Outlook For 'T.B.' Patient Markedly Improved in Recent Years Says Leader

Dr. DeWalt Payne

The outlook for the tuberculosis patient who wants to get well and return to a basis of self-support has been markedly improved in the last few years, according to Dr. DeWalt Payne, newly appointed resident physician at the Eastern Oregon Tuberculosis hospital now in operation at The Dalles. Dr. Payne, in a recent interview, was asked what chance a person with tuberculosis has to get well under modern sanatorium treatment. Dr. Payne's reply was:

"From July 1923 to July 1929, about 20 per cent of the patients admitted to the state tuberculosis hospital at Salem were returned to their communities with the disease no longer active. Of those remaining at the hospital at the end of this period, 70 per cent showed improvement.

Modern Equipment Helps

"The equipping of tuberculosis hospitals with surgeries, scleritics, and light-rays allows for considerable shortening of the convalescence period by giving opportunity for special treatment in certain cases. Dr. Bellinger has obtained excellent results at the state tuberculosis hospital, at Salem, with special treatment of intestinal tuberculosis, which was in former years a rather hopeless complication of the pulmonary disease.

"The educational work of the National Tuberculosis association and its affiliated state associations as to the value of early discovery of tuberculosis has also made the disease more promising from the standpoint of cure.

"Here in Oregon, the realization by the public of the advantages of special equipment and trained personnel has caused the list of applications to become so large that there is a shortage of bed space and many patients have had to wait considerable time for admission. However, with the opening of the new hospital at The Dalles, fully equipped for the newest services in tuberculosis, the people of Oregon have been given an opportunity for more prompt service to their stricken citizens in returning them to their communities as an asset rather than a liability. This is done by teaching the patient to care for himself and to observe such hygienic measures as will protect his family and other associates from infection.

"Patients are taught to use burnable napkins while coughing and expectorating. This is only ordinary courtesy and cleanliness, but how different from the practice of the uneducated patient who coughs at you in the crowded theatre or spits on the street! A sanatorium 'graduate' is a much safer neighbor than the person who has tuberculosis without knowing it or the patient who has never had the intensive training that is given in the tuberculosis hospital." surely fine. We appreciate the work it has taken and I think all the boys are having a good time.

"I am much pleased with the place and am sure all the boys will get their money's worth of fun. I also think that the camp is good for the boys and for me."

Vernon McQuard bugler for the camp writes:

"Today we are going on a hike to King Tut's cave. There is a nest of cougar's there. The officers are 'Bud' Fisher, O. P. West, Jr., and Vernon McQuard. One of the calls the boys like is reveille. They bounce out of bed with a jump to take setting up exercises.

DOROTHY GRAY has perfected three new preparations which the fastidious woman will welcome enthusiastically.

Dorothy Gray Eyewash is a soothing bath for the eyes. It washes away the tiny specks of irritating dust, and keeps your eyes clean and clear.

Dorothy Gray Hand Cream makes your hands smooth and soft. It is ever so delicately scented, and it is particularly delightful because it does not leave the skin the least bit sticky or greasy.

And to check the distressing pimple which occasionally besets even the loveliest skin, Dorothy Gray has made Pimple Lotion. It is wise to keep a bottle on hand. Then at the first sign of a pimple, put on a little of this lotion, repeat from time to time, and the blemish will never develop.
