

YANK AVIATORS WINGING EAST

Williams and Yancey Take Off Despite Heavy Fog
at Old Orchard

While over most of the course were said by friends to have been the reason for cutting down of the fuel supply.

Cost of Project
Fixed at $30,000

The Airway Transport company of New York of which Williams is president, was revealed as the banker of the flight. Charles Ramage, New York attorney and Williams' business manager, said the flight, including the plane which was purchased from Mrs.
James H. Stillman, had cost $30,000.

The course as outlined by Yancey will take the Pathfinder over Cape Sables, N. S., then east-southeast to the "corner" junction of ship lanes, 1,000 miles off Old Orchard, then along the line parallel to Cape Ortel, Spain, across to Bayonne, France, and over the Mediterranean to Rome.

Yancey in addition to relieving Williams at the controls of the plane and plotting the course, will take temperature readings for Dr. James H. Kimball, New York weather man, whose advice on Atlantic weather conditions had been depended upon by all fliers.

"THE SKYSCRAPER MURDER" that Mr. Slater, himself will be able to tell you the story of the case, and much more completely than we possibly could. We can only guess.

The Frenchman nodded.

"What are your orders?" he asked.

"Simply to keep Slater under surveillance night and day."

"That we have done. We have assigned two of our best men."

"Good."

"And we shall want to call on this Mrs. Earl St. Clair. You have the address?"

"Of course."

The Frenchman gave an address of a private home near the Beach.

"We shall proceed tonight," said the doctor. "The sooner this is over, the better we shall feel.
And we have nothing to gain by delay. It would be best, under all circumstances, for your men to guard the St. Clair home, both front and rear. Mr. Slater may want to make an abrupt exit after we leave."

The Frenchman promised the fullest co-operation, and both the doctor and Inspector Marx thanked him profusely.

"We'll just stop at the hotel to wash up," suggested the doctor, "and then we'll proceed at once to the American widow. If we haven't solved the Sewell case tonight, Inspector, I'll be very much disappointed."

MILLION DOLLARS IN OPUM CONFISCATED

viction of William Rosa, former clerk in the Hawaiian United States court, and two wealthy Hawaiian Chinese.

The search was conducted by permission of the state department and word was awaited here by the collector of customs as to the disposal of Mrs. Kao and her husband, who arrived on the scene as officials were opening the trunks.

Mrs. Kao was ignorant of the contents, she told the officers, saying they were the property of friends in China, who influenced her to use her diplomatic privileges to bring baggage in.

At their insistence, she said, she produced the certificates of exemption from search and had them attached to 11 pieces of baggage. She understood at that time, she declared, the baggage contained "presents" from friends to her friends in this country.

When asked to reveal the names of the people here who were to receive the "presents" she refused, saying that as she now knew they contained opium, those who requested her to have the baggage brought here "would surely kill her" or have friends in San Francisco do away with her at their orders.

Before the examination of the trunks here, John L. McNab and Timothy Healy, prominent San Francisco attorneys retained by the Kaos to protect their interests withdrew from the case.

Representing the Chinese and his wife were attorneys Aaron Cohen and Vincent Surr. Before the search started, they protested vigorously on the grounds that the search was a violation of the treaty rights between China and the United States, under which baggage belonging to members of the diplomatic corps is usually granted immunity from search.

Smith, however, who supervised the searching of the trunks, said he had ample grounds for opening them and did so, with the result of the opium discovery.

Smith also pointed out that Mrs. Kao had attached seals to the baggage, and signed a declaration that the baggage was her own, and that the responsibility rested on her.

No estates may be closed until a clearance has been filed therein by the state tax commission according to a letter received by County Judge Siegmund from that body Monday in which the commission outlines the working of the new intangible tax law. The court explained that the letter was sent in response to numerous inquiries being received from attorneys for estates and trusts.

The letter continues:

"A five per cent tax is imposed upon the income received from money and credits subsequent to December 31, 1928 in lieu of property taxes. While the act is retrospective to January 1, 1929, it did not become a law until the 4th of this month. Esates closed on and after the latter date should have either an intangible tax receipt in full or a certificate from this office that no tax is due.

"In order to aid us in determining the tax liability, it is required that the administrator or executor furnish us a copy of the final account showing in full the receipts and disbursements, duly certified by the probate court.

"You may be interested in knowing that Judge Taxwell of Multnomah county, who handles a very large portion of the Oregon estates, has volunteered his full cooperation and assures us that he will approve no final accounts until the requirements of this commission have been properly complied with."

Quantity packing of both loganberries and cherries was started at local canneries Monday, with prospects for a steady but probably short run of both. Cherries are particularly scarce. Canners men said the loganberry crop was not equal to that of last year, although close to normal.

A difference of opinion has become evident on the question as to whether all of the loganberries will be taken, which of course is an important matter to the growers. Some packers have predicted that all will be accepted, while others expressed a belief that some could not be handled.

Black caps and red raspberries are also arriving at the canneries.
These are minor crops. The production of black caps promises to be about normal, while red raspberries are slightly below average yield.

Reid Murdoch & Co., at the West Salem cannery, are working on cherries in tandem time and loganberries at night, both of which are coming in good tonnage now. They will later get a quantity of red raspberries. A few strawberries are still coming in.
While they were running day and night crews on canning and cold pack strawberries, they had about 500 people in their working force at that plant.

After winning the "air derby" race from Portland to Silverton Saturday, Lee Eyerly of Salem took first place Sunday in the 20 mile free for all race staged in connection with Silverton's third annual air circus. Tex Rankin finished second. Eyerly also won the balloon bursting contest, and look second place in the dead stick landing event. Eyerly brought back with him a large silver cup, a plaque and more than $100 in prize money.

Inc., on State street is expected to be undertaken this week as the room is rapidly nearing completion, preparatory to its being oc-has a 30-year lease on the loca-
