

Crops Through Valley Better Than Usual Survey Reveals

CROPS GOOD AT WOODBURN

All Yields Good Despite Late Spring and Dry Summer Survey Reveals

WOODBURN, September 11.—The farm produce and crops around Woodburn have been exceptionally good, taking into consideration the cold spring and the long drouth. Some kinds of produce have been under par but others have far exceeded the usual yields to even up the general run of farm income.

Berries in the Woodburn district ran from 75 to 80 per cent of normal this year. The early fruits were affected seriously by the late, cold spring and the long drouth suffered from the hot, dry weather during their harvesting.

The hay crop suffered none of these and the average yield per acre for this section was two tons.

The wheat and oats crop yielded the heaviest this year than has ever been known for this section of the country. Wheat ran from 30 to 68 bushels per acre. F. W. Settlemier on a 40 acre tract of land south of Woodburn averaged 132 bushels of oats to the acre, the lowest yield in the season being 40 bushels per acre.

Low land hops have suffered severe losses from honeydew, lice and mold. Some of the yards have had to cut out half of their vines to save the rest of the yard. Up-land hops were not yielding so heavy this year but the hops were of exceptionally good quality.

It is still early for a report on the potato crops but the yield is not expected to break any records on account of the long drouth.

AMITY, September 11.—The clover crops around Amity are exceptionally good this year. South of Amity, on the Barst Gibbs place, alsike yielded eight bushels to the acre, while the red clover yielded 4 bushels to the acre.
