Williams Unable To Test Mystery Speed Airplane

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 15-(AP)-Adverse weather again today defeated the hopes of Lieut. Alford J. Williams to take into the air for the first time his mystery plane, the Mercury racer with which he hopes to reach a speed of approximately 400 miles an hour and win the Schneider cup.

The plane has been weather bound at the United States naval academy where it was brought for tests, for a week. It rests on its cradle at the academy, dock waiting to be taken into the air the moment conditions are favorable.

Meanwhile, the time left for the test is rapidly slipping away, as it must be on board the Leviathan at New York next Wednesday if it is to reach England in time to compete for the United States in the cup races.
