DEVELOPMENT OF WEST ADVOCATED

OGDEN, Utah, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Development of the natural resources of the west, with an enlarged foreign trade in the far east and Latin America, occupied the attention of some 250 representatives of western chambers of commerce at the first day's session of the western division of the chamber of commerce of the United States.

Probably the greater part of the discussion centered around the subject of water and forests and preliminary deliberations of the resolutions committee gave promise of further consideration at the closing sessions of the conference tomorrow.

Dr. Elwood Mead, federal commissioner of reclamation, was present today and while he did not participate in the program, he conferred with a committee drafting a resolution on the chamber's attitude toward reclamation. Dr. Mead will start the discussion at tomorrow forenoon's of reclamation and will be followed by several other speakers from western states.

PENDLETON WON'T RECEIVE MEMORIAL

The state supreme court Tuesday reversed the decree of Judge D. R. Parker of the Umatilla county circuit court in the suit brought by Carl A. Johnson and others to restrain the city of Pendleton and its officials from complying with a proposal made by John Vert to construct at his expense a memorial building and donate it to the municipality. The lower court had held for the city.

It was provided in the agreement that the site should be furnished by the city of Pendleton, and that the electorate should agree by ballot to provide annually sufficient funds to maintain and operate the building, grounds and museum. The structure was to cost $65,000, and be known as the "Vert Memorial Community Building."

The supreme court held that the contract attempted to be entered into by the city was not within the power of the municipality because its performance by the city would require it to levy an annual tax in a specific amount for a specific purpose for all time to come.

"No legislative body has power to bind its successors to levy any particular tax in the future or to
