

University of Michigan Team Defeats Salem Senators 9-2

RALLY IN SIXTH DOES BUSINESS

Meyers Starts Strong for Locals but Doesn't Last Long

University of Michigan's ball team, champion of the "Big Ten," beat the Salem Senators 9 to 2, Monday night on Olinger field, but breaks had much to do with the result and the collegians weren't that much better than the local team.

Meyers started out by pitching tight ball, only nine men facing him in the first three innings. He held the visitors scoreless for one more inning despite two hits and a walk. Then the trouble started.

Michigan Presented With Run in Fifth

In the fifth the visitors got a run on an error, a single and a wild pitch. Then in the sixth they climbed all over Meyers' offering, filling the bases and driving in one run on successive hits; next Eastman clouted one that should have been a single but it went between Bigbee's legs and Eastman wound up at third with the other bases vacant and Meyers on his way to the showers.

Russell took the mound and struck out two men, but the third one beat out a hit to shortstop and the slaughter was on again. If the previous hit hadn't gotten away from Bigbee, Hecker could have thrown out a runner at second on that play, so there were only two earned runs. At it was, three successive hits off Russell brought in three runs making seven for the inning.

One More Counter Taken in Seventh

The visitors got one more in the seventh inning, which was the last, when Eastman reached first on a misplayed third strike and scored on Richman's three bagger.

The Senators scored one in the second inning when Heinzelmann walked and Bigbee doubled to left; and another in the sixth, when Bigbee was safe on a pitcher's error and scored on Dowling's triple.

The Solons played in hard luck throughout. They got only three hits but all of those were for extra bases; and five free passes helped them to the fourth and seventh. They also hit the ball hard on numerous occasions, but always into some infielder's hands.

JONES FUNERAL TO BE ON WEDNESDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Eva Oralee Jones, who died Sunday morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Berger, 2110 North Fifth street, will be held Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, at the Rigdon mortuary. Rev. D. J. Howe officiating. Interment will be made in the Belcrest memorial park. She was the wife of Myron Jones and lived at 806 East 58th street, Portland, had been ill a number of months and had been at her parents' home the past two months.

Mrs. Jones was a graduate of the Salem high school, with the class of 1925. She was married in 1925, since when she has resided in Portland. She was born in Forest Grove 22 years ago. Besides her parents and husband, she is survived by the following brothers and sisters, all of Salem: Mrs. Martha Bechtel, Miss Frances Berger, and Samuel and Frederick Berger. Mrs. Jones was a member of the Laurelhurst Christian church in Portland.

Stockton Man on Visit in This City

J. Dolph, leading layman member of the Y. M. C. A. in Stockton, Calif., has been spending a few days in Salem, staying at the association dormitory. His sons, Robert and Carl, are traveling with him. Mr. Dolph is said to be largely responsible for the wide scope of the work being done by the Stockton association.

Utah's Links Tiger

As Pictured by HARDIN BURNLEY

ENTHUSIASTICS who are awarding Bobby Jones the 1929 National Amateur Golf Championship before it is played may experience a real shock if George Von Elm is in excellent form when that event takes place at Pebble Beach in California next month.

In the 1926 National Amateur, Von Elm defeated Jones for the title at Baltusrol and—Pebble Beach is one of George's favorite and familiar courses.

The diminutive blonde plays with such agile strength and intensity that sportswomen's phrase-makers (with reference to his native state also) call him "Utah's Golf Tiger."

In the National Open last June, Von Elm was fifth with a score of 297, just three above the winning score; but in the Canadian Open, about a fortnight ago, he made a rather mediocre showing.

Von Elm has been playing consistently high class golf, which rates him a close second to Jones as the best of the amateurs, and well above most of the crack professionals.

Unquestionably, "The Utah Tiger" has high hopes of winning the National Amateur. He is thoroughly seasoned, knows the Pebble Beach course as well as he does his own club, and has no "Bobby Jones complex," i.e., a fear of Robert for the title once and believes, naturally, he can do it again.

Furthermore there are thousands on the Pacific Coast who are familiar with the "Tiger's" play out there and who think his chances of

BARHAM HERO OF SALEM WIN

Senator's Hurler Poles Out Three Bagger After Villians Tie Score

Wayne Barham emerged as the hero of Sunday's ball game which the Salem Senators won 2 to 1 from Montavilla. Despite support which was slightly erratic due to the absence of several players, Barham held the Villians at his mercy constantly; and then when through no fault of his the visitors scored a run, Barham came to bat in the last half of the same inning, the eighth, and poled out a three bagger that paved the way for victory.

Johnny Harkins Computedly Outguessed Barham hit that three bagger by outguessing Johnny Harkins, who has been treating the Salem batsmen just as stingily as Barham had been with the Villians. Expecting that Barham would attempt a sacrifice, Harkins pitched a high one which was just to Wayne's liking, and he leaped on it for a blow far out of reach of the two fielders that raced for it. Mack, rookie catcher, had singled, and he scored from first on that blow; Lamb came through with a single immediately afterward, and the game was won.

Montavilla's run came partly as the result of an error by Barham which let Haworth get around to third, and partly because Russell, substituting in left field, didn't realize in time that a runner could advance on a caught foul fly. Previously he had cut off a run by a neat throw for a double play, but this time he delayed an instant and Haworth beat the throw.

Villians Held Back Until Eighth Inning Russell's perfect peg stopped Montavilla's threat in the second inning, and after that no visiting runner got beyond second base until the eighth. Barham struck out eight batsmen, including two in the seventh and two in the ninth. The game was the shortest of the season, taking only an hour and 45 minutes. It was also the most poorly attended, thanks largely to propaganda sent out from Kelso that the league had broken up.

Mickey Walker to Claim Light Heavyweight Title

WILKES BARRE, Pa. Aug. 12.—(AP)—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, will claim the light heavyweight championship about to be surrendered by Tommy Loughran, and will defend it next Monday night against Leo Lomski, the "Aberdeen assassin" in Philadelphia, Jack Kearns, his manager said tonight.

"Loughran hasn't yet formally given up the title but Walker is entitled to the crown without further fuss," Kearns said. "Mickey holds a referee's verdict over Loughran, Dave Miller having voted for him after the bout in Chicago this spring. Of course, the judges voted for Loughran but everybody knows that Mickey merited the nod. Lomski floored Loughran twice and there is no reason why the 175 pound title shouldn't be considered at stake next week when Mickey and Leo clash."

Commissioner Harry Farrell has declined to comment but it is reported here on good authority that the Pennsylvania Boxing commission would look favorably upon the Walker-Lomski fight at Philadelphia next week as a title contest if Loughran relinquishes the throne this week.

Most of us learned the baseball rules, not by reading them, but by playing the game and watching it. And there may be rules that we don't know, because no case ever came up.

For instance, supposing that an infielder tags a runner and the ball pops out of his hand, but he catches it before it touches the ground. If the runner is out? Most of you will say he is, but you're all wet.

Now take the high fly that Gibson hit in the sixth inning of Monday's game. The third baseman dropped it, and one foot was inside the baseline. Was it a fair ball? No? If it was outside the baseline when the fielder touched it, his feet have nothing to do with the case.

The Oregon-Washington league is dead, but who killed it? There's been dirty work at the crossroads, to all appearances, when the crowd in our opinion, are at Kelso. Somebody up there without any authority announced that Montavilla had quit. Montavilla played here Sunday and Manager Haworth said he hadn't said anything about quitting.

The lowdown is this: Each team had put up $150 guarantee to finish the season. Longview and Kelso hadn't been drawing crowds, so they wanted the league to break up. They didn't want to forfeit their guarantee. So at the psychological moment, when Longview was tied with Salem for the lead, somebody at Kelso sent a story to the Oregonian that the league was through because Wolf-er's and Montavilla had quit. If it got the championship without playing a series with the Senators.

But Salem beat Montavilla, and that puts Salem in the lead again. If there's any justice in the land, Longview should get the championship without playing a series with the Senators.

Harry Leeding, who writes for the Oregon Journal, and is the grandfather of bush baseball in the Portland area, said several months ago on the subject Sunday, and he didn't say anything that wasn't so.

He laid the blame where it belongs; the old, old tendency in Longview and Kelso to go hog wild and pay baseball stars more than the turnstile will warrant. And he winds up: "Why, then can't we have bush baseball without this pocketbook wrecking, and why do Kelso and Longview try to avoid admitting that probably they were the first to give up the ghost?"

There's one thing Harry could have said but didn't because he works on a Portland newspaper.

COAST LEAGUE GOING STRONG

Better Games and Increased Attendance Features of Split Season

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND Associated Press Sports Writer SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Baseball seems to be "hitting on all six" in the coast league as present and many skeptics who opposed splitting the season on short notice are exchanging their smoked glasses for those of the rose-colored variety.

Briefly, here are some of the results since the moguls abruptly chopped the season into halves after playing 14 weeks of what was to have been a straight through schedule:

1—A tighter race in the second half.
2—Increased attendance, in the aggregate if not locally.
3—Better games.

In the first half, the Missions made a runaway race of it and interest was lagging to say the least. It is a different story beginning, this, the seventh week of the second half.

Anyone of six teams, namely, Missions, Seals, Hollywood, Los Angeles, Oakland, and Portland, have a chance to clutter home in a winning finish. They are positioned in the order named. The Missions and Seals, tied for top honors, are but six and one-half full games ahead of the Portland Ducks.

Portland appears to be headed in the right direction in the second half after going nowhere in particular during the first part of the season. President Tom Turner put the money "on the line" for a couple of outfielders, patched up the infield, and has what can be classed as a real team. The Ducks have had a good pitching staff all along, and with the present reinforcements, should give any of the other outfits plenty of trouble.

By snatching last week's series, four games to three, from the Seals, the Missions moved up to even terms with their local rivals. The series brought out a total of 66,020 persons, an attendance calculated to make the most tactful club owner a jovial fellow indeed.

The mark is but 500 less than the record turnout here during the first half when the two clubs met for the first time.

COLLEGE FLYING TO BE SPORT SHORTLY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Intercollegiate flying meets within two years, trying with football and rowing for popular favor were predicted today by Jesse Loeb, secretary of the national aeronautic flying club committee.

His comment was inspired particularly by the recent decision of the intercollegiate aeronautical association to urge every college club that owns a plane to join the N. A. A. Clubs organized June 15 under the Guggenheim fund. Official notification of this move was given Loeb by Charles L. Morris of Yale, chairman of the collegian's executive committee.

Best Fish Story Of Year Told

TACOMA, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The champion fish story of the season is being told at Gig Harbor, by C. O. Austin, whose dog "Fred" a huge shark in deep water off Point Richmond and in the battle that followed maneuvered the big fish close enough to shore so that Mr. Austin and other campers were able to kill it with an ax. The fish measured eight and a half feet long when landed Saturday night.

The dog, which goes by the name of Bill, had made a practice of going into the water after dogfish and bringing them to shore where he buried them in the sand. He evidently thought the phosphorescent flashes created by the shark to be those of a school of dog fish and he swam out about sixty feet after one of them. Once there he tackled the shark and the big fish swam around in circles trying to get in a position to bite him. The maneuver was spoiled by the dog's persistent attack which prevented the shark from getting in position to strike.

When the shark got into the shallow water, Fred grabbed him by the tail. He missed the first grab and took a blow in the face which he thought was from one of the campers using an oar on the shark. Later he succeeded in getting a hold on the fish and rolled it upon the beach where it was killed with an ax.
