BOTH SIDES FLARE UP IN STAMP 'WAR'

Schunke Says Practice is Unwarranted; Stamp Merchant Answers

The fight declared by the Sa-lem Business Men's League against the use of trading stamps flared up Monday in the publishing of a half-page advertisement on "fairplay" on Monday.

Manager Ed Schuske of Roth's Groceries declared after the statement held furthermore "I am decided in my denunciation of the use of trading stamps in stores. They are a curse upon any town in which they are introduced. They consume three per cent of the normal five per cent profit of a store. If a man does a $5,000 business his stamps cost $150. His busines would have to increase $1,000 to break even. The Business Men's league is agreed in denouncing trading stamps."

That stamps attract women to buy provided that merchandise is of standard quality, is the opinion of one of the Salem merchants who installed them in his store last week. He made this statement following an attack made by the Business Men's league. He says that giving trading stamps is akin to the movement of Salem business toward presenting customers with premiums and cash discounts, except that a highly specialized concern operates the awards made for trading stamps. He feels that increased business will be an inevitable consequence of th trading stamp practice.
