A Sermon for the Week

A Missionary Religion

By REV. W. G. LIENKAEMPER (Pastor of Reformed Church, Salem)

For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard .- Acts 4:20.

These words, spoken by Peter and John soon after their Divine Master had commanded them: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature!" are the expressions of an essential principle, which lies at the heart of the Christian religion. This washe is: The Christian religion is in its tian religion. This essence a missionar

The apostles had seen and heard Jesus, had believed and experienced his message concerning sin, grace and redemption, which is the three-fold message of the gospel; therefore they could not but speak. This, then, is the principle of missions When we have seen and heard, believed and experienced the message of Christianity, we cannot but bear witness to it.

Christianity is a religion that will not keep. The only thing to do with it is to use it, spend it, give it away. The duty of preaching the gospel to every creature is on ethat inheres in the very nature of the Gospel itself. The Christian religion is the only religion fitted and intended for every creature. "There is no other name given under heaven whereby we-must be saved, than the name of Jesus."

here throughout next week. Assisting him in the campaign is his wife, Genevieve Booth-Clibborn. Clibborn is a grandson of the late General Booth, founder of the Salvation Army.

Booth-Clibborn is in many respects a remarkable preacher. Born in Switzerland in a great tide of revival, he was cradled in the center of great spiritual movements, writes a friend of him. At the age of 12 years he was converted and soon after started to preach. His style of preaching is declared by those who have heard him here to be impassioned and dramatic, plentifully illuminated with vivid illustration and word pictures.

Editor's Note: Rev. N. K. Tully, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who returned this week from a study tour of the Orient has written to the Orient has been to the Orient has written to the Orient has been to the Orient has written to the Orient pioneered in by the missionaries and then given over to the movement. Besides Jimmy Yen is a Christian, and a former Y. M. C. A. secretary.

In Japan there is Kagawa, perhaps the most dynamic spiritual personality new living. His work in the slums of Kobe, his vast social enterprises, and his present evangelistic campaign for a million converts to Christ, are the wonder of the Christian world. But Kagawa is the product of the missionary enterprise. So valuable a man is he to society that present ministry has implored him to enthat christianity brought freedom ment against strong drink; that christianity is elevating womaning society. It is the missionary enterprise that is taking christianity to Japan.

The direct objective of missions is to produce a native church that will be self-supporting, selfgoverning, and self-propagating. tive native churches, and saw them conducted by native leadership, in excellent buildings built service because it was time for an official meeting to consider some problem. The white missionary does not dominte; he helps. He rejoices in turning over the leader. ship to the native.

The soul's experience in Christ, a knowledge of the needs of the world, and obedience to the Great Commission, constitute the missionary motive. It is slowly but surely making all things new. A century and a quarter ago no enterprise on earth could have appeared more helpless than the Homecoming services will be physical and spiritual transforma-
