Miss Livingston's first suit was at this time.

Miss Livingston painted a picture of an ardent wooing and finally a proposal of marriage from Hardinge. The wealthy manufacturer however, maintained that he had merely befriended the woman and asked her to marry him on the condition that she would sign a pre-nuptial agreement limiting her claim on his estate to $100,000 in lieu of her dower rights. The prenuptial agreement, however, was never
