POISE AND CONTROL Properly Nourished Body, However, a Prerequisit

to a Normal Nervous System--Air, Sleep and Exercise Are Vitally Important Factors.

> By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D. United States Senator from New York Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

OW much thought do you give to the protection of your nervou system? Do you lead such a life as to build up and strengther 1 your brain and nerves? Or, on the contrary, are you gradually destroying your nervous system?

It is not difficult to determine something of the nervous make-up of the driver of an automobile. Much can be learned by observation, even of an experienced driver. Speed mania, for example, is frequently a symptom of an irritable and overworked nervous system.

One of the most important things in the world is the development of poise. The lack of it is a good deal like the absence of a balance wheel in a watch. Without poise and menta balance the individual runs wild. It takes a lot more poise to be a conservative than it does te be a radical of the radicals.

into the human family the importance of patience. Impatience and the mood that goes with it are responsible for most of the unhappiness and many of the accidents today.

DR COPELAND. It pays to take care of the nervous system. You are busing it if you do not get sufficient fresh air, sleep, sun-shine and a reasonable amount of exercise. These are essential to your nervous well-being.

But we must not stop here. The nervous system is not well cared for unless the body is properly nour.+
