FOX TAKES OVER ELSINORE THEATRE

The Fox West Coast theatres organization have finally taken over the operating control of the Elsinore theatre, under a long-term lease from George B. Guthrie, former owner.

The theatre is now being managed by Col. David E. Dow, formerly in charge of the Fox houses in Tacoma.

It is the intention of the new owners to bring to Salem only the best in screen and stage entertainment, which will also include the well-liked Fanchon and Marco stage presentations.

Marco, the producing head of Fanchon and Marco, has recently returned from a trip to New York and other eastern centers, and has booked the best obtainable talent. These gorgeous acts with all its beautiful settings will be offered to Salem theatre-goers, exactly the same as to the audiences in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and other cities, where Fanchon and Marco have extended their bookings.

Fox West Coast theatres have also booked the best product which they can buy from such producers as Paramount, Metro-Goldwyn and First National.

Among some of the big bookings to be seen at the Elsinore shortly are Moran and Mack in "Why Bring That Up," the Holywood Revue of 1929, "Four Feathers," "Illusion," and many others.
