Gas Firm Refused GENERAL FRANCHISE

The county court has established policy of granting no general franchises in the county and consequently will not grant the request of the Portland Gas and Coke company to have a general franchise for its pipe lines granted for the entire county west of the Willamette meridian. They statement was given out Friday by Judge F. Selgund following the filing of a formal application for a franchise Friday by officials of the Gas and Coke company.

The court indicated that it would not be adverse to a specific franchise such as in gas, water, other utilities. To grant a general franchise confers too great a privilege to the company, the members of the court felt.

The gas company at the present time is seeking to bring its high-pressure lines from Portland to Salem. A ditch a few feet in depth is to be dug along the state highway leading south from Aurora to Salem, according to the announcement made here. This ditch will hold an eight-inch pipe line which will bring the gas to Salem.

The court indicated that such a request seemed reasonable.

HAWLEY TELLS ABOUT TARIFF

Oregon Congressman Makes Address Before Lions Club of Salem

Over eleven hundred witnesses were heard by the ways and means committee of the house of representatives while the new tariff bill was under consideration, Congressman W. C. Hawley, chairman of that committee, said in describing the procedure in an address at the Salem Lions club luncheon Friday.

Criticism that the tariff was prepared in accordance with the word of interested witnesses, he said, Mr. Hawley said. Naturally every person who appeared had some selfish interest, but all sides were heard. Any United States citizen or any foreigner doing business in the United States, was privileged to appear before the committee.

Small Percentage of Rates Changed
Only about 15 or 20 per cent of the rates were changed in the bill, so that it is a tariff revision and not a new tariff, he explained. The changes were in accordance with changed conditions in the industries.

The theory of the tariff, said Mr. Hawley, is to promote production of all that the nation needs in the industries adapted to mass production, eventual price reductions have resulted from tariff protection, he claimed, mentioning the instance of aluminum wire.

Protection Sole Reason for Duties
Duties are prescribed only on things produced in this country, or substitutes for American products. If the industries are small, the possibility of increasing them is taken into consideration in deciding whether a duty shall be imposed on imported goods.

Claims that agriculture is given less protection than manufacturing industries are incorrect, said Mr. Hawley; a survey showed the ad valorem on agricultural products to be 41.72 per cent, and on manufactured goods 38.6 per cent.

Agricultural distress is caused by over-production, and the aim in framing the tariff bill was to make profitable the growing of crops which are in demand, rather than the major crops which are over produced, said Mr. Hawley. Dairying and livestock production were sought to be encouraged. The tariff, he concluded, is the only real solution of the farm problem.

She alleges that her right leg was broken near the hip in 1927 and that she consulted the defendants who failed to diagnose her case properly and did not set the bone. Later she consulted other physicians who set the bone but it never healed. The plaintiff claims, due to the fact that too long a time had elapsed and the bones refused to mend.

Convention Being Brief Jots on The Realtors Convention

"I don't need any bringing up" remarked A. H. Barnhiser of Tacoma, newly elected secretary, as the president asked Leo N. Childa, local realtor, to escort him to the platform.

C. V. Johnson, real estate commissioner for the state of Oregon, was in attendance at most of the conferences and business meetings. Few realtors know the problems of their own business more intimately than Johnson. George A. Spencer, retiring president of the northwest association told his fellow realtors at the final meeting.

No invitations were issued from the floor by cities desiring to be convention host next year. Longview delegates were working hardest for the honor; the Olympia chamber of commerce seconded that town's request for the next meeting; and one or two other towns sought the position. Whether the contest was too hot or too cold wasn't announced. But the executive committee will make the decision, the place probably not to be announced until the first of the year.

William Merry, better known as "Bill" is among the Portland realtors who have been here to work and play at the convention. Merry is a former president of the Portland Ad club. Mrs. Merry is here with him.

J. F. Ulrich, president of the Salem board, was flustered all right enough when the convention elected him one of the four vice presidents. "Just wait until I tell my horse story before I sit down beside the vice president," he told the group as he faced them after being escorted to the front. The newly elected president was the only man sitting in the new officers' row.
