more nearly adjust production to create permanent business institutions for marketing which, owned and controlled by the farmers shall be so wisely devised and soundly founded and well managed, that they by effecting economies and giving such stability will grow in strength over the years to come.

The president said the board members represented the expressed voices of the many farmers' cooperative organizations. He invested them "with responsibility, authority and resources such as have never before been conferred by our government in assistance to any industry."

The seven board members and Secretary Hyde of the department of agriculture, also a member, assembled early at the White House. An eighth man is to be selected, one to represent the vast wheat industry, but lack of unanimity among the wheat growers and other factors are delaying a selection.

Indication of Procedure Given

Mr. Legge said no assumptions were in order as to which commodity would receive first attention over the wheat market price increase today. They attributed this to the "psychological effect" of the farm board's establishment. Mr. Legge added that "we have a lucky break at the start anyway."

The chairman intimated that the representatives of several other commodities besides wheat were placing early claims for a share of the $500,000,000 loan fund at the board's disposal.

Congress already has made $150,000,000 of this fund available, but Mr. Legge said its disposition awaited consideration.

The next few days, he declared, would be spent in organization work and in going over the volume of material submitted to the board. Asked if the board had received some voluntary "cures for the farmer," Mr. Legge replied "many."

The chairman hinted the board was going to have to do some studying to determine the full extent of its authority under the act recently passed by congress giving the board charge of a federal marketing system.

Before an organization is set up, advisory councils are to be chosen for each commodity. These councils will preside over stabilization corporations which are to be formed by the producers through their cooperative marketing organizations.

Other members of the board are James C. Stone, Lexington, Ky., vice chairman, representing tobacco; Carl Williams, Oklahoma City, Okla., cotton; B. Deannan, Charles C. Teague, Los Angeles, fruit farming; William F. Schilling, Northfield, Minn., dairying; and Charles S. Wilson, Hall, N. Y., miscellaneous northeastern agriculture.

due because we sincerely believe that only in freedom will we be able to work out our destinies."

Roxas asked that Congress authorize a plebiscite in the islands on the independence question and declare if 90 percent of the people did not favor freedom, he would abandon his efforts in that direction. He predicted also that if the issue were carried to the American electorate the decision would be overwhelmingly in favor of independence.

The witness declared he had been taught the A B C's on the knees of an American soldier, that he was left fatherless before birth by the "tyranny of Spain," and that each year on the anniversary of his father's death he swore devotion to the freedom of his country.

Roxas was congratulated on his testimony by both republicans and democrats on the committee. Senator Connally, democrat Texas, told him that "if the island had 'any more like you they would be able to govern themselves.'"

Two other members of the special commission will be heard tomorrow.
Chester H. Gray, Washington Farm Bureau Federation, and Charles W. Holman, representing the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation, precipitated the clash in views by advocating the placing of duties on Philippine products that compete in this country.

Gray contended high rates of duty on agricultural products would be of no assistance to the American farmer as long as imports from the islands are allowed to enter free. Holman urged that if duties are levied against the Philippines, this is in line with a proposal by the National Grange.

Sidelights: On the Conventions and the Delegates

Most presidents of national women's organizations, when they preside at conventions, are presented with bouquets of flowers, but it remained for an unidentified person to place a large basket of luscious cherries on the desk of Mrs. Sophia Waverling of Quincy, Ill., president of the National Catholic Women's Union. And have they been appreciated? Mrs. Waverling said the only trouble was that everyone invited to take handful had taken two handful, and that Rev. Albert Mayer, spiritual director of the union, had filled his pockets declaring that his middle name was "cherries."

And without bragging about Salem's cherries too much, it must be considered a most generous and sincere compliment that was paid to them by Joseph Adler of New York. The eastern man sat eating black cherries from a small basket, and when he had collected a number of pits he took a score or so and folded them carefully in an envelope and placed the envelope in his pocket, saying "I'm going to take these back home and plant them. Grow? Sure they'll grow!"

Outstanding among the many eminent Catholic laymen present for the convention is F. P. Kenkel of St. Louis, director of the Central Bureau of the Veroin. He is probably the only Catholic in the United States to be honored with two Papal decorations, he being a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Gregory and also a Knight of the Holy Sepulchre.

"I'd rather talk less and work more," said the distinguished Dr. Aloysius Muench, and work seems to be the main spring in his life, for he is kept constantly busy with his duties on the staff of the St. Francis Seminary at St. Francis, Wisconsin. This big Catholic seminary turns many applicants for study away as it has no facilities to take care of more than 300 students at a time. It was founded 22 years ago and its graduates may be found in the priesthood at all points of the middle west and Pacific coast. Dr. Muench is going to take a wee bit of a vacation along with his trip, for he is spending three weeks following the convention in visiting Rainier, Glacier and Yellowstone national parks.

Msgr. Arthur Lane, of "All Saints" in Portland, is greatly beloved throughout the Willamette valley, having served for 20 years in the parish at Albany. Msgr. Lane, who was a visitor at the Sunday services at the state fairgrounds, is the first Oregon born priest to be placed in this state. He is a descendant of Governor Lane, the first territorial officer of Oregon, and is a cousin to Senator Harry Lane.

"How did Lindbergh manage to come to this convention?" asked one of the visiting priests at St. Joseph's hall Monday morning. And he pointed to John A. Suellentrop of Colwich, Kansas. The delegate from Kansas is almost a perfect double for the flying Colonel, and the resemblance is causing much comment not only in the convention hall but also among passing strangers.

"Oh, I'm so sleepy I can hardly keep my eyes open. The only thing that makes me feel that way is the climate and the altitude," said Mrs. George H. Breitenbach, first vice-president of the Wisconsin State League, stifled a yawn.

Another convention visitor who agrees heartily with Mrs. Breitenbach on the sleep-producing qualities of the Oregon climate is J. Math. Aretz of St. Paul. "The thing I like best about this country is that I sure can sleep!" Mr. Aretz smiled. "I'm enjoying this so I've been visiting with some of my wife's relatives at Silverton. They didn't know I was coming until they saw my picture in the Oregonian the other day and so they came over to have a real visit." The genial man from Minnesota is a regular treasure-house of Veroin history. He told how the Veroin was founded in Baltimore in 1855 by a group of Catholic German pioneers to protect the welfare of German Catholic immigrants and to assist and encourage them in settling in this nation. The Veroin, which numbers 11,000 branches which are formed into state federations which in turn comprise the Central Veroin, numbers 50,000 members. Of particular interest to Mr. Aretz is the education status of schools being conducted by Catholic organizations.

One of the most universally popular places near the convention halls is the out-door dining room arranged beneath the trees behind the parish house. Delegates are at the tables not only at the noon hour, when women of the parish serve luncheon, but they may be seen there at any time of the day. Writing letters, rehearsing speeches or just sitting.

The 18 delegates from Wisconsin will meet for their luncheon together in this outdoor dining room today.

An unusually fine compliment was paid Archbishop Howard of Portland by August Brookland of St. Louis, director of the central bureau, during his speech at the fairgrounds Sunday afternoon, when he quoted extensively from the Archbishop's booklet on "Catholic Action." The Oregon prelate's booklet is receiving the interested attention of a number of Catholic church dignitaries throughout the nation.

It would be a dull day if a visitor from the middle west couldn't make a mistake about some of the natural features of this section of the country. A convention delegate looked up at the trees on the parish grounds, under which she sat during the Monday noon luncheon, and exclaimed in rapturous tones, "Oh, what lovely loganberry trees!"

a space beside each runway, $250 for fencing, $44 for additional clearing, $375 for engineering and $200 for filling ditches, making a total of $40,659.68 or $1,000 more than that.

Bids for fencing material were opened. George E. Allen bid $130.16, Salem Hardware company an amount which required some computation to determine, and the Public-Store company $159.95 on one set of specifications and $218.85 on another. The bids were referred to the airport committee with power to act.

The airport committee brought in resolutions to change the time for opening bids on materials for the hangar to August 5, and also to provide for opening bids on the remaining bonds on the same date. All bids on drains and construction of drains were rejected and a new call authorized.

to the Chinese legation here for a visa but this was said to be withheld under instructions from Nanking. He desired to go to Manchuria to open negotiations on the question.

There was much excitement in Moscow throughout the day. Many workers paraded in the streets with red banners and bands blaring revolutionary airs. They carried huge streamers with slogans demanding a determined stand against "Chinese fascists." All of the demonstrations passed the Chinese legation but there were no disorders.

TOKYO, July 15.—(AP)—Although Moscow's ultimatum expires tomorrow, reports from China indicate that the Chinese apparently are going ahead with their assumption of control of the Chinese eastern railway without much belief that Russia will resort to force of arms.

Renzo dispatches from Harbin state that the Chinese are busy cleaning up all details and taking over all railway property as well as closing all houses hitherto occupied by Soviet employees and confiscating Soviet forestry and mining concession in the railway zone.

Much interest has been aroused in the visit of M. Serebrakov, appointed by the Russian government to negotiate in the affair. The Russian representative is expected in Harbin on July 17, but there is not much belief apparent here that he will be able to alter the present situation. He arrived at Irkutsk by air today and immediately left by train for Harbin.

Reports Indicate Big Demonstration

Reports from Vladivostok by way of Harbin told of a demonstration against the Chinese consulate there, the populace hurling stones at it and shouting insults.

Officials in Harbin, as well as Nanking were reported to have received the news of the Russian ultimatum demanding a conference on the seizure of the railway without surprise and in a matter of fact manner.

General Chang Ching-Hai, governor of the Harbin district, urged new and old employes of the railway to remain faithfully at their posts and disregard all rumors. He also prohibited them from joining any secret labor union or similar organization.

COMPLAINTS HEARD AT COUNCIL MEET

Alderman Dancy he would build no sidewalks in accordance with the curb recently constructed.

Alderman Kowitz then brought up the matter of the jog in 17th street between Center and A. An attempt was made to straighten this several years ago when Mr. Kowitz was city attorney. It failed because certain property owners tried to "hold up" the city for right of way, but the ownership has changed and the present owners are agreeable. This matter was referred to the city attorney and city engineer.

Alderman Simeral said there were numerous accidents at Hood and Fifth, and wanted a "slow" sign placed there. Alderman Purthann said these signs were worse than any he had seen on posts at the curb like "stop" signs. No action was taken.

Mayor Livesley took a hand in the objecting. He said there was a terrible odor coming off the slough, possibly from dead fish. The sanitary inspector was instructed to investigate.

Alderman Thompson said Salem was the worst city in the west in its lack of highway direction signs through town, but Mr. Dancy prepared a complete array of signs to remedy this condition. There was also some complaint that street designation signs were lacking.

A visitor to the city told Recorder Poulson recently the only way he could find out what street he was on, was to park his car for more than an hour, and then he would find a neat little tag in it telling him where he was. But this situation also is being remedied, according to Mr. Dancy.

Roman question and the terminus of discrimination against Catholics in Mexico.

Membership includes 55,000 women, said in her annual report read before the joint session, Mrs. Sophia Waverling, president of the Women's Union, stated that 55,000 women were members of societies affiliated in the union, and explained the cooperative work the union carries on with the Veroin.

The principal address of the afternoon session was made by the Rev. Aloysius J. Muench, D. S. C., for 8 years a member of the faculty of the St. Francis Seminary at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, the largest Catholic seminary in the northwest. Dr. Muench explained the general, political and international significance. The noted Catholic scholar said that non-Catholics were not affected in any way by the temporal sovereignty of the Holy See and neither the temporal or spiritual sovereignty of the Holy See extended its jurisdiction over them.

Three Agreements Comprise Settlement

According to Dr. Muench, the settlement is based on three agreements—the political treaty which brings to a close the pretensions raised by the taking of the papal states in 1870, the Concordat which defines the relations of church and state in Italy in matters touching mutual jurisdictions, and the financial agreement which settles the amount of indemnity the Italian government shall pay the Holy See for the properties confiscated at the time of the taking of the papal states.

The report of the activities of the Central Bureau, made by F. P. Kenkel of St. Louis, director, showed a wide range of interest. Of special interest was the report of the St. Elizabeth Settlement and day nursery at St. Louis, founded through the personal efforts of Mr. Kenkel. Large sums of money have been spent both in European relief and in charities in the United States. Trust funds have been created for 3 bishops in Germany and one in Korea. Study courses are sponsored by the Central Bureau, The Central Blatt and Social Justice.

Talked By Delegates

Considerable discussion followed the closing talk at the Monday night session, when Frank Saalfeld of Salem discussed "A Union of Central Veroin State Leagues and Societies on the Pacific Coast." Consideration was given the feasibility of creating a separate jurisdiction of the Catholic groups on the Pacific Coast.

Archbishop Edward Howard of Portland will be a visitor at all sessions of the Veroin today. Today's program includes an address by Nicholas Dietz of Brooklyn, who will speak at the morning session on the "Development of Our Societies in the Spirit of Catholic Action." The Rev. Gregory Robl, O. S. B. of Portland will talk on "Problems Youth is Confronted with in the Modern World" during the afternoon session.

McMinnville Man To Make Speech Today

The schedule for today's sessions of the National Catholic Women's Union convention will be marked by an address by the Rev. Louis A. Sander of McMinnville, Oregon. Elections are not held by the women at this convention, their officers being chosen every other year. Delegates will be seated this morning, and committee reports will be made. Presentation of resolutions, which include definite stands on a number of modern problems, will also occupy the attention of the convention this forenoon.

Reports from the state leagues affiliated with the union will be given Wednesday night, and there will be short talks by the spiritual directors of the state organizations. The Union will meet in joint session with the Veroin Wednesday forenoon.

The union was addressed Monday afternoon on the "Dignity of the Home" by Rev. Mark Wickman of Tacoma.

Announcement was made at the Monday morning session of the Catholic Women's Union of the committee personnel selected by the president, Mrs. Sophia Waverling, for this year's convention. The list is:

Religion held need of modern society. Under the test of naked passion, science was powerless against the wind of disaster while blew from the innards of the great Moloch which man's achievement over the forces of nature had fashioned. Greed to dominate and hold all overwhelmed the nations. All this super-power, this super-wisdom of the superman, what has it done for civilization? Read the answer in the world war.

"The laws of the nation will not be effective of good order and morals unless in the back of them is the realization, 'They come from the holy will of God.' Mere penal sanction to be applied by civil government will not suffice. There must be a realization on the part of the subjects that these laws are sanctioned by God who is the rewarder of good and punisher of evil."

In his address of welcome to the two organizations at the mass meeting, the Rt. Rev. Edw. D. Howard, Archbishop of Portland in Oregon, complimented them on their program of "Catholic Action" aimed to re-establish civilization with Christ, an also on their splendid records in church, state and educational activities.

Archbishop Howard also read a message of greeting to the convention, the "Papal delegate," the Most Rev. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi.

Governor Patterson's message of greeting lauded the work of Catholic laymen and clergy during the early settlement of the Pacific Northwest.

August Brookland of St. Louis, director of the central bureau of the Central Veroin, discussed the "Meaning of Catholic Action" in the closing address of the mass meeting.

Frank Saalfeld of Salem, general chairman of the convention, presided at the afternoon meeting and introduced the speakers. Musical numbers were given during the program by the Cherrian band and a male chorus. The Cherrian band, a band from St. Mary's at Beaverton and the Mt. Angel boys' band furnished music throughout the day.

The afternoon meeting was preceded by a pontifical high mass held Sunday morning, the altar being erected on the veranda at the main exhibit building. Assisting Archbishop Howard as celebrant of the mass were the Rt. Rev. A. Hillebrand, V. G. P. A. of Oregon City; Rev. J. Scherbing of Silverton as deacon; Rev. J. Hentges, V. S. S. C. of Portland as sub-deacon; Rev. Louis A. Sander of McMinnville and Rev. Cyril Lebold of St. Benedict's as deacons of honor; Rev. Henry Orth of Gervais as master of ceremonies; and Rev. Vincent Keenan of Salem as cross bearer.
