Fair Glances

John M. Scott, retired passenger traffic manager of the Southern Pacific was a fair visitor on Portland and G. A. R. day.

The McMinnville high school band, all dressed up in natty blue uniforms, entertained on the fair grounds with some spirited music.

George L. Baker, Fargo, N. D., livestock judge, declared the state fair show to be the best horse show of any he has seen in the west, especially in the draft horse section. This he rates even better than the Minnesota state fair, which he has just seen, and which is always rated exceptionally high. The six-in-hand driving he believes every bit the equal of the Chicago International Livestock show.

Rufus C. Holman, former county commissioner of Multnomah county, was seen strolling about the grounds on Portland day.

Judge and Mrs. S. W. Sackett, McMinnville, were on the grounds yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Linn, Perrydale, were a fair visitor Thursday. Mr. Linn is a former member of the state fair board, and was much pleased with the come tax bill, with a progressive state tax upon net incomes of persons and fiduciaries, to apply as revenue for state purposes.

TAYLOR HAS LONG RECORD AT FAIR

Twenty-four years as manager of the Marion county agricultural booth is the record of Billy Taylor, Macleay, who is also in general charge of the agricultural pavilion. Mr. Taylor has also had experience in booths at the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Chicago, the San Francisco World's fair, and the Pacific International show at Portland.

In 1906, competing against 17 counties, Marion won the first prize for agricultural booths. Since that time, while endeavoring always to present the best that skill can put together, Marion has not entered competition, but has rather played host to the other counties. Marion has the edge on the others since it is so much easier for her to get the materials together, and Mr. Taylor believes that she has no right to compete with others who must import their exhibits.

The Marion county booth is one of the most extensive in the building, representing every product in agriculture and horticulture. This includes nuts, grain, forage, grasses, vegetables, fruit, etc. Mr. Taylor believes it more nearly representative of the agriculture of his section than any he has ever seen, and he has attended to every detail.

The county booths have unusually good exhibits this year, and according to Mr. Taylor, have shown praiseworthy enterprise and initiative.

LOYD LEE'S HEN WINS FIRST PLACE

Lloyd A. Lee, Salem, captured the grand prize in poultry on his Buff Orpington hen, according to announcement at the grounds yesterday. Mr. Lee also won the grand prizes in the English classes for his Orpington hens and pullets, which are some of the finest which have ever been exhibited at the fair.

Other grand prizes were awarded as follows: Best bird in American class: 1st prize, Leroy Lawrence, Eugene. For Barred Rock cockerel: 2nd, J. B. Legett, Canby for single comb Rhode Island Red cockerel. Best in Mediterranean class: 1st, O. K. Winters, Newberg, for Black Minorca cockerel; 2nd, Fred A. Johnson, Tacoma, for light brown Leghorn pullet.

Astoria class: 1st, and 2nd, F. H. Hoyle, Sultan, Wash., for light Brahma pullet and cockerel.

For the best collection of five males in the show, J. B. Legett, Canby, received first for Rhode Island Reds, and O. K. Winters, Newberg second for Black Minorcas.

Judging in poultry will be completed today.

look, of things especially with the new grandstand.

W. W. Yapp, livestock judge from the University of Illinois, finished up his duties Thursday evening in record time, and left immediately for home because of pressing duties at the university.

Ruth Parton, Wapato, Wn., who has a number of race horses here is one of the best authorities on the breeding and racing of fine horses on the coast. Still under her thirty, Miss Parton owns and operates a large stock ranch and divides her time between breeding and taking her horses around to the various race tracks, where they are in the habit of carrying away a large share of the purses.

A pleased "Oh!" and a little girl stood spellbound before a picture in the photograph exhibit. "Why, Mother!" she finally got out. "Why mother, that's my picture!"

Mrs. M. M. Woodworth, wife of Dr. Woodworth of Albany, accompanied by her father, A. Chalmers, Tacoma, Wn., was a visitor at the fair Thursday.

E. G. Vollman, secretary of the San Joaquin county fair, Stockton, one of the largest county fairs in the west, attended the fair yesterday, and was enthusiastic in his praise of the grounds and the exhibition. The orderly and attractive arrangement of the grounds, the beautiful flowers and lawns, and the well planned buildings show a definite plan for future growth, according to Mr. Vollman. He paid particular praise to the dahlia garden just in front of the poultry building.

One little girl at the state fair yesterday thoroughly enjoyed the attention she was receiving. This was little Virginia Bailey, Lane county, whose elder sister, Lois, and Mabel Osborn, were making a dress for her, as a J. H. club demonstration. She dimpled appreciatively when the dress was finally slipped over her head, complete, not at all abashed at having an audience.

Frank Farmer, county commissioner of Polk county, came to the fair Thursday, as well as Victor Morris, the county judge of Benton county.

Ten kinds of grain are displayed in the Canadian exhibit under the direction of W. E. McDonnell. This extensive booth, just at the left of the entrance to the agricultural pavilion, is attracting a lot of attention. Incidentally, information at this booth discloses that most of the standard brands of breakfast foods are manufactured in Canada.

VETERANS TO HOLD DRIVE HERE TODAY

On Friday and Saturday September 27 and 28, the National Chapter No. 1, Disabled American Veterans, will hold their annual Forget-Me-Not sale on the streets of Salem, to raise funds for carrying on relief work throughout the coming year.

The Disabled American Veterans of the World War is a national organization by and for men and women wounded or otherwise disabled in line of duty.

The purpose of the annual sale is to provide funds to assist economically those comrades who sacrificed their physical well being and are no longer able to carry on industrially or socially.

The annual Forget-Me-Not sale is the only means that the D. A. V. have of raising funds and it is officially authorized by the United States government and the United States veterans bureau. It is also endorsed by Governor Patterson, Mayor Baker and public spirited organizations.

STATE'S FLAX PLANT VISITED

County Agents From Many Sections of Oregon on Hand Wednesday

County agents from most of the counties of Oregon employing such officials, made a tour of the state flax industry Wednesday. The group was led by W. L. Teutsch, assistant county agent leader for the state, of Corvallis.

Those making the trip expressed themselves as greatly impressed at the extent of the flax industry here as it has been developed to date. They noted the extensive use of machinery, particularly in the scutching process.

County agents of the Willamette valley recognize the flax industry as one destined to make a profound impression upon agriculture in general here, an effect which cannot but be beneficial, Mr. Teutsch said later.

Those making the trip were J. J. Inskip, agent, and Leroy Wright, assistant agent of Clackamas county; J. R. Beck, Polk county; S. T. White, Yamhill county; O. T. McWhorter, Washington county; J. C. Leedy, Douglas county; W. D. Pine, agent, and William Williams, assistant agent of Tillamook county; H. B. Howell, Josephine county; P. T. Fortner, Lake county; F. L. Ballard, county agent, leader; N. C. Jamison, dairy specialist of O. S. C.; J. L. Smith of Coquille; H. T. Hesse and L. V. McWhorter of the Washington county farm, and Mr. Teutsch.

HEALTH PARADE TO BE LARGE AFFAIR

If only one-sixth of the Marion county school pupils, excluding Salem students, march in the heralds of health parade to be held at the state fairgrounds Saturday morning as a feature of children's day, nearly 240 healthy boys and girls will be in line. Of the 2,152 buttons awarded last spring to heralds of health, 1,395 went to children outside of Salem. There is no way of knowing how many children will be in line until that morning, says the county school superintendent.

Salem school children will not be represented in the honor roll parade Saturday, Miss Carlotta Crowley, elementary supervisor, and George W. Hug, city superintendent, agreed Thursday. Both feel that Salem children did enough to fetch honor roll boys and girls when they staged the spectacular May Day pageant here this spring, and that to ask teachers to line them up for participation in another event would not be the thing.

The honor roll parade for county pupils will get under way promptly at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, the line of march to be over the green if weather is favorable, and if inclement, under cover.

Either way, the governor, state and county school superintendents, and members of the demonstration staff will act as a reviewing body. Large blue and white felt pennants with appropriate lettering will be awarded to Mill City, Gates and Victor Point schools, which won high place in health work on basis of number of honor roll pupils in proportion to enrollment. Dr. Estella Ford Warner will make this presentation.

'ONE STOLEN NIGHT' SHOWS AT CAPITOL

An English fort in the Sudan, sandy wastes of the desert stretching away in the moonlight, lines of sleeping soldiers in the barracks—midnight. A soldier, fully dressed, slips stealthily out of one of the buildings, climbs over the wall surrounding the fort, drops to the ground and runs—a deserter, fleeing the regiment and thus taking the blame for the crime of his dishonest brother who remains at his post.

These events form the opening scenes of "One Stolen Night," the new Warner Brothers Vitaphone production which tells a colorful story of an itinerant vaudeville troupe in a little Algerian town, fronting on the Mediterranean and straggling off into the blazing sands of the great African desert. In this picturesque setting, with its swarthy people of many races, is told a stirring narrative of hate and jealousy, and of true love.

The cast appearing in "One Stolen Night" includes Betty Bronson, Wm. Collier, Jr., Mitchell Lewis.

The picture is the current attraction at Bligh's Capitol today and Saturday. At Johnson in "Say It With Songs," opens next Sunday.

Clock Presented Richard W. Price

The state editorial association has presented a beautiful clock, enclosed in a huge lot, to Richard W. Price, manager of Crater Lake Lodge. The gift was in appreciation of the entertainment afforded by Mr. Price at the time the members of the state editorial association met at Crater Lake a year ago. The clock will occupy a conspicuous place in the lobby of the lodge.

FORENSIC WORK AT UNIVERSITY BEGINS

Eleven men and four women have enrolled for debate and other forensic work at Willamette university for this year. Professor Herbert E. Rahe, coach of forensics, stated yesterday that he expected to have a squad numbering 29 by the time actual work begins.

At an early date Professor Rahe will begin giving general instruction on the technique of debate oratory and extemporaneous speaking. Following this general preparation work on actual debates and other speeches will be given for a full season of participation in forensic work.

Men who were prominent in debate last year who have enrolled this year are Charles Campbell, Ray Larky and Roy Harland. Other men who have enrolled are Ronald Hewitt, Ed Rounds, Wesley Gregg, Ralph McCullough, Erwin Lange, Jack Ramage and Lars Nelson. Women who have signed up are Lillian Beecher, Mark Clark, Florence Decker and Marjorie Moser.

Ray Larky, men's debate manager is at work planning a 10-day debate tour to be taken by the men's team next spring. It is hoped that a women's tour may also be arranged.
