V. F. W. FAVORS VOTE UPON PROHIBITION

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 31.—(AP)—One of the major organizations of ex-service men, the veterans of foreign wars of the United States, has gone on record favoring a national referendum on repeal or retention of the 18th amendment.

Child of the stormiest session of its 30th annual encampment here, the resolution evaded recording the organization for either the "wets" or the drys" and suggested that in view of strongly opposed claims that the exact sentiment of the people be recorded. Action was taken after a resolution urging the out and out repeal of the 18th amendment was ordered tabled.

While delegates shouted for the floor from every section of the encampment took on the complexion of an old time political debate. The final action represented a compromise between the extreme wings represented in the sentiment of the delegates and was largely a victory of a group who sought to prevent having the veterans go on record on the question outside of the aim of this organization."

Pastor Asked to Return Another Year by People

Rev. Harry E. Gardner who is ending his first year as pastor of the Jason Lee church was unanimously asked by the congregation to continue in the present charge for another year at the last quarterly conference held at the church Friday night. A number of speeches were made in behalf of Gardner's work the past year, each showing clear appreciation of the congregation for his services.

Annual election of officers was also held, with all officers continued over from last year. A potluck dinner preceded the business session, over which Dr. T. H. Temple, district superintendent, presided.

Variety of Entertainment Promised Visitors at '29 Oregon State Fair in City

Entertainment in almost unending variety is promised visitors at the Oregon State Fair this year, Sept. 23 to 28, by the state fair board, who announce the securing of famous vaudeville and jazz artists for the week.

Cole McElroy and his Greater Oregonians, the dance band that has entertained thousands of dance lovers every night, Prentice Gross, director, has a collection of musicians that are rated highly in musicland, and they are all set to give the dance fans the best they have in their music books while playing here.

One of the outstanding features of the band is no other than "Stuffy" McDaniels, who plays the piano and is well-known to the people in and around Salem. Another big attraction will be Monte Austin, the noted singer of the Pacific coast, who will entertain dance patrons with his silver-toned voice.

The Greater Oregonians will come here direct from Seattle and Cole McElroy will be along in person to see that the fair dance lovers enjoy a big week of dancing to the strains of his famous Portland dance band.

Nowadays outdoor entertainment is hardly complete without its bit of dare-devilry. Thrills in plenty will be furnished grandstand crowds by the famous Atenos Brothers, Europe's aerial acrobats. On an all-white rigging, that stretches its poles to the height of 80 feet, the fearless acrobats will give an amazing exhibition of whirls, head-stands, one-hand holds, and other hair-raising stunts.

A bit of real circus life will be given spectators when they watch the three Asaw elephants perform, under the direction of their trainer, S. F. Huntley. This act is designed to appeal especially to children, with whom these jungle beasts are always favorites.

Without clowns no fair would be complete, but the Oregon State Fair will have no lack on that point, as the well-known troupe of Lester, Bell & Griffin has been engaged to make the audience laugh.

A small circus in themselves, these knockout comedians will give an exhibition of comedy bumps and falls, idiotic capers, and grotesque gambols, as well as real acrobatic stunts. They have spent many years with leading circuses and are post-graduates of clown alley.

STEAMER SAN JUAN OLD BUT STAUNCH

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31 —(AP)—The steamer San Juan, which sank near here this morning was one of the oldest vessels operated on the Pacific coast, having been built in 1882. Despite its age the ship was regarded as a staunch craft and entirely seaworthy by owners and federal inspectors. At its last inspection the boat was pronounced as one of the safest in the coastal service.

The San Juan was built at Chester, Pa., in 1892, one of a fleet of five especially designed for operations on the west coast of Mexico and Central America where harbors are shallow and vessels sometimes can not get within several miles of shore. The ship's large cabins and spacious decks were designed especially for the tropics.

The gross tonnage of the San Juan was 3512. It was of iron construction. The steamer carried a crew of 48 officers and men and had accommodations for 79 passengers. The life saving equipment included six life boats with a total of 132 persons. The ship carried 110 adult life preservers, 17 children's life preservers, four ring buoys, two luminous ring buoys and one Lyle gun.

The vessel was drydocked August 21, 1928 for overhauling, a new rudder and a new propeller was installed. It last went into drydock on April 18, last for cleaning, painting and overhauling of sea valves.

LINDY'S FLYING IS HELD DANGEROUS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 31.—(AP)—A request to investigate the stunt flying of Colonel Charles A. Lindberg, which, according to Pilot Samuel Taylor of the Stout Air Lines, Inc., jeopardized Taylor's big passenger plane here yesterday, was referred to William P. McCracken, assistant secretary of commerce, tonight to G. G. Budwin, commerce department inspector.

The investigation was requested by Cliff Henderson, manager of the air races, after a dispute between Lindbergh and Taylor. McCracken said he could not act on the request without a report from Budwin, and Budwin said he had nothing to report.

The dispute started when Taylor attempted to land his tri-motored plane loaded with passengers from Detroit, at the air race field.

Flying over the field by noncontestants had been forbidden by air rules, and Lindberg quit stunting with two navy fliers to pursue the passenger plane.

Taylor had his engines idling for the landing, and said Lindbergh swooped so close to the passenger plane that it was nearly upset by Lindbergh's back-wash of air, and after the landing was made, rushed to air race headquarters to protest the act. Then he learned that the protest was against Lindbergh, who said he had flown close merely to warn the other pilot to keep away.

WARREN COOLEY IS CALLED BY DEATH

Warren Cooley, resident of Salem for 22 years until he moved to Turner about 18 months ago, died exactly at noon Saturday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. D. B. Simpson, just south of Turner off the highway. He was 84 years old.

Mr. Cooley became suddenly ill last Sunday, since then his condition grew steadily worse. Death was due to heart trouble, from which he had suffered several attacks. He suffered the first severe attack about two years ago, from which he recovered nicely. A second attack was suffered last spring, but he had apparently recovered from this.

Mr. Cooley was the father of Ralph Cooley, manager of the Bishop clothing store, E. W. Cooley, grocery store proprietor, and Ellis Cooley, clothier, all of Salem. Three other children survive, including: Mrs. D. B. Simpson of Turner, Mrs. L. J. Bowman of Peshtigo, Wisc., and H. W. Cooley of Freewater. Three children preceded their father to the grave.

Warren Cooley was married to Lucira Jane Powers in Ohio 62 years ago. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary here 12 years ago and two years ago their children and friends gathered to held them honor their diamond nuptial anniversary. Mrs. Cooley survives.

The family moved here from Suring, Wisc., where Mr. Cooley had been engaged in farming for years, in 1907. Since coming here he had been retired.

Mr. Cooley was a member of the First Christian church in Salem.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Clough-Huston chapel, Rev. D. J. Howe officiating. Interment will be in the Lee Mission cemetery, where a son Herschel, is buried.

Besides the six surviving children, Mr. Cooley is survived by 20 grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

BREAK SEEN IN BOURBON RANK

Walsh of Massachusetts to Take Stand for Manufacturers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31. — The possibility of democrats putting up a solid party front in favor of limiting tariff revision to agricultural products only was shattered today by Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, who said he would advocate that relief pleas of every industry be given the fullest consideration.

Referring to the resolution of Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, which would eliminate from the pending tariff bill all rate sections except that relating to agriculture, the Massachusetts senator said that while he did not question the sincerity of its advocates, the country certainly would interpret this as a "rebuff to all producers other than farmers."

Both senators are members of the finance committee.

Resolution's Strength Declared Doubtful

Chairman Smoot, who will have charge of the bill for the republicans, expressed doubt whether the Thomas resolution would have a majority of a final vote. A similar resolution by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, failed to pass last June by one vote.

Although he would not insist on priority for consideration of amendments Smoot said an effort probably would be made to delay action on the limitation resolution if the democrats should seek to bring it up at the outset of the debate.

"In my opinion," said Senator Walsh, with reference to the limitation resolution, "it is a most undemocratic proposal at this stage in the proceedings upon the tariff in the senate."

"I for one," he added, "favor a full and free discussion be the senate itself or every domestic industry's claim to protection, without indicating favor of preference for any before the debate begins."

Stand Taken in Favor Of Industrial Faction

Although "many grave injustices and inequalities," would have to be eliminated before the bill commanded his support, Walsh said he would favor the "fullest consideration of every recommendation from whatever industrial group, or political source, that aims to decrease duties where existing rates are not justified or to increase duties where a case can be made out for substantial relief required; provided that such protective relief does not place an unwarranted burden upon other industries or on the consumer."

"There are distressed industries in this country, both manufacturing and agricultural," he said, "that may possibly be benefitted by the tariff; but they are, in my opinion, exceptions.

"It is reduction of excessive duties more than increases in many instances that the country needs. The limitation upon revision that would be useful is limitation of all duties, new and old, in all schedules and not in any one schedule."

SALEM LAUDED FOR ITS ENTERTAINMENT

Resolutions of appreciation for the manner in which Salem entertained the American legion have been received locally this week from Carl R. Moser, department adjutant for Oregon. The resolutions were unanimously adopted by the legionnaires at their last business meeting at the convention. The resolutions read:

"Whereas, the beautiful city of Salem, Oregon, acting through its mayor, its various city officials, its business interests, its newspapers and publications and its hosts of good citizens, has opened wide its gates, its homes and its hearts to receive and entertain the 11th annual convention of the American Legion, department of Oregon, and

"Whereas, every convenience has been supplied for our comfort and our entertainment unsurpassed, and

"Whereas, a friendship has been engendered between the citizens of Salem and the members of the American Legion of such magnitude and character that they have exalted our virtues and overlooked our short comings.

"Now therefore be it resolved by the department of Oregon, the American Legion, in its regular 11th annual convention assembled at Salem, that we extend to the city of Salem, its officers and citizens, our thanks, our love and a sincere promise to sing its undying praise.

"Be it further resolved that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this meeting, a copy sent to the T. A. Livesley, mayor of the city, and other copies to the various newspapers within its gates."

MARCO SHOW IS FOUND UNUSUAL

Hirch-Arnold Ballet Girls Appear in Attractive Numbers Here

By OLIVE M. DOAK

The Fanchon and Marco offering at the Elsinore theatre today is surprising in its unusualness. The program is one of beauty and grace both in dancing and music; it is classical in its presentation both as to music and dancing and from the manner in which the audience applauded Saturday afternoon when I saw the show, I imagine they enjoyed it as much as I did.

The dancers are the Hirch-Arnold ballet girls from San Francisco, who are on their first tour under Fanchon and Marco, and who will be the first Fanchon and Marco production to travel to New York city. The girls were trained in the San Francisco school of Miss Arnold and Miss Hirsch. They give three intepretative dances. The first is done with much of the Greek formality. The setting is gorgeous in black and white. The girls are all in white event to powdered wigs, and they descend long black stairways that lead down from near the top of the stage to the platform. The result is both spectacular and graceful.

There is rather a long wait between the first and second dance appearance and this is taken care of with classical orchestra selection directed by L. Meier. These selections were well played and as well received. I expected the 20th century audience to become weary under the majestic notes of Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," but not so—they liked it, which all goes to prove that we are not yet quite jazz mad.

The second dance number was the "moods of the sea," interpreted according to German technique, and done in a gripping manner. Schubert's music formed the interpretative note for the dance and the swaying bodies of slim girls in long white drapery illustrated the waves. Into their center swept a black veiled figure which represented the storm goddess.

The only jarring note to me in this program was the tap and harmonica numbers of Gus Mulkey, which I would greatly have enjoyed in a vaudeville program, but thought out of place with so much delicately graceful dancing.

The last number, the torch dance, is pure Russian ballet and spectacularly done. There is some exceedingly fine adagio work done in this by the team Betty and Rani.

This is a good show. We should have more like it.

Forzen River is Best yet Filmed By Rin-Tin-Tin

Although Rin-Tin-Tin, Warner Bros. famous dog star and the best-loved canine in the world, has now appeared in 18 motion pictures, his latest, "Frozen River," is said to be the most colorful and thrilling story in which he has starred. It will be seen at the Capitol theatre this week.

Filmed against the vast background of the frozen and icy north, "Frozen River" depicts the love of a dog for man, even though he has been reared from a puppy by a she-wolf. Many dramatic situations occur in this picture in which Rin-Tin-Tin saves the lives of three persons he has learned to love.
