FEW OFFICIALS REMAIN ON JOB

Numerous Activities in Various Sections Attract State Men Away

With bridge dedication ceremonies at Smith River, Cal., review of the Oregon national guard troops at Camp Clatsop, conventions, state and national, and the first tinge of summer heat, state officials virtually was at a standstill here Saturday as far as state officials are concerned.

Probably the largest number of state officials was attracted to Camp Clatsop, where they reviewed the national guard troops as guests of Brigadier General White. The bridge dedication ceremonies proved a strong counter attraction while western conventions and short jaunts contributed to the weekend exodus.

Many See Review At Camp Clatsop
Among those who attended the Camp Clatsop review were Hal E. Hoss, secretary of state; C. N. Langhridge, deputy secretary of state; Carl Gabrielson, head of the state motor vehicle department; T. A. Rafferty, chief state traffic officer; Carl Abrams, secretary state board of control; Miss Beatrice Walton, secretary to Governor Patterson; George Alexander, state prohibition director, and Sam A. Koser, state budget director.

State officials attending the bridge dedication included Governor Patterson, Roy Klein, highway engineer, Joseph Devers, attorney for the state highway department, and James Stewart, investigator for the state land department.

Kay and Howard Both Out Of State
Thomas B. Kay, state treasurer, is in Europe, while C. A. Howard, state superintendent of schools, is enroute east to attend the national convention of the national educational association. George M. Brown, justice of the state supreme court, is at the Dalles recuperating from illness.

Other state officials marked absent from their desks today included Rhea Luper, state engineer, at Enterprise; L. E. Bean, public service commissioner, at Washington; Brigadier General White at Camp Clatsop; Tom Riley, assistant to Brigadier General White, at Camp Clatsop; O. H. Bortzmeier, member public service commission, at Portland; James Goodman, deputy state insurance commissioner, at San Francisco; and J. Lyman Stearns, superintendent of the state school for the deaf, at Minneapolis, Minn.

Mr. Stumbo has been operating theatres in Mill City, Sheridan, Williamina, Valsetz and Grande Ronde. He will continue his shows in these places.

PASTORS HOLD SEMINAR HERE

Staff of 25 Meets On Willamette Campus Past Two Weeks

Unique type of religious education work has been in progress in Salem the past two weeks with 25 persons, carefully selected from Oregon, Washington and northern Idaho, meeting in almost constant session engaged in a basic research work which even the conservatives have declared will create a "new day" in church work and activity. Sessions have been held at Willamette university and the scholars housed at Lausanne hall.

The procedure is styled a seminar in religious education, but in reality has included almost every aspect of religious emphasis and church problems. The educational approach to the church establishment problem was seen in its relationship to every phase of church program and purpose.

The work was under the auspices of the board of education of the Methodist Episcopal church, with Dr. Charles R. Bose, Jr., and Dr. Nathaniel F. Forsyth, both of Chicago, in charge. Rev. Edgar J. Purdy of Tacoma and Rev. C. I. Andrews of Salem were the local promoters. Mrs. F. D. Leamer of Salem served as secretary and stenographic reporter, and Rev. Oliver Gill of Pleasant Home was librarian.

KNIGHT MEMORIAL CHOIR IN CONCERT

The chorus choir of the Knight Memorial church will present a sacred concert this evening beginning at 8 o'clock. Rev. H. C. Stover is director and Donald J. Allison, accompanist.

The program includes the following numbers:
"Praise Ye the Lord, Your God" (Howood), Choir.
"Protect Us Through the Coming Night" (Curchimann), Organ Choir.
"Till Art My God" (Blount), Solo, Miss Pearl Eyr.
"O Mother Dear Jerusalem" (Lansing), duet, Benetta Edwards and Harriett Adams.
"Fading, Still Fading" (Heyser), with obligato solo by Leonard Chadwick.
"Closely Still with Thee" (Rolle), Quartet, Mrs. David Talmadge, Mrs. H. L. Braden, Miss Pearl Eyr and Miss Myra Gleason.
"Praise the Name of the Lord" (Petrie), Choir.
