

Big Bill Tilden to be Replaced on Davis Cup Team in 1930

FRENCH RETAIN VALUED TROPHY

United States Will Turn Its Efforts Toward Finding Youthful Stars

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP)—Gallant old Bill Tilden has had his last fling; the Davis cup is still safe for France and America will now turn to its tennis youth for future hopes of conquest.

It can be said definitely now that the 1929 American Davis cup team will be composed entirely of youthful talent, its nucleus probably will be John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison world's champions in doubles right now, though they still face the national championship at Brooklyn as a final test for 1929. Talk that a mistake was made in substituting George Lott for Frank Hunter in the singles brought the following reply from a spokesman in official family today: Lott's Record Better Than Bill Tilden's

"That's only guesswork, after losing. It is always easy to say that different strategy would have been successful. It cannot be proved, however, that Hunter would have done any better if as well as Lott. Of course Lott lost a good chance against Borotra, but he put up a good fight in both singles matches and took a set from Cochet. Tilden was unable to do that.

"What we need now is to develop one or two singles stars to take the place of Tilden," continued the same authority. "A few years ago, we had Tilden and Johnston, unbeatable in singles, but we lacked a double team of first rank. Now we have a crack doubles combination in Van Ryn and Allison but no first class singles support. Our own national singles title has been won by a Frenchman for three straight years.

France Well Fixed For Tennis Strength
"As for France, she has not come up to the big leagues every Spring took a little course of training in base running and sliding into the bags. Today they still pay some attention to this department, but base pilfering is no longer classed as an art.

For this very reason, Evar Swanson, the outfielder secured from the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast League by the Cincinnati Reds last winter, may prove quite a novelty before the close of the present season. He may be old fashioned, but he still has an idea that a pair of fast legs, properly applied, can help win ball games.

He has already built up a reputation as the fastest man in the league and his ability to steal bases

Tilden won 13 successive challenge round singles matches before he was stopped by LaCoste and a trick knee at Germantown in 1926. Big Bill has not failed to win at least one match in any of the big battles for the cup.

Tilden may, as he once said, "have no intention of giving up playing tennis as long as my two wabbling legs will function, my aged and enfeebled arm will swing and my age-dimmed eyes can see a ball"—but he need have no particular regrets at passing from the international arena.

TURF WARFARE IS BADLY MYSTIFIED

SARATOGA SPRINGS, July 29.—(AP)—The 1929 turf championship warfare was further mystified today as the brilliant Fox and Diavolo carried off honors at the opening of fashionable Saratoga—American's premier race track.

Gallant Fox carrying the silks of the Belair stud and quoted at 10 to 1, scored a sensational victory in the flash, the first of nearly two score stakes for juveniles to be run during the 30 day meeting while Diavolo won in the colors of the Wheatley stable accounted for the Saratoga handicapper—the feature event of the program for matured runners.

Diavolo went to the post the favorite along with the Arden farm's Sun Edwin both being quoted at 2 to 1. The Arden farm's standard bearer, however, could do no better than seventh in the field of eight crack handicap runners.

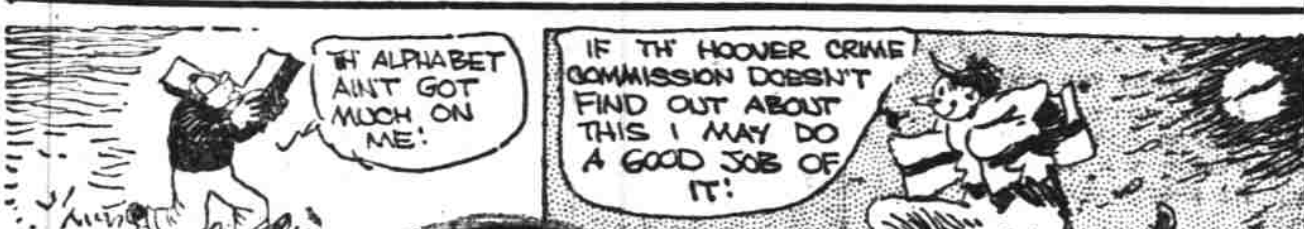

Twenty thousand fans, including a cross-section of New York's society, were on hand to welcome the sport back to the beautiful little up-state city. A light rain of the early morning hours had left the track in lightning fast condition.

FOREIGN TALENT IS STRONG AT TOURNEY

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 29.—(AP)—With America not quite holding its own against a wave of foreign talent, 22 men and 27 women began play today in the 36th annual invitation tennis tournament of the Seabright lawn tennis and cricket club.

Before a thunder squall descended late in the afternoon terminating play, the entire first round in women's single was completed and a start made on the second. Fifteen of the 16 men's matches were finished. None of them were international in character and of this number five went to the invaders.

Reviving Base Stealing

THE NEW FLEET FOOTED OUTFIELDER WITH THE CINCINNATI REDS IS DEMONSTRATING THAT FAST BASE RUNNING IS STILL VALUABLE IN WINNING BALL GAMES

Go to Bed Early; Get up Early; Cultivate Outdoor Hobbies --- Grimes

Famous Pirate Pitcher Gives His Recipe for Success

Want to be a big, strong man like Burleigh Grimes? Then take a tip from Pittsburgh Pirates' pitcher. Go to bed early. Get up early. Eat intelligently. Cultivate hobbies that will keep you out in the air—riding, shooting, fishing. When the winter rolls around, keep away from overcast cities. Grimes is one of the magnificent physical specimens in baseball. Nature endeavored him with a fine body, but he has improved it by sane, careful living and regular exercise. That's why at his comparatively advanced age—for Burleigh is a graying veteran as ballplayers are judged—he plugs along through game after game—pitching hard and seldom showing signs of wear.

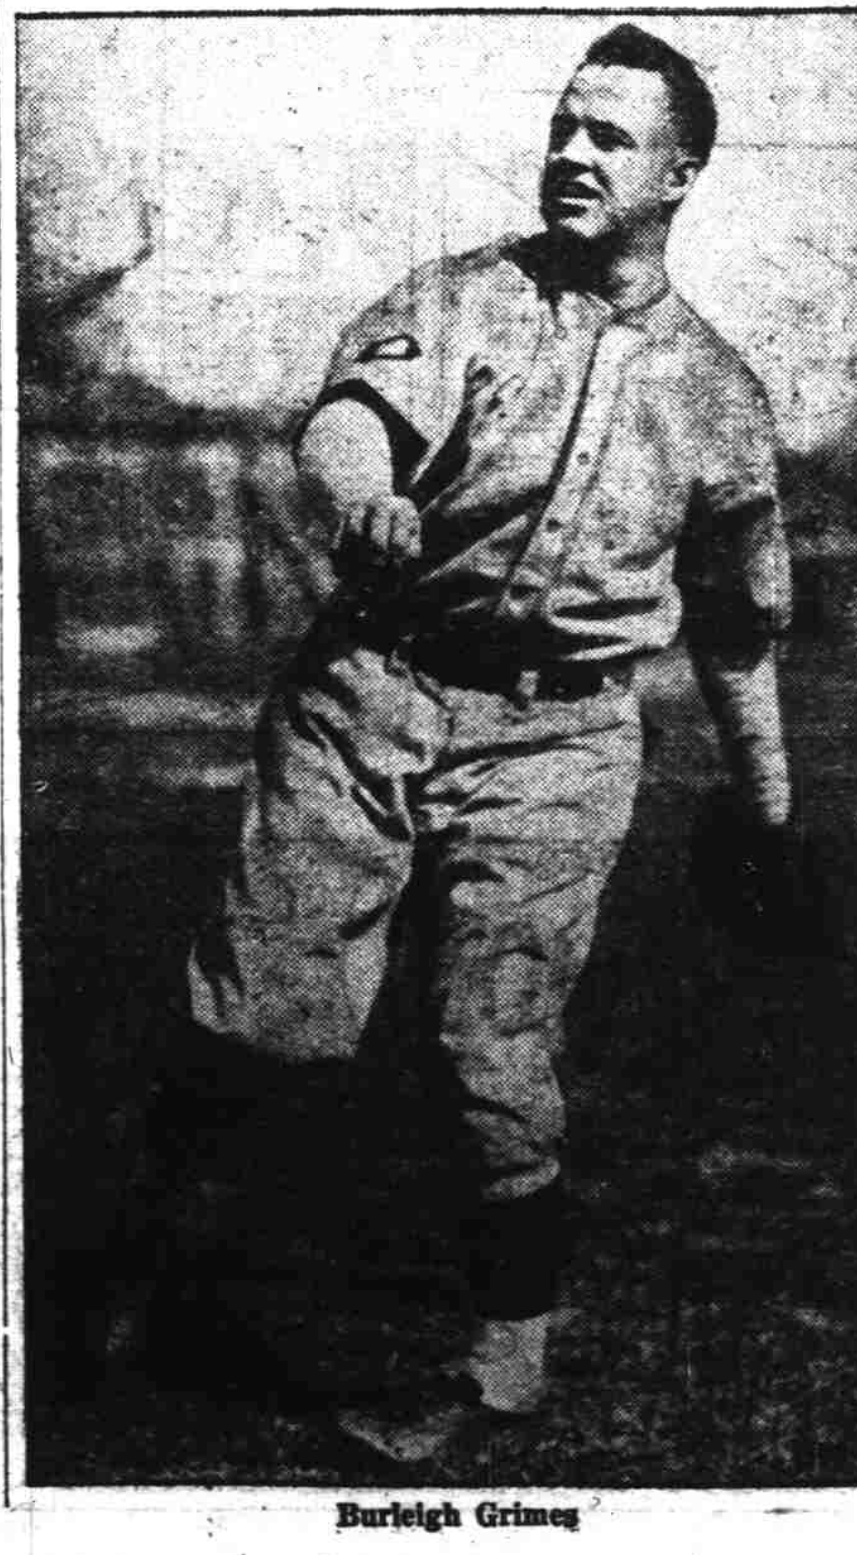

Once the baseball season is at an end this nature lover sets out for the woods in the lake country of Wisconsin, sleeps in a tent until it blows away, and then moves in the woods, with a pipe in his teeth and the wind in his hair. If noon finds him near his camp, he eats a light lunch. If he's out on a trail somewhere he doesn't eat again until he returns in the dusk.

International threats were concentrated in the men's section of the tournament and the Oxford-Cambridge team from England contributed the major share of foreign entrants. Although starting badly and losing the first three matches in which their players were engaged, the Oxford and Cambridge forces braced and four of the team of seven managed to win their match from American opponents.

Japan's two representatives gained an even break. Eadaka, now a resident of New York, won from Philip Neer of Portland, Ore. Inter-collegiate champion from Stanford university eight years ago, 4-3, 6-3, 6-4, but Donald Strachan, Princeton player from Philadelphia came through in brilliant fashion to defeat Fazio Abe one of the most redoubtable of the tennis-playing sons of Nippon, 6-4, 6-1.

Among the other surprises was the victory of Harry Brunie, of New York, over H. G. Cooper, Oxford captain, 6-6, 6-4, 6-2.

The Cardinals are having their worst season since 1925.

At Portland—Longview vs. Wolfer's postponed.

Held helpless at bat by Harris, former Albany pitcher, except in the first and sixth innings, the Salem Senators dropped into the "games lost" column in the second half of the Oregon-Washington league season for the first time Sunday when the youthful warriors from Mt. Scott defeated them 9 to 3.

Meyers, pitching his second game for Salem, had difficulty in getting his corner throws to count as strikes, but managed even so to hold the Tigers even until the ninth inning. Then two home runs, a three bagger, a single, a walk and a hit batsman spelled ruin. After five runs had been chalked up, Meyers retired in favor of Billy Sullivan, who got the side out after one more run had been scored.

Both teams scored two in the first inning. The home club started like a lion after scoring two runs in the first inning when Quinn walked and Lamb lammed out a homer to right field. Bigbee followed with a triple to left, but was called out on his attempt to steal home.

Mt. Scott got two runs back in the second inning on a walk, a fielder's choice, a single by Messenger and a three bagger by Calkins.

Both teams scored in the sixth; Mt. Scott on one hit by L. Girod after a walk and a fielder's choice; Salem on a two-bagger by Lamb, a freak ball which bounced over the infielders' heads, and Sullivan's triple to left.

Ninth Inning Rally
The game remained tied up until the opening of the ninth, although Mt. Scott got two men on the paths in both the seventh and eighth. Messenger started a ninth inning rally with a homer to left; two runs came in a little later on P. Girod's three bagger, and two more on Buzzell's homer which followed immediately.

"Big Gusher" Hunt Awarded Decision Over Stribling In Tulsa Event

TULSA, Okla., July 29.—(AP)—Before the southwest's largest boxing audience, Babe Hunt, Oklahoma's "big gusher" of Ponca City won from W. L. (Young) Stribling of Macon, Ga., on a foul in the sixth round of their scheduled 10 round bout at McNulty Park here tonight.

After taking a severe lacing in the fifth round, Stribling rushed from his corner at the start of the sixth. He slapped Hunt an overhead blow which landed on the back of the Oklahoman's head and dropped him. He was up quickly and as he boled in, the Georgian again knocked him down and as Hunt arose, Stribling hit him hard in foul territory. The Oklahoman withered in pain as he dropped to his knees tonight.

Referee Dave Barry of Chicago, shoved Stribling to his corner and raised Hunt's hand as the crowd booed the Georgian. "Pa" Stribling protested the decision but to no avail.

Newspapermen at the ringside judged Stribling the winner of three of the five rounds. He won the first, third and fourth by comfortable margin while Hunt took the second and fifth decisively.

The crowd of more than 12,000 was in an uproar during the fifth round. When Hunt's cutting left followed by a right cross time and again jarred the Georgian. He caught Stribling with a right to the jaw that knocked him back against the ropes in the early part of the round and followed the advantage with damaging blows that had his opponent hanging on.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—(AP)—A ninth inning rally of four runs was not enough to pull the Athletics ahead today, and the White Sox won the closing game of the series from the league leaders, 8 to 6. The Sox belted Earnshaw from the Sox in the sixth with a three run rally. Shores and Quinn finishing. Red Faber and Ted Lyons held the A's safe until the ninth.

Chicago Athletics 8 12 1
Philadelphia 6 8 1

Alvin E. Stevens Dies in Portland

Alvin E. Stevens, Salem route man, age 28, died Monday morning in the veterans' hospital in Portland at the age of 32 years. The remains will be shipped here for funeral services and interment. He is not a member of Capital Post, American Legion and other organizations. Besides his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Stevens, he is survived by the following brothers: Milton of Salem; Ralph, Henry and Ike of Missouri, and Clinton.

We will say that relief pitchers are used a lot more liberally in organized ball than they are in semi-pro ball. With two good leavers on the bench, looks like Frisco could at least have had one of 'em in the ball pen.

But the Senators are still in the lead, and it's no time to holler. That defeat makes it a race again instead of a walkaway.

We claim it's a tough brouhaha when Bigbee and Sullivan both hit three baggers and didn't strike out ones down the middle to get them called strikes. And Meyers doesn't say a word, usually, so something must have been wrong.

Faced with a proposition like that, any pitcher would be certain to crack. It's a wonder that he lasted so long. A lot of the fans thought Frisco should have made a change along about the sixth. We thought so too, but it's easy to spring a "second guess" now that it's all over.

Now listen, fans. Unless you learn when to take that seventh inning stretch, we're afraid it's going to be too bad. Half the crowd stands up before the seventh inning starts, instead of just before the Senators go to bat. That ought to be stopped.

With all due respect, we feel called upon to notify the bunch across the street that there are a few more ways to spell "faucet." In a dispatch relating that Al Faussett successfully dived over Shoshone falls in his tiny boat, they spelled the name "Faussett." "Fausett," "Fausetts" and "Fausett;" never twice the same, and never once correctly. But they ignored the chance to spell it "Fawcett," "Fawghitt," and the way the bathtub tap is spelled.

Eighteen babies were examined at the regular clinic held at the Salem health center Monday afternoon, reports Dr. Edward Lee Russell, who was in charge. Interest in the clinics is growing steadily, with the number of babies being brought the past month or so being the highest at any time since the health demonstration was opened. A wider knowledge throughout the county of the work of the demonstration and mouth-to-mouth advertising are largely responsible for the increased interest and attendance, Dr. Russell believes. Clinics all over the county are showing high attendance.
