

Local News Briefs

Collisions Reported—Frank Palm, 481 Perry street, and E. J. Bittner, 1750 Oxford, filed contradictory reports in the sheriff's office Monday of a collision which occurred Sunday afternoon on the Pringle road. Palm claimed that Bittner cut the corner, and Bittner alleged that Palm was driving recklessly. C. B. Bells, 615 Center street, reported a collision between his automobile and one driven by Jack W. Shortridge of Owyhee, on the Scio road out of Jefferson Sunday forenoon. Bells said Shortridge did not observe his signal, and crossed both left fenders of Bells machine. Another collision reported in the sheriff's office involved machines driven by T. B. Bender and Myra Schuster, both of Portland, on the Pacific highway near Woodburn. Three motor buses obstructed the view of motorists, it was stated in the report.

Blowers Not to Run—Lawrence N. Blowers, of Eugene, has sent a letter to Salem indicating that he will not be a republican candidate for governor at the primary election May 15. He said he reserved the right, however, to enter the gubernatorial contest as an independent candidate. Blowers said in his letter that he was not a mixer nor a baby kisser, and lacked funds to make the race as a republican candidate.

Funds Received—The state board for vocational education has received a certificate of allotment of federal funds to be used in co-operative vocational education in the amount of $12,968.83. This represents the first quarterly payment of the total received each year for the promotion of agriculture, home economics, and trade and industrial education in the state of Oregon.

Forester Leaves—Lynn Cronmiller, deputy state forester, left here last night for Asheville, N. C., to attend the national convention of state foresters. En route home he will visit with relatives in Illinois and other eastern states. Cronmiller is scheduled to give an address at the foresters' convention.

Editor Dies—John P. McManus, at one time editor and publisher of the Pendleton Tribune, died suddenly in Honolulu August 28, according to a telegram received in Salem Monday. McManus was considered one of the outstanding editors of eastern Oregon, and McManus has relatives in Salem.

Road Surveyed—Government surveyors who are at work establishing the route of the proposed North Santiam road to Central Oregon from Detroit through the Santiam forest, have reached Independence Prairie. The work will be completed November 1. This road, when constructed, will reduce the distance materially between Portland and Bend.

Meeting Postponed—Several taxpayers in road district No. 33 1/2, Marion county, have petitioned for a special district meeting to be held at the Oak Dale schoolhouse Saturday, November 2, at 2 p. m. This district lies in the vicinity of Mehama.

SLASHING FIRE CLOSELY EYED

Permits Required in Order Issued by Governor Last Night

Because of the fire hazard now existing in various parts of the state, Governor Patterson last night issued a proclamation making it incumbent upon persons desiring to burn slashings to first obtain a permit. The order will remain in effect until October 15. The law provides that slashings may be burned after October 1, without a permit, but the governor has authority to rescind this privilege.

"The present fire season in Oregon has, as every one knows, been the most serious in the history of organized forest protection," read a statement issued by Governor Patterson last night. "I have taken the position from the beginning that if ever there was a time when an executive was justified in exercising the authority vested in him by the legislature having to do with the protection of our forests, the time is this year.

"I have caused the hunting season to be postponed, requested the state forester to suspend burning permits during the most critical period, and I am now, on the recommendation of the state forester and federal forest service officials, extending the season when burning permits are required until October 15."

A letter sent to Governor Patterson by F. A. Elliott, state forester, read:

"On and after October 1, in the absence of action by the governor to the contrary, slashings may be burned without a permit. I request that you exercise the authority vested in you by statute, and by proclamation extend the season when permits are required to October 15.

"I want to make it clear that this does not mean that slashings may not be burned. The removal of the hazard they constitute is necessary from a forest protection standpoint. The suggestion, if taken, will mean that before burning is done a permit must be secured. It also will mean that knowledge of all fires will enable the entire cooperative protective organization to help in every way possible in the safe disposal of these slash hazards."

Reserach Chief To Arrive Here This Week End

Dr. Emma Winslow, director of research with the Commonwealth Fund, will arrive in Salem Saturday or Sunday to spend some time assisting with her department at the Marion county child health demonstration. Dr. Winslow was here last May, remaining several weeks to help get work at the statistical office in shape for closing of the demonstration here. Dr. Winslow is now attending the American Public Health association meeting in Minneapolis, Minn., and will come here, direct from there.

Dahlia Growers Arrange Display

Dahlia growers of Oregon and Washington will unite in staging the most elaborate and representative exhibition of autumn flowers ever held in the Pacific Northwest.

Route Advantages—Easy grades have been found on the proposed route for a highway across the Cascades from Detroit to central Oregon, by government surveyors now working in the vicinity of Independence prairie. It has been reported to County Commissioner Smith. The survey will be completed by the end of this month according to present indications. Surveyors interviewed by Mr. Smith said the proposed road would be easily kept open through the winter.

Undergoes Operation—Charles Wilson of Springfield, Oregon, brother of Otto Wilson and well known in Salem, underwent a very serious emergency operation in a Eugene hospital Sunday night. Latest reports Monday night were not definite as to the condition of the patient. Otto Wilson was in Eugene Monday.

Wrong Prize Reported—The Sunday Statesman contained a picture of prize-winning window display of Square Deal Hardware and reported the prize as a $50 check. The prize was not a check but a cup which is now being shown in their windows.

Fire Destroys Home—The house, woodshed and tank house on the Charles Cobb farm in the Hazel Green vicinity was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. After a hard fight against the flames, the barn containing 200 tons of hay was saved.

Executrix Appointed—N. A. Basye has been named executrix of the will of J. J. Basye, who died recently. The will was admitted to probate Monday.

Demurrer Filed—A demurrer was filed Monday in circuit court by the defendants in the case of John Fikan vs. Anton F. Will et al.

Distributes Annuals—Willamette university will ship 100 copies of the 1929 Walkway to high schools in Oregon, Washington and Idaho in a few days.

Return From East—Mr. and Mrs. Howard Blake have returned from a month's trip to Chicago. Mr. Blake is local agent for an eastern bonding firm.

TEXTBOOK ON STATE LOOMS

University of Oregon Staff Busy on New Job Says Announcement

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Sept. 30.—(Specials)—Planned as a means of familiarizing the students of high schools with the resources and geography of the state, the schools of business administration and education of the University of Oregon are at work on compilation of data that is to be used as the basis of a textbook on the state. It is announced here by Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president.

The material will first be used as a text in two or three high schools and after a thorough trial will then be published and made available for all schools in the state, it is announced.

The problem and project method of teaching will be used for the new course, and the work will depart entirely from the old style textbook with its page after page of sometimes uninteresting reading and statistics. Since the study of the geography and natural resources of a state is dependent to a very large extent on statistics, the material in this method can always be kept fresh and up-to-date. A summarized page or two of reading will enable the student to obtain a quick picture of the problem involved. Following this there will be a number of thought-provoking projects or studies accompanied by a regulated amount of reference reading to stimulate original work.

The course will be supplemented with accounts of Oregon history so that plain facts can be tied in with historical narrative actually lived by the student. Above all things the "human use" features will be stressed. "Place" geography will be expanded to include factors such as use of a given area, what it produces, and what is most important, its potentialities.

"The scientific achievements of this age may bring to the forefront of Oregon the development of untold wealth in new kinds of manufacturing enterprises, new possibilities in transportation and certainly outstanding advantages in foreign trade," said Dr. Hall in describing the new course. "The coming generation, learning their fundamentals in school and university, are the business and professional leaders of the coming years. How important it is, that they should be versed in the wealth of their state, and how necessary it is that they be given knowledge so that they can begin to plan their respective careers based on the full information of what their state has to offer them in comparison to others."

Salem Children Are Examined by Local Physician

Examination of Salem high school children was started Monday by Dr. Edward Lee Russell, pediatrician with the child health demonstration, when 110 boys and girls were examined. Dr. Russell expects to have all high school students' physical inspection completed here in the week is over, and following this assignment to some form of gymnasium work will be made. This is the first time an attempt has been made at the high school to examine every student at the beginning of the school year, and is being carried through that each student may be placed in physical work appropriate to his or her needs.

State Auditing Job Under Way Hoss Declares

Auditing of all state institutions and activities as provided for by the last legislature is well under way, under the direction of Secretary of State Hal E. Hoss, who is also state auditor and charged with the responsibility of checking the finances of all departments of the commonwealth.

The first department to be ordered audited by Mr. Hoss was the state department, which includes the motor vehicle division, and which has required a crew of accountants since June. The work is being done by an independent firm of Portland, while the most of the remaining departments will be audited by the staff of men from the auditing division of the secretary of state's office. Motor vehicle funds had not been audited since 1923 and consequently it has been a Herculean task in that particular department where several millions of dollars are collected each year.

There are 207 state activities to be audited, and of that number only 77 have had regular annual audits. Under the new system, each state institution, commission, board or department will be audited at least once each calendar year, and a special audit will be made whenever there is a change in the administrative head of any department.

EASIER MERGERS OF BANKS TO BE ASKED

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30—(AP)—A resolution to petition congress to modify federal laws so as to permit national banks to merge under more favorable conditions was adopted here today by the national banking division of the fifty-fifth annual convention of the American Bankers' association.

The national banking resolution was adopted after George H. Hamilton, Wichita, Kans., had told the bankers in one of the leading addresses of the day that national banks are surrendering their charters at a menacing rate and thereby tending to undermine the federal reserve system.

The reasons for this, Mr. Hamilton said, are mergers which have profited state banks more than national banks because "they have more clearly defined rights in trust departments" and advantages under an operating standpoint "under less restrictive state laws."

As a result the Kansas banker said he foresaw the list of national banks declining to a point where the federal reserve system will have only its own member banks as centrally-controlled financial agencies unless laws are modified to permit national banks to merge under more favorable conditions.

"The course will be supplemented with accounts of Oregon history so that plain facts can be tied in with historical narrative actually lived by the student. Above all things the "human use" features will be stressed. "Place" geography will be expanded to include factors such as use of a given area, what it produces, and what is most important, its potentialities.

"The scientific achievements of this age may bring to the forefront of Oregon the development of untold wealth in new kinds of manufacturing enterprises, new possibilities in transportation and certainly outstanding advantages in foreign trade," said Dr. Hall in describing the new course. "The coming generation, learning their fundamentals in school and university, are the business and professional leaders of the coming years. How important it is, that they should be versed in the wealth of their state, and how necessary it is that they be given knowledge so that they can begin to plan their respective careers based on the full information of what their state has to offer them in comparison to others."

BLUE SKY MINING LAWS ARE FLAYED

SPOKANE, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Blue sky legislation, by which states regulate the mining industry, was assailed then defended today at the joint convention of four American mining associations when Dr. James Hance, dean of mines at Oregon State college, advocated such laws for the betterment of the industry.

The discussion was carried to the floor, where several hundred delegates to the western division, American mining congress; the Northwest Mining association, the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, and the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, criticized the methods of the Illinois blue sky commission as explained by Hance.

Dr. Hance, a former examiner for the Illinois body, affirmed that millions of dollars were saved each year by the "blue sky laws"—enough money, he said, to pay the cost of Illinois' hard road system once every three years.

"The blue sky laws encourage the honest investor," he stated. "The careful scrutiny states given to mine promotion enables the investor to choose good properties."
