COOLING GAS UNDER GOVERNMENT PROBE

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP)—Four government agencies will cooperate in an exhaustive investigation of health hazards resulting for the use of gases in refrigerating mediums for domestic and industrial plants. Declaring the lack of safeguards against toxic gases presented a national problem, Surgeon General Cumming announced today he would call together early next week representatives of the public health service, the bureau of mines the chemical warfare service and the bureau of standards. They will discuss procedures in the investigation, he said, and will cooperate in remedying the situation. Public health officials said that numerous requests for investigations have been received since several deaths in Chicago were attributed to gases escaping from cooling plants. They pointed out, however, that they had the subject under consideration some time previously.

Cuba plans a public improvement program requiring expenditure of $200,000,000 a year.

Steiwer Anticipates Heavy Schedule For Congress in Taking Up Important Bills

An extraordinary busy session of congress lies ahead for late summer and fall with the senate's consideration of the tariff the biggest issue to come before the upper house in the opinion of Senator Fred Steiwer, in Salem for a short time Saturday on his way to the home of his parents near Jefferson.

Indications in Washington do not point to entirely smooth sailing for the Hawley tariff bill, Mr. Steiwer pointed out, due to the large-scale conflict of interests in the manifold changes outlined in the tariff bill.

Literally hundreds of deviations from the existing tariffs will be subjects of battles when the Wall street banking interests clash with the manufacturing interests in the latter's fight to see every phase of American industry given adequate protection. While America's interests abroad, which are the concern of the Wall street interests, have increased materially, they are in no wise as important as the interests of America's manufacturers, in Steiwer's opinion.

Farm relief legislation will be of great benefit to the nation, Mr. Steiwer feels, not only because of immediate benefits but because of the existence of a permanent board composed of the nation's outstanding men who will be able to give permanent constructive leadership to agriculture.

Better marketing methods and better credit facilities, as one phase of orderly marketing, are going to be made available through the board, the senator believes, but the great problem of surpluses, which is especially noticeable among wheat growers, cannot be readily handled. Evidence of the fact that the wheat grower's problem is a real one is given in Mr. Hoover's difficulty in securing a man for the board to represent this phase of the farm problem.

nounced today he would call together early next week representatives of the public health service, the bureau of mines the chemical warfare service and the bureau of standards. They will discuss procedures in the investigation, he said, and will cooperate in remedying the situation.

Coe Likes California He States

By MADALENE L. CALLIN

"It is so warm there that the grocers keep all eggs on ice to keep them from hatching." So declared Lee Coe of Salem in describing the Imperial Valley of California from which he has just returned.

"Imagine a place so warm that if you drop an ice cube into an empty glass it will break the glass, just because the atmosphere is such that everything is kept at such a high temperature."

In spite of all this Coe declares he would like to live in the Imperial Valley because it is one of the most wonderfully productive places in the world.

At the heights of the season 500 carloads of fruit and vegetables are shipped out of the valley every day. They will average 12 tons to the carload. In a year an average of one carload for man, woman and child in the valley is shipped out of this southern garden spot.

Water is supplied by an irrigation system that brings it from the Colorado river. The farmers pay a tax of $5 per acre and then pay 25 cents a day for each farm for the water used. This irrigation water provides all that is used in the valley since there are no wells and water for all household use must come from the irrigation system. The ground holds water well and is irrigated only about once in two weeks.

In addition to the vast quantities of fruit and vegetables produced here the Imperial Valley is also a great dairy center, shipping a great deal of butter and cheese. The much advertised Klim, is manufactured here.

The climate is so warm that all American men go in their shirt sleeves. Mr. Coe was much interested in seeing the bank presidents at their desks, minus coats and with shirt sleeves rolled up. At the graduation exercises of El Centro high school the board members appeared in shirt sleeves and the boys of the class all graduated minus coats. The temperature frequently, according to Coe, reaches 122 in the shade.

"Mexicans and negroes do all the heavy work. The white men just turn on the water and collect the money," declared Coe.

TWO ROADS OPPOSE BUILDING NEW LINE

BOISE, Idaho, July 20.—(AP)—The Oregon Short Line and the Southern Pacific have filed petitions with the interstate commerce commission to intervene against the granting of certificate of convenience and necessity to the proposed line from Nysaa, Ore., to Winnemucca, Nevada, sought by the Idaho and Pacific railroad, it was announced today.

The Southern Pacific claims that the Rogerson-Wells cutoff gives sufficient service to Southern Idaho and eastern Oregon. Both companies claim that traffic over the proposed line would be diverted from existing routes and would be a detriment to both the Short Line and the Southern Pacific.

The Union Pacific asserts the line is not needed.

Backers of this proposed line believe they are entitled to the support of southwestern Idaho and eastern Oregon, because, they claim, if the railroad is constructed it will open up the territory and will give that country a short haul into the California markets.
