SKY WIERDLY LIGHTED

McAdams, Astronomer, Makes Statement

EXPLANATION IS VAGUE

Five hundred, the telephone number of The Statesman, was more than usually busy on Sunday evening about dark, by persons asking what was the significance of the strange scene in the northwest heavens—was it a meteor? Or was it a comet? Or was it some sending up fireworks? Or had an airplane come to grief aloft in the skies?

L. L. McAdams, local astronomer, Monday brought the following explanation to The Statesman office:

"What was it? That was the question of a number of people in Salem Sunday at 8 o'clock. 'At that hour, a wonderful formation occurred in the northwest. Its exact location was in the bowl of the big dipper, in the constellation of Ursa Major (the great bear). I cannot account for such strange, wonderful and beautiful phenomenon. In answer to many telephone calls, I could only answer, I don't know its cause. 'But let me in my own way give a simple description of one of the beauties of the heavens. All at once, out of a clear and cloudless sky, burst forth this nebulous ring. Its first appearance was tinged with red blended to yellow. Its outer edge was clouded black and gray, and as I gazed in wonder and admiration on this charming scene, as the spectrum rays darted hither and thither, in naked eye observation, the ring was about three feet in diameter, being somewhat oval, and this ring commenced to enlarge and resolved itself into perfect letter G simultaneously throwing out a comet like tail 30 degrees in length—its movement being to the southwest. It is my hope that this strange occurrence has been seen by some of our great astronomers, and that we may be able to account for it."

Seen in Portland
The Oregonian of Monday reported that "an unusually brilliant meteor, visible in all sections of Portland and in some outlying communities was seen in that city by many residents of that city on Sunday night about 9 o'clock."

A. V. Goddard, Portland teacher of astronomy, said it "looked like a rocket, with a long train of fire. It was in the constellation Leo. The meteor was very high." A man in Estacada, 30 miles away, said "the smoke remained in the sky about 25 minutes, and took the form of a question mark." A Portland woman said "it seemed to explode, lighting up the countryside."

There Is No Conflict
Mr. McAdams explained to the reporter that his statement that the appearance was in the constellation of Ursa Major seemed to conflict with the Goddard version that it was in the Leo constellation. But not so, Goddard was looking south. Adams was looking north. The Goddard statement would thus go to con-

Rietsma of Chicago and Martin of Holland. Funeral services Wed. at 11:30 p. m. at Rigdon's mortuary. Interment City View cemetery.

LEE HEARS PROTEST ON INSURANCE FIRM

Hearing of the application of the North American Automobile association for a license to operate in Oregon, was held in the offices of Clare Lee, state insurance commissioner Monday. The application was protested by the Portland Better Business bureau and chambers of commerce of several Oregon cities, and a number of automotive trades and automobile dealers' associations.

Robert Mount, manager of the Better Business bureau, alleged that the applicant had been guilty of questionable practices and had misrepresented its methods of doing business in both Washington and California.

Clarion Annual Makes Profit is Shown in Report

All expenses of the 1929 Clarion annual were made from receipts from the book and a balance of $30 remained when the account was closed Monday according to Robert Needham, manager. The balance remaining will be augmented considerably next fall, it is hoped, as nearly 100 copies of the book remain to be sold. Miss Mildred Jenks was editor of the yearbook which was generally regarded as one of the best ever published by the high school.

He reached here yesterday!

ROBERT E. CLIFT
Driving the Elks Magazine trans-continental car, a Studebaker, from New York to Los Angeles, reaching here yesterday. That's a tough trip—and it takes a tough oil! So Quaker State Motor Oil is in the crankcase!

—And that Studebaker is getting an extra quart in every gallon!

Yes Sir! ... a quart more of real lubrication from every gallon of Quaker State than it would get from a gallon of ordinary motor oil! And Why?

Because ordinary refining leaves in every gallon of oil, a quart or more of material that has little or no value in lubricating an automobile motor ... a quart of waste!

But Quaker State Motor Oil is not refined in the ordinary way. It is super-refined—carried a step further than ordinary oils. And this "extra step" removes the quart of waste that ordinary refining leaves in. In its place you get a quart of the finest lubricant. So you really get an extra quart in every gallon of Quaker State!

And all four quarts in every gallon are made from 100% pure Pennsylvania Grade Crude Oil—the very finest that nature produces!

The trans-continental car pictured above is getting that "extra sweet" lubrication from Quaker State. You can get it, too! Just drive up to the green and white Quaker State service station sign and say the word!
