see, don't like sunshine. That's why they are always using their masters and mistresses as a shield. Now they dart in front of them, now they hide behind them - always they seek to get as far away from the sun as possible. It is the same with all shadows, even your own. "If we could only move-" be gan Flor.

"-could only move into house where there was no sunshine," broke in Mij. who was Flor's twin.

"We could move to the North Pole," said Yam. "Then we'd have six months of night with no sunshine at all."

"But," interrupted Hanid, "then we'd have six months of daylight, with nothing but sunshine.'

All at once Knarf gave a shout. "I know a house," he exclaimed, "where there's never any sun-"You got no idea where he live at once." The others gazed at the little shadow-boy in puzzlement. As a rule when Knarf made a suggestion like this, he had a surprise in store. But no - he looked quite serious this time. "Is it far from here?" asked

"It's on the table in the nurs ery." was his amazinz reply. "In the nursery!" they cried. 'Why, what kind of a house is they?" Marx was obviously trying it?" For answer Knarf led them into the nursery. Sure enough, on leyes, when India, the maid enthe table was the semblance of a | tered the nursery. "A little fresh house. It had an entrance and a air." said she, flinging open the little porch, and a square roof and | window, "will do no harm."

around it several times, admiring Home-Making Helps the outside, which was covered "Let's go inside and-" began floor and found themselves in a FOODSTUFFS exclaimed Yam. "It's all little dif-"The next floor," said Knarf, pointing above, "is done in diaposed stuffs. Merely habit—and until ready to use.

By ELEANOR ROSS

CAREFUL WRAPPING OF

rigid economy. posure to the dirt-laden air.

Yet, in handling foods, once ingly brief space of time. they get into the home, there are "It doesn't seem to have any some habits which rather nul.i-"Of course not," said Knarf, 'That is why the sunlight doesn't thing and for which, incidentally, It certainly seemed as if Knarf were right. "We can move in this it which is found in many kitchthough the paper wrapper pro-"And I'll take that corner," said tects the bread, the wrapper itself "And we'll take the other two corners," said the twins. As there on the grocer's shelves. Therefore, were no corners left, Knarf took it should be removed immediately bought in paper jars-like cream, it comes into the kitchen. Only "Now let's all take a nap in bread-box, never the paper. Scarcely had they closed their

Similarly, the carefully wrapped meat comes from the butcher are made quite sturdy, neverthe-

But she was wrong. It did do children's house, For it was noth- and cream being especially sensi-The shadow-children walked harm. It let in a breeze which ing but a house of cards, you see, tive and absorptive.

GET FULL VALUE FROM THE and is placed, paper and all in the refrigerator. Not so goodfor several reasons. Paper which Our astonishment at the way has been handled by several pergood food is sold in market places sons and exposed to the outside abroad is only equalled by the air shouldn't be placed in the imamusement with which French | maculately clean refrigerator, Alwomen in particular, regard our so, if the meat is covered by thick passion for wrapping everything. paper it is kept from thorong In the French streets it's a reg- chilling in the refrigerator, Conular sight-the half-yard of bread sequently, the better plan is to tucked under the house-wife's remove the meat immediately if arm, and no paper or anything to comes to the kitchen from its pacover it. Not that the streets per wrapping, place in the plate abroad are more immaculate than or bowl reserved for the purpose. ours, or that their germs are bet- and put in the refrigerator where ter trained and don't alight on ex- it will be kept thoroughly cold

Any food that comes wrapped Here everything we buy is wrap- in paper boxes or cartons should ped most skilfully. Bread comes be removed immediately and storin tightly sealed wrappers and ed in the kitchen in tin, glass or quite mechanically the grocer china containers. To leave an opwill wrap our pound of butter in ened paper box on the kitchen an extra paper, despite the fact shelf is to invite any insects that that it comes in its own carton, may be lurking in the neighboroil-paper lined. So much the bet- hood-and some always are. The ter. Here we believe there's no insect world is always with us, such thing as too much vigilance whether within easy visible disin protecting our foods from ex- tance or not. Any exposed food will bring them out in an amaz-

But there are other kinds of containers so specially adapted to fy the work of the manufacturer their foods that they need only who so carefully wraps every- be kept as is. Coffee that comes in well-sealed tins need not be we pay when we buy these well- transferred, but opened so that protected foods. One curious hab- the lid is not broken and can a ways be replaced so as to keep ens is to toss the loaf of bread, the jar airtight. Olive oil in tins paper wrapper and all, into the should be left there. It should nice clean bread-box. Now, a not be poured even in small quantitles in glass bottles and left to stand, Oliveoil is affected adversis kept exposed, both in trans- ely by sunlight, and should be portation to the shop and while kept in an opaque container. Any liquid foods that are milk, peanut butter, etc., should the bread should be kept in the be transferred immediately to some more substantial bowl or pitcher, While these containers less prolonged soaking may afpromptly blew down the shadow- feet the flavor of the food-milk

By CLIFF STERRETT

By RUSS WESTOVER

POLLY AND HER PALS

WHY CANTCHA GIT A NOTE OUT OF IT. ELMER? HAVE T YOU FERGOT FERGOT NUTHIN' HOW TO IT'S THIS HERE CITY PLAY? LIFE, WOT'S RUINT MY WIND!

TILLIE, THE TOILER

I'M TAKING MY SIMPLY VACATION NEXT MARVELOUS WEEK, TILLIE . JACK. BUT WOULDN'T IT BE GOSH, I'LL GREAT IF YOU HAVE TO COULD WORK FAST TO GET MY SHOPPING DONE IF SO DO 0

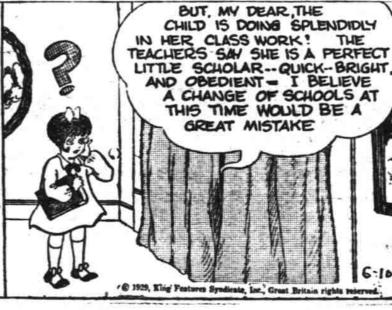

OH, MR. SIMPKINS, YOU'RE JUST THE SWEETEST OLD BUTTER BALL FOR PUTTING MAC DOWN FOR NEXT WEEK BECAUSE I KNOW MAC WILL CHANGE WITH DEAR, TOO

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY

SCHOOL DOES NOT OFFER PROPER ATMOSPHERE FOR A CHILD THAT BEARS OUR NAME! ALL OF THE MEMBERS OF MY FAMILY, EITHER HAD PERSONAL TUTORS OR ATTENDED PRIMATE SCHOOLS, AND I WOULD SUGGEST WE PLACE MISS ANN, IN A PRIVATE SCHOOL, AT ONCE

YOU MAY HAVE YOUR OWN OPINION

MY DEAR HUSBAND, BUT A PUBLIC

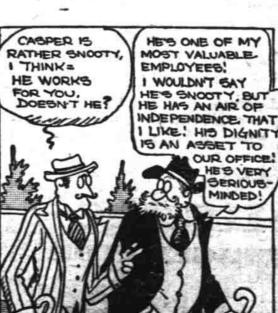

BEGINNING TO LOOK AS IF OUR LITTLE ANNIE'S POPULARITY HAS BEEN LOST, STRAYED. STOLEN WHAT'S IT WE WONDER

ELECTION FOR PRESIDENT OF CLUB RESULTED IN A TIE BETWEE CASPER, AND COLONEL HOOFER CONSEQUENTLY A THIRD MAN AS CHOSEN

IF CASPER AT NOT BEING CENTAINLY DOES NOT SHOW IT:

TOOTS AND CASPER M. G. Q.—What should a girl weigh who is 15 years old and 6 ft.

THE GOOD-FELLOWS

LEADING TO?

By VERD

By JIMMY MURPHY