reported the weather reasonably clear. The vessels were proceeding on passing courses when the San Juan apparently changed its course to cross the course of the Dodd...

The regular signals were given by the Dodd as to the nature of the maneuver. For some reason the San Juan adopted the same maneuver, and thereby defeated the maneuver of the Dodd...

Orders were given to man the lifeboats the instant the crash sounded, but the ship went down before we could launch even one. The situation was terrible. Men, women, and children jumped overboard in desperate efforts to save themselves. Most of them were drowned.

All of the survivors were bedraggled and sick with fatigue. Few saved clothing; most, including the one woman aboard the Dodd, Mrs. Majorie Danby of Los Angeles, wore overalls and other nondescript garments donated by members of the Dodd's crew.

at the 14th street playground have included: For the girls—Doll dressing, costume, stunt and folk dancing contests; badge tests, tumbling, raffia work, organized games including baseball, basketball and track athletics; beginners swimming and Junior life saving. For the boys—Indoor baseball league, basketball, track athletics, volleyball, badge tests, tumbling, boxing, wrestling, swimming, baseball league, organized games, horseshoes, kite, airplane and boat building contests and apparatus work.

At the other playgrounds, many of the same activities were carried on, with the additions of story telling, weaving, sewing, bike and scooter races, attendance contests, sand box, rope climbing, bluff ball, story hour, hand work, balancing and acrobatic work.

For the final day at the 14th street and Lincoln playgrounds, special programs of swimming races were arranged, with prizes for the winners donated by local merchants.

dent that a boy passenger of the San Juan and one of the men were able to step from the deck to the Dodd. The San Juan sank rapidly. Boats of the Dodd were lowered rapidly and with assistance of two hours of clear weather, a large number of passengers taken aboard.

Other eye witness stories follow: John Garcia, passenger—I was asleep in my berth at the time of the wreck. I heard the crash and grasped a life preserver and jumped into a lifeboat. It tipped over, and I came up again and drifted around in the water for an hour. I was picked up by the Dodd crew. Houghton Jump into Water at Midnight. George H. Houghton—I jumped into the water at 12 o'clock as my watch stopped at that time. I heard three whistles, and then I went on deck, people were struggling on the lower floor. I grabbed a life preserver, and took my time dressing, because I thought they would launch life boats and we wouldn't go down at once. I began to get a little nervous when the boat turned on end and rushed down. I gave a run for the side and dove over. Finally a boat picked me up, after what seemed an age. It was hell.

Chief Officer Tells Steward to Jump. George Haines—steward—The chief officer stayed on until the last thing. He turned to me and said: "You fool, jump." Then I jumped. I was one of the first to be picked up.

L. B. Heatley, Manilla—I heard the three blasts and went on deck. There was a lady there with a little child. She asked for a life preserver, for the boy, and I went effice growers worked hard to obtain, the cherry pitting industry could be revised in the United States, thus providing employment for many workers and at the same time providing a market for surplus cherries. It would also make it worthwhile to grade cherries as to size, converting the small ones to the processing field and leaving a larger average size for canning.

Following renewed activity of the secret orders after they had been banned from the school, pledge has been required of each high school student the last two years that the signs will follow the way of the state law in this matter. That pledge will be required of students again this year. Since the pledge was put into effect, no student has been expelled from high school for connection with an under-cover group; but that does not mean that students and faculty assert that such bodies do not exist. In fact, nearly a half dozen high school sororities and fraternities were making merry with year-end banquets as school was to close last June, although, of course, not under the banned name. However, no group openly admitted as belonging to the high school extra-curricular activities was included in these banquets and dinner parties, albeit those in attendance were Salem high school students and graduates.

Whether the meeting last night was a last fling in previous to reform to comply with what a number of observers believe will be more stringent compliance with the anti-frat law, or whether it was a deliberate defiance or indifference may be watched with interest as school gets under way.

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The final preliminaries to the formal ending of the Hague reparations conference were concluded today. With a gold pen somewhat less formidable than that with which the Kellogg pact was signed in Paris, the names of the delegates were appended to the agreements reached here on evacuation of the Rhineland and on distribution of the Young plan annuities. The Young plan itself will be formally approved by the delegates in a plenary session tomorrow which will mark the end of the work so often endangered since the conference began on August 6.

Mr. Snowden again was the principal actor today, finding what he said were discrepancies in the texts of certain documents. For a time the British chancellor stubbornly refused to affix his signature and threatened to keep the conference going until Monday.

Among the documents which went into the records of the conference were letters exchanged with the German government by the powers occupying the Rhineland. They dealt with evacuation of the Rhineland, which must begin for the second zone during the month of September and be completed within three months. The second zone is the Coblenz Bridgehead formerly occupied by the American army on the Rhine.

For the third time at the main Bridgehead, which under the treaty of Versailles was to have been evacuated in 1935, the departure of the foreign troops must begin immediately after ratification of the Young plan and is to be finished before the end of June, 1936.

Louis Anderson and Wife Leave For New York. Louis Anderson, physical director and coach of athletics at the Salem high school for the last two years and director of the local playgrounds for three seasons, with Mrs. Anderson will leave today for New York, where Mr. Anderson will be a student at Teachers College, Columbia university.

Rumors that the Chinese and Soviet governments were attempting to come to an agreement in their dispute over the Chinese eastern railway in Manchuria had been current for a week. It was reported they were begun by the representatives of the two governments in Berlin. The fact that the German diplomatic corps has been looking out for Russian interests in China since the break lent support to this phase of the rumor but both Russian and Chinese sources made repeated denials.

Another committee, including the same members with the exception of Mr. Gehlhar and with the addition of George F. Vick as chairman, was authorized to formulate a plan for marketing products of the league.

LEAGUE WILL STUDY AMERICAN ATTITUDE

(AP)—League of Nations authorities are greatly concerned about American action regarding accession to the world court of international justice.

Another meeting of delegates of signatory countries to the world court statutes is planned here September 4, and it is then the nations must decide whether to accept the revised protocol for American accession framed under the leadership of Elihu Root, veteran American jurist, and Sir Cecil Hurst, adviser to the British foreign office.
