RESERVE OFFICERS TO MEET SATURDAY

The Reserve Officers association of Oregon will hold its annual convention in Salem Saturday of this week, with probably 100 members from widely scattered parts of the state in attendance. Lieut. Col. Hauser of Portland, president of the association, will preside at the business meeting, scheduled for 11 o'clock in the forenoon at the Elks' temple, and will also be toastmaster at the banquet, which will be held at 6:30 p. m.

The local committee planning entertainment for the reserve officers who will attend the convention, includes Dr. Laban A. Steeves, chairman; Tinkham Gilbert, vice chairman, and Lloyd Siegmund, secretary.

The convention a year ago was held at Astoria.

SALEM COMMUNITY BUILDERS

W. I. Staley

HE IS HEAD OF THE CAPITAL BUSINESS COLLEGE THE OLDEST INSTITUTION OF ITS KIND IN THE NORTHWEST—ITS GRADUATES ARE SCATTERED ALL OVER THE COUNTRY AND THEY ARE ALL MAKING GOOD.

KEENLY INTERESTED IN BOYS WELFARE WORK, HE WORKS WITH THE HELPING HAND AS PRES. OF THE Y.M.C.A.—A POSITION HE HAS HELD FOR OVER 20 YEARS.

LIKE MANY SUCCESSFUL AMERICANS, HE WAS REARED ON A FARM

Staley Is Among Best Known Here

Editor's Note—This is the second of a series of sketches of public spirited men of Salem. Our purpose is to give individuals who have given of their time and ability to be given recognition and that such recognition may encourage others to think and act the part of community builders.

By WALLACE McDUGALL.
Public service not only advances the general welfare, but develops the individual. In every community there is a small coterie of men who work altruistically for the general welfare and benefit of their city. Of such a type may be mentioned W. I. Staley, head of the Capital Business College, and president of the Rotary Club and Y. M. C. A.

Like a great many successful men in the United States, he was reared on a farm. He was born in the village of Waterville, Kansas, and in his teens worked on his father's farm and at intervals attended the county schools. He completed his education in an Eastern Kansas Normal school and a business college at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. At the latter institution he prepared himself for the profession of commercial teaching.

After completing the course, he spent one year as principal of the commercial department of Cornell college, Mt. Vernon, Iowa. In 1890 he came to Salem and secured position as an instructor in the college he now controls. The Capital Business college, at the time, was under the supervision of the late A. P. Armstrong, the founder and owner of the Portland Business college, Portland, Oregon.

In 1899 he purchased the sole control from Armstrong and innovated new ideas for commercial education, which have borne fruit down through the years as his students are scattered in different parts of the west coast, where they have met with uniform success.

The Capital Business college is the oldest institution of its kind in the northwest, and the fifth largest in the United States.

WOMEN SHOULD LEARN USES OF MAGNESIA

To women who suffer from nausea, or so-called "morning sickness," this simple measure is proving a blessing. Most nurses know it and it is advised by leading specialists.

Prepare a small quantity of finely cracked ice—about a wine-glassful. Pour over it a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Sip slowly until the mixture is gone or you are entirely relieved. It is seldom necessary to repeat the dose to end sick stomach or any inclination to vomit.

Its anti-acid properties enable Phillips Milk of Magnesia to give immediate relief in heartburn, sour stomach, gas, its mild, but effective laxative action assures regular bowel movement. Used as a mouthwash it helps prevent acid erosion and tooth decay during expectancy.

oldest business without a change, students who are given a modern business education. Mr. Staley year runs to approximately 350 helps his students in securing positions and has many calls for his graduates from firms all over the state. Over half the enrollment being from out of town.

He always finds time to work for civic advancement and especially is interested in boys and girls welfare work. As president of the Y. M. C. A. for over 20 years, he has found his outlet in helping boys and young men.

His fraternal organizations are the Elks, Woodmen of the World, Knights of Pythias and the Artisans.

Kindly, affable, he has made his life exemplary in all respects and has ever supported those things which are calculated to uplift and benefit the community in general.

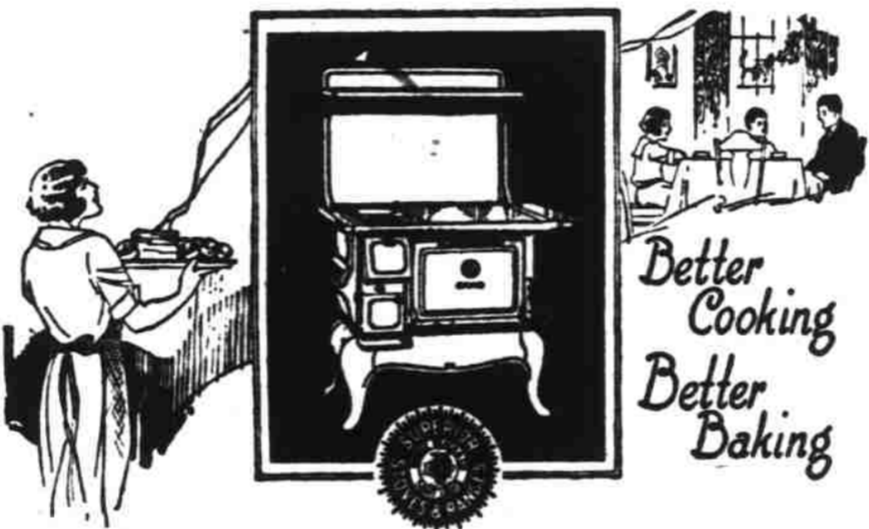

FOOD INSPECTOR TO DELIVER ADDRESS

J. E. Blinkhorn, sanitary and food inspector, will leave Friday in company with Mrs. Blinkhorn for Memphis, Tenn., where he will give an address Monday night, October 7, before the International Association of Dairy and Milk Inspectors, which will be in session there October 7 to 9. Title of Blinkhorn's paper is "Milk Supervision in an Oregon Municipality."

Mr. and Mrs. Blinkhorn will take the northern route to Tennessee, enroute spending a day at each Kansas City and St. Louis where he will look into methods of handling milk supervision, immediately following the close of the international convention a conference will be held on enforcement of ordinances similar to the sanitary ordinance in effect in Salem, and Blinkhorn has been invited to attend this meeting. From Memphis he will go to Murfreesboro, Tenn., to visit the child health demonstration there. On the return trip over the southern route they will tarry in cities along the route that he may make studies of health work being done. They will be gone until the middle of October.

Other members of the county sanitary officer's staff will have charge of the dairy and food inspection during Blinkhorn's absence, the inspector says.
