

4-H Club Workers Busy Preparing to Win State Fair Prizes

POLK CO. 4-H CLUBS ACTIVE

More Than 500 Boys and Girls in Club Work Prepare for State Fair

DALLAS, Sept. 19 — Nearly 500 boys and girls in Polk county are interested in some phase of 4-H club work, which is divided into two sections, with J. R. Beck, county agent in charge of that part pertaining to livestock and agriculture. Josiah Willis, county school superintendent looks after that relating to domestic science, and home making. Boys' and Girls' 4 H club members of Polk county are annually one of the features of the Oregon State Fair. They exhibit in almost every club department and take part in many of the contests, both in home economics and agricultural subjects.

In livestock and crops work the entries will probably be greater this year than ever before according to County Agent J. R. Beck who has been checking up on the intentions of the various clubs. Club members will have exhibits of Duroc Jersey hogs, Shropshire sheep, Jersey cattle, Angora goats and various kinds of poultry and rabbits. While in the crops division they will exhibit garden vegetables corn and potatoes.

Under the more miscellaneous headings they will exhibit in the Bee and Honey division and a girl from the Perrydale Health club will enter in the State Health contest.

In the various contests to see which club members can show their animals the best there will be entries from Polk County in showing hogs, sheep, cattle and goats. Louis and Eunice Powell of the Monmouth Angora Goat club will put on a livestock demonstration in competition with other counties while a team of three members from the Elkins Jersey Gait club will take care of their honors in the livestock judging contest.

Eldron Olson, local leader of the Brush College Poultry club is arranging for a judging team from that group while Charles B. F. Davis of Bridgport has been assigned the responsibility of preparing a crop's demonstration team from his potato club. Kenneth Black and Leighton Dashiell will put on a special bee demonstration and another group of boys will take part in the rabbit judging contests.

Due to their outstanding work for the past several years in the Garden club project Virginia Miller and George Plov, both of whom are members of the Suver Garden club under the leadership

Lee Chickens Now On Fair Circuit

AUBURN, Sept. 19.—Thirty chickens from the Lloyd Lee hatchery and poultry farm are on exhibition at the Western Washington fair at Puyallup, including buff leghorns, buff orpingtons, white minorcas, black minorcas. These will be also at the Oregon State fair and also white wyandottes, and R. I. reds.

of Mrs. J. H. Miller, will have the honor of representing Polk county as two of our outstanding club members. Each year this honor goes to two boys or girls who have done particularly well in their project.

From the numerous contests and demonstration teams that are entered as well as the different breeds of livestock that will be shown it can be seen that it won't be difficult to find a Polk county 4 H club member taking part in something almost every day, in addition to showing at the State Fair. There is a larger number of boys and girls planning on exhibiting at the County Fair this year.

DEER CAUSES FUROR IN RICKEY DISTRICT

RICKEY, September 19.—Considerable excitement was caused in the community Tuesday afternoon when a big buck deer was reported to have crossed from the Frank Durbin place to the Childs tracts and was said to be hiding in the corn field.

Real concern was felt by the parents as no yards are fenced and there are quite a number of small children in that vicinity.

So a group of men hunted through the corn field but the deer had evidently scented laborers who were working on a building and only stopped a short time in the corn field and when last seen was crossing the I. Caplinger farm and was heading for the woods. However instead of being a big buck it proved to be a small doe. The deer evidently had been driven out of the hills by the fires.

Zena Ladies Use Novel Methods to Rid Gardens Of Troublesome Insects

ZENA, Sept. 19.—Old timers in Zena predicted early in the spring when weeds and flowers were covered with a white, frothy substance which they called "snake spit" that there would be more insects than usual this summer, and as usual they were right.

Yellow jackets and black beetles are more prevalent here than ever before. The jackets infest the houses, making it very unpleasant for the occupants and in the apple orchards hordes of them work together to scoop out the apples, leaving nothing but the hollowed outer skin.

and Miss Laura Cammack, last year's teacher is substituting for the first week.

A fine bunch of young people compose the high school student body, which organized Tuesday with Wille H. Jesse, president, Miss Fay Barber vice president, Willard Bear Sec.-Treas.

A neat sum is in the treasury which will materially help start the new year's finances. Prof. John R. Cox has started football practice and a good team is assured. All will take part in the public teachers' reception Friday evening at the high school auditorium.

Flower lovers everywhere are complaining of the depredations of the small black beetle which eats the petals of their asters, marigolds and dahlias. In fact, they seem to relish almost any variety of flower, but the three named seem to suffer the most. At a bridge party which I attended recently I received some novel ideas from the ladies present, when they each told their methods of killing beetles. One lady, who has beautiful gardens, has her children pick the beetles off the flowers and drop them in alcohol. I'd call that a happy ending.

Another day makes daffy rounds of her flower beds and simply pulls the heads off of the beetles. Cruelty to animals I'd say. Still another lady said that she gathers them in a can or jar and then pours them out on a board and steps on them. Doesn't that make you shudder? You wouldn't think if you saw these ladies that they could commit such cold-blooded murder.

Oh, yes! I almost forgot to tell you about one lady who is so squeamish that she can't bear to touch the little pests, and waits for her husband to pick them. She has no flowers left.

AUBURN, Sept. 19.—A group of men from several of the Sunday schools of the Hayesville Sunday school district were busy all day Tuesday at the state fair grounds with hammers and saws and other necessary tools, preparing the district display booth.

H. M. Mead treated the men to a hot dinner in his restaurant. Friday a group of the ladies will be present to decorate and arrange the display material, and a number of the men will be there to finish the woodwork and assist where necessary.
